WITHDRAWAL QUESTIONED

Soviet Official Still 'Mum' On Cuba Buildup

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States asked Russia Saturday to say when it plans to withdraw Soviet military forces from Cuba.

The question was put to Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin by Secretary of State Dean Rusk in a 75-minute meeting at the State Department.

Rusk had met with President Kennedy at the White House earlier in the day. U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler participated in the White House conference and is expected to press the troop issue with the Soviet government when he gets back to his post in Moscow next Thursday.

EXPECTED

Dobrynin, U.S. informants reported, was unable to give Rusk an immediate answer. That has been expected and the query in effect was a request from Kennedy through Rusk to Soviet Premier Khrushchev for an explanation of his policy on the 17,000 troops and military technicians retained in Cuba following the crisis of last October.

Dobrynin reportedly told Rusk that the troops are there for training the Cuban army in the use of advanced weapons.

The same line was taken earlier Saturday by Khrushchev at a meeting in Moscow with Canadian newspaper publisher Roy Thomson. Thomson said Khrushchev also told him there need be no concern in the United States about a Russian arms buildup in Cuba.

Both Rusk and Kennedy have said at recent news conferences that Khrushchev has promised to remove the troops in "due course." The purpose of the request put forward Saturday was to find out what he means by "due course" and in general to press him to carry out his promise.

Kennedy himself was reported sending a message to Khrushchev on the Cuban problem in advance of Kohler's return.

A-Ban Talks Declassifying Is Demanded

Republicans Say Administration Is Withholding Data

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republican leaders declared Saturday that President Kennedy should declassify secret information on nuclear test ban negotiations with the Russians so the American people can help formulate policy.

The special report was issued as U. S. disarmament chief William C. Foster left for Geneva where 17-nation talks resume Tuesday. It also came a day after the Atomic Energy Commission resumed underground testing at Nevada, firing off several explosions ranging 20 kilotons (20,000 tons of tnt) to one megaton (one million tons of tnt).

The Republicans accused the administration of withholding information on the test talks that is not of a security nature.

FIRST OF SERIES

The report was issued by a special GOP committee on nuclear test negotiations headed by Rep. Craig Hosmer, Calif. Others signing the report — the first of a series — were House GOP leader Charles A. Halleck, Ind., chairman John W. Byrnes, Wis., of the House Republican Policy Committee, and chairman Gerald rd, Mich., of the Republican onference.

"A triple curtain of classification, complexity and credibility shrouds the real answers to test ban questions," the report stated. "The administration appears to proceed on the premise that many things the American people need to know are too secret to trust them with, too complex for them to understand, or too shocking for them to believe."

The report said U. S. policy in negotiating with the Russians should "be formulated from a base of informed discussion amongst the self-governing citizens of our republic."

The committee also urged Kennedy to proclaim that the United States will not declare a moratorium on testing during negotiations.

The committee said that without more information the public cannot determine the answer to the key question: "at this time is any test ban treaty at all in the U. S. national interest."

The report said that on the basis of information available, it could make these conclusions:

"The present basis for negotiations on detection machinery fails to offer realistic probability of detecting violations."

"The present basis for negotiations regarding inspections procedures fails to offer a reasonable opportunity to verify whether cheating has occurred."

Khrushchev Says Alarm Not Justified

Forces In Cuba Said No Reason To Be Worried

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev told Canadian newspaper publisher Roy Thomson Saturday that Americans have no cause for alarm over the continued presence of Soviet forces in Cuba.

Thomson quoted Khrushchev as replying "absolutely not" when asked whether concern in the United States over Soviet troops and weapons still in Cuba was justified.

Khrushchev added, according to Thomson, that the Soviet forces on the Communist island were "weapon instructors," sent there to teach Cubans the use of advanced weapons with which they had been supplied and for no other purpose.

IN KREMLIN

Thomson met with Khrushchev for 2½ hours in the Kremlin. During the discussions, Thomson told newsmen that Khrushchev also:

Said he was not satisfied with the state of current Soviet-American relations.

Indicated he regarded the German problem one of the most crucial in East-West relations.

Said he was "not at all unhappy" about the current dissension among the Western allies following France's torpedoing of Britain's bid for membership in the European Common Market.

Suggested the West not take too much stock in the long-range effects of the current disputes between the Soviet Union and Communist China.

"The Chinese are our friends and always will be," Thomson quoted Khrushchev. "When friends quarrel or disagree, it is not terribly serious."

Two Cabinet Men Resign; Blast Policy

OTTAWA (AP)—Canada's nuclear crisis split Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker's government again Saturday amid signs the nation's senior military men were impatient with his hesitation at accepting U.S. nuclear warheads.

Trade Minister George Hees, a key figure in Diefenbaker's Conservative party, and Acting Defense Minister Pierre Sevigny pulled out of Diefenbaker's caretaker government and denounced his wait-and-see nuclear defense policy as endangering Canada's security and hurting relations with the United States.

PRESSURE

Diefenbaker was coming under increasing pressure from within his own party for Canada's failure to accept nuclear arms as a partner in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and in the North American Air Defense setup.

This issue, kindled by sharp U.S. State Department questioning of Diefenbaker's policy, brought the downfall of the Conservative minority government last Tuesday and forced an election for April 8.

Diefenbaker, who is reported preparing a hard anti-American line for his re-election campaign, called on Gov. Gen. Georges Vanier and said he will fill his cabinet vacancies within 24 hours.

Kassem Said Executed By Firing Squad

No New Fighting Is Reported By Rebel-Held Radio

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI)—Deposed Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassem, who came to power in 1958 by revolt and executions, was shot Saturday by a firing squad of the nation's pro-Nasser revolutionary rulers, the rebel - held Baghdad Radio reported.

The radio, only source of information from Baghdad since young Army and Air Force rebels struck at Kassem's Defense Ministry with Soviet-built jets and tanks Friday, reported no new fighting Saturday.

(But Ankara Radio reported without confirmation fighting in the Iraqi capital between "paratroopers and Communists.")

HELD OUT

The rebels claimed Friday that Kassem was dead, but he or his supporters apparently held out most of the day in fierce fighting for their defense ministry stronghold. Friday night, the rebel broadcasts said the 600 men in the defense ministry, where the bachelor premier kept an apartment and often stayed, were crushed.

The radio said Kassem and three of his "henchmen" were seized by the rebels, speedily tried, "and the executions were carried out by a firing squad this afternoon." Shot with Kassem were his cousin, Col. Fadil El Mahdawy, president of the People's Court, which handed down scores of death sentences; Brig. Wasfi Taher, a known Communist, and Lt. Saman Haddad, a secret police officer.

It was not known who ordered the executions, but presumably the new rebel president, Abdul Salam Aref, gave his consent. Aref, Kassem's former top aide, was once under death sentence himself until Kassem spared him. The action probably cost Kassem his life.

Revolt In Iraq Means Fresh Nasser Glory

CAIRO (AP)—The revolt in Iraq means new glory for Gamal Abdel Nasser and troubles for Middle East kings and sultans whose reigns have their roots in the beginning of history.

There is every indication the overthrow of Iraqi Premier Abdel Kraim Kassem boosts Nasser's dream of Arab unity. The president of the United Arab Republic has preached unity ever since his own revolution in 1952 routed King Farouk from Egypt.

Kassem was one of the stumbling blocks to Nasser's idea. Others include King Hussein of Jordan, King Saud of Saudi Arabia, the republican regime in Syria and Mohammed Reza Shah Pahlevi of Iran.

Nasser scored an important but lesser success in the tiny kingdom of Yemen last September when an army coup upset the monarchy and installed a republican regime friendly to Arab unity.

"Yemen yesterday, Iraq today, and Syria's turn will inevitably come about tomorrow," said one pro-Nasser Arab diplomat.

The sun is expected to play peek - a - boo with the clouds today along with mild readings as the weatherman calls for partly cloudy to cloudy with the high set for 55-65 degrees in the Twin Cities area.

Saturday the mercury overcame an early morning low of 23 degrees to peak at 57 degrees about 4 p.m. Tonight, the low is predicted to be in the 40s.

Rain is expected in the area Monday, but warmer temperatures are forecast. Southerly winds of 5 to 15 miles per hour will flow the vicinity today.

Gunmen Rob Private Club; Kill Member

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — A private club protected by barbed wire was invaded by three gunmen Friday night. Taking a page from gangland's heyday, they robbed its members and machinegunned one to death.

STEAL AUTO

The bandits fled the isolated clubhouse in adjacent Nansemond County in a stolen automobile shortly after midnight, police said.

The entrance to the club is guarded by an 8-foot-high chain link fence topped by barbed wire. The fence flanks a 30-foot sidewalk leading up to the building's only door.

Investigators said the gunmen apparently lay in wait at the club and when the first member arrived they forced him to admit them. The club members were robbed and held captive as they entered.

Police officers described the club as a gambling place whose tight security previously had hampered raids. One officer who declined to be identified by name said the club had been under surveillance for some time.

At least 10 to 12 members of the club reportedly were robbed by the gunmen, but there was no indication of the amount of money involved.

There also were varying accounts from witnesses of the circumstances which led to Jacobson's slaying. He reportedly was shot at least once and possibly several more times.

IMMUNIZATION TODAY

Victory Over Polio Day Is Scheduled

Officials of the Ouachita Parish Medical Society and the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce closed out preparations for "Victory Over Polio" day in the parish Saturday and urged Ouachita Parish residents to be immunized against polio today.

Sabin oral vaccine will be available at 29 clinics in Ouachita Parish today after 12 noon, manned by Jaycees, doctors and nurses, assisted by Boy Scouts.

The vaccine will be administered on sugar cubes. Officials have said that the dose is tasteless and that if 85 per cent of the local residents take advantage of the immunization, polio will be driven out of the parish.

Everyone should take the vaccine, according to Dr. Roy Kelly, medical chairman. Children, from three months up and adults of every age will be given the vaccine. Persons over 40 may not be as susceptible, but they still are carriers of the virus and can give it to someone else, Dr. Kelly said.

Bus rides to clinics are free.

Families with minor children should fill out consent forms before going to the clinic — to hasten the flow of citizens through the lines. Consent forms were published in Saturday's newspaper. Children brought them home from school, also.

College students should take or mail consent forms home. They cannot get the vaccine without a consent form. A special clinic for college students will be set up later in the week.

Unconsious Mother Dies

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—An accident while Christmas shopping 781 days earlier resulted in death Friday for Sharon Jones. She never knew she became the mother of a healthy son.

Seven months later a son, Eddie, was born by Caesarian section in Abilene, where the family lived.

Report Of Red Subversion On Latins Planned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A report on the scope of Communist subversion in Latin America will be aired before the Organization of American States (OAS) Monday, it was learned Saturday.

The report is the product of a 10-month inquiry by a special security committee into subversive acts in Latin America inspired by the Fidel Castro Communist regime in Cuba.

It will be presented at a private session of two OAS commissions charged with countering Communist activities south of the border.

Meantime, a House subcommittee on inter-American affairs is preparing to hold hearings "into the nature of the Castro-Communist subversive apparatus in the hemisphere."

Chairman Armistead Selden, D-Ala., told Congress this week that "Castro-Communist agents are actively formenting violence and Soviet - style revolutions" from Cuba.

Diplomats working close to the security committee said the report makes a strong denunciation of subversive activities promoted by the Castro regime.

It also recommends ways be found quickly to curb travel by Castro-Communist followers from the other Latin American countries to Cuba.

Several countries, including the United States, Venezuela, Guatemala and the Dominican Republic, have given information to the security commission showing the Castro regime favors violence in ousting Latin American governments.

Talks On U.S. Bases In Spain Are Postponed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The start of negotiations on a new lease for U.S. military bases in Spain has been postponed, the Pentagon said Saturday.

The official explanation here is that both sides need more time to get ready for the talks. But there is evidently deeper significance to the indefinite postponement of Deputy Secretary of Defense Roswell L. Gilpatrick's scheduled visit to Madrid.

Signs point to a developing three-way tug of war among the U.S. government, Spanish dictator Francisco Franco and French President Charles de Gaulle.

At stake are three huge airdromes, a naval base at Rota and communications facilities. The United States leases them under a 10-year agreement that expires in September. In exchange, Spain has received about $1.5 billion in U.S. economic and military assistance.

Gilpatric was to have arrived in Madrid next Friday to discuss renewal of the agreement. Reports have been circulating in the Spanish capital for a week that the Pentagon official has been running into difficulties in trying to set up interviews with top Spanish officials.

Finally, the U.S. Embassy reported, "It appears neither side is yet ready to start talking." Saturday, the Defense Department said Gilpatric's trip will be delayed for a while "by mutual agreement of both countries." No new date has been set, a Pentagon spokesman said.

New Helicopter Type Developed

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp. says it has developed a new type helicopter which a pilot can fly with his hands off the controls.

The copter, XH51A, is a five-place craft whose rotor spins like a giant gyroscope. Its average speed is 200 m.p.h.

MEN ARE RELIEVED

Indian Women Go Off Gold Standard

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Indian women went off the gold standard Saturday and husbands and fathers breathed sighs of relief.

An order went into effect banning the sale or manufacture of jewelry containing more than 14 carats of gold. Gold necklaces, chains and rings prized by Indian women for centuries as a form of security as well as beauty will no longer be available.

On the other hand, husbands no longer have to decorate their wives in gold and fathers no longer need bestow dowry gifts of pure gold for their daughters.

The order was one of several steps taken by the government to try to stop gold smuggling and turn savings into productive channels.

To ease the shock to India's women, who also vote, the government is allowing the sale of 14-carat gold to continue.

20TH CENTURY HASSLE

Modern Bowman Off To Dungeon

LONDON (AP) — A brooding bowman named Brian was marched off to the dungeons Saturday for bringing a bow and arrow into a 20th century hassle—over, of all things, a job at a garage.

The acrimonious and anachronistic archer was Brian R. Williams, 31. Henry V could have used him at Agincourt.

But Agincourt was in 1415 and Williams appeared Saturday morning in another court, that of the Clerkenwell Borough magistrates. There he was charged with being in possession of an offensive weapon, i.e. a steel bow, plus arrows.

Detective Sgt. John Tebbutt said Williams was fired last week from his job in a garage after an argument with the foreman.

The following day, Tebbutt testified, Williams appeared, complete with bow and arrows, outside the office of the garage manager, Harry Bradley.

"Mr. Bradley," said Tebbutt, "was looking at some papers. An assistant standing next to him suddenly exclaimed, 'Good Lord, here is Williams and he has got a bow and arrow.'

"At this point, an arrow pierced the glass surrounding Mr. Bradley's office. Mr. Bradley stood up, but the assistant said, 'For heaven's sake, duck.'

"Mr. Bradley did so, and an arrow pierced the glass approximately where his head and shoulders would have been. Mr. Bradley grabbed the phone and lay on the floor dialing for the police."

WITHDRAWAL QUESTIONED

Soviet Official Still 'Mum' On Cuba Buildup

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States asked Russia Saturday to say when it plans to withdraw Soviet military forces from Cuba.

The question was put to Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin by Secretary of State Dean Rusk in a 75-minute meeting at the State Department.

Rusk had met with President Kennedy at the White House earlier in the day. U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler participated in the White House conference and is expected to press the troop issue with the Soviet government when he gets back to his post in Moscow next Thursday.

EXPECTED

Dobrynin, U.S. informants reported, was unable to give Rusk an immediate answer. That has been expected and the query in effect was a request from Kennedy through Rusk to Soviet Premier Khrushchev for an explanation of his policy on the 17,000 troops and military technicians retained in Cuba following the crisis of last October.

Dobrynin reportedly told Rusk that the troops are there for training the Cuban army in the use of advanced weapons.

Kennedy himself was reported sending a message to Khrushchev on the Cuban problem in advance of Kohler's return.

A-Ban Talks Declassifying Is Demanded

Victory Over Polio Day Is Scheduled

Officials of the Ouachita Parish Medical Society and the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce closed out preparations for "Victory Over Polio" day in the parish Saturday and urged Ouachita Parish residents to be immunized against polio today.

Sabin oral vaccine will be available at 29 clinics in Ouachita Parish today after 12 noon, manned by Jaycees, doctors and nurses, assisted by Boy Scouts.

The vaccine will be administered on sugar cubes. Officials have said that the dose is tasteless and that if 85 per cent of the local residents take advantage of the immunization, polio will be driven out of the parish.

Everyone should take the vaccine, according to Dr. Roy Kelly, medical chairman. Children, from three months up and adults of every age will be given the vaccine. Persons over 40 may not be as susceptible, but they still are carriers of the virus and can give it to someone else, Dr. Kelly said.

Bus rides to clinics are free.

Families with minor children should fill out consent forms before going to the clinic — to hasten the flow of citizens through the lines. Consent forms were published in Saturday's newspaper. Children brought them home from school, also.

College students should take or mail consent forms home. They cannot get the vaccine without a consent form. A special clinic for college students will be set up later in the week.

Shut - ins should call FA 2-1491

and leave their names and addresses. A mobile clinic will take care of them later in the week.

Altogether, nine parishes in northeast Louisiana are participating in the program. They are Ouachita, Franklin, Jackson, Winn, West Carroll, Morehouse, Caldwell, Tensas and Richland.

Residents in parishes not participating are invited to visit clinics in the parishes that are administering the vaccine.

Doctors said that unless nearly everyone participates, the campaign will not be effective. Even if you have had the Salk shots, you still need the oral vaccine, Dr. Kelly said.

Today's Type I vaccine is only one of three doses needed. Type II follows on Sunday, March 31, and Type III follows on Sunday, May 19.

Thousands of persons throughout the nine - parish area have put thousands of man-hours into preparing the program, Jaycee chairman Joe Maggio said. Most doctors have concluded that if the citizens don't do it, the federal government will, he added.

Unconsious Mother Dies

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—An accident while Christmas shopping 781 days earlier resulted in death Friday for Sharon Jones. She never knew she became the mother of a healthy son.

Mrs. Jones, 25 at her death, was in an auto collision and never regained consciousness, although there were no other indications of injury.

Seven months later a son, Eddie, was born by Caesarian section in Abilene, where the family lived.

Report Of Red Subversion On Latins Planned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A report on the scope of Communist subversion in Latin America will be aired before the Organization of American States (OAS) Monday, it was learned Saturday.

The report is the product of a 10-month inquiry by a special security committee into subversive acts in Latin America inspired by the Fidel Castro Communist regime in Cuba.

It will be presented at a private session of two OAS commissions charged with countering Communist activities south of the border.

Meantime, a House subcommittee on inter-American affairs is preparing to hold hearings "into the nature of the Castro-Communist subversive apparatus in the hemisphere."

Chairman Armistead Selden, D-Ala., told Congress this week that "Castro-Communist agents are actively formenting violence and Soviet - style revolutions" from Cuba.

Diplomats working close to the security committee said the report makes a strong denunciation of subversive activities promoted by the Castro regime.

It also recommends ways be found quickly to curb travel by Castro-Communist followers from the other Latin American countries to Cuba.

Several countries, including the United States, Venezuela, Guatemala and the Dominican Republic, have given information to the security commission showing the Castro regime favors violence in ousting Latin American governments.

Talks On U.S. Bases In Spain Are Postponed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The start of negotiations on a new lease for U.S. military bases in Spain has been postponed, the Pentagon said Saturday.

The official explanation here is that both sides need more time to get ready for the talks. But there is evidently deeper significance to the indefinite postponement of Deputy Secretary of Defense Roswell L. Gilpatrick's scheduled visit to Madrid.

Signs point to a developing three-way tug of war among the U.S. government, Spanish dictator Francisco Franco and French President Charles de Gaulle.

At stake are three huge airdromes, a naval base at Rota and communications facilities. The United States leases them under a 10-year agreement that expires in September. In exchange, Spain has received about $1.5 billion in U.S. economic and military assistance.

Gilpatric was to have arrived in Madrid next Friday to discuss renewal of the agreement. Reports have been circulating in the Spanish capital for a week that the Pentagon official has been running into difficulties in trying to set up interviews with top Spanish officials.

Finally, the U.S. Embassy reported, "It appears neither side is yet ready to start talking." Saturday, the Defense Department said Gilpatric's trip will be delayed for a while "by mutual agreement of both countries." No new date has been set, a Pentagon spokesman said.

New Helicopter Type Developed

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp. says it has developed a new type helicopter which a pilot can fly with his hands off the controls.

The copter, XH51A, is a five-place craft whose rotor spins like a giant gyroscope. Its average speed is 200 m.p.h.

MEN ARE RELIEVED

Indian Women Go Off Gold Standard

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Indian women went off the gold standard Saturday and husbands and fathers breathed sighs of relief.

An order went into effect banning the sale or manufacture of jewelry containing more than 14 carats of gold. Gold necklaces, chains and rings prized by Indian women for centuries as a form of security as well as beauty will no longer be available.

On the other hand, husbands no longer have to decorate their wives in gold and fathers no longer need bestow dowry gifts of pure gold for their daughters.

The order was one of several steps taken by the government to try to stop gold smuggling and turn savings into productive channels.

To ease the shock to India's women, who also vote, the government is allowing the sale of 14-carat gold to continue.

20TH CENTURY HASSLE

Modern Bowman Off To Dungeon

LONDON (AP) — A brooding bowman named Brian was marched off to the dungeons Saturday for bringing a bow and arrow into a 20th century hassle—over, of all things, a job at a garage.

The acrimonious and anachronistic archer was Brian R. Williams, 31. Henry V could have used him at Agincourt.

But Agincourt was in 1415 and Williams appeared Saturday morning in another court, that of the Clerkenwell Borough magistrates. There he was charged with being in possession of an offensive weapon, i.e. a steel bow, plus arrows.

Detective Sgt. John Tebbutt said Williams was fired last week from his job in a garage after an argument with the foreman.

The following day, Tebbutt testified, Williams appeared, complete with bow and arrows, outside the office of the garage manager, Harry Bradley.

"Mr. Bradley," said Tebbutt, "was looking at some papers. An assistant standing next to him suddenly exclaimed, 'Good Lord, here is Williams and he has got a bow and arrow.'

"At this point, an arrow pierced the glass surrounding Mr. Bradley's office. Mr. Bradley stood up, but the assistant said, 'For heaven's sake, duck.'

"Mr. Bradley did so, and an arrow pierced the glass approximately where his head and shoulders would have been. Mr. Bradley grabbed the phone and lay on the floor dialing for the police."

Red Commandos Strike Again In Venezuela War

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — Communist commandos, working with military precisions, overpowered three guards Saturday and burned down a $5 million Sears Roebuck warehouse.

It was the latest Communist move in a stepped-up terrorism campaign in a declared "total war" against President Romulo Betancourt in an effort to force the president to cancel his scheduled Feb. 18 visit to the United States.

The raiders, identified by police as an urban commando unit of the Communist "Armed Forces of Liberation" (FAL), snipped their way through an outer fence to capture three guards and seize a delivery truck. They used the truck to smash down a garage door to procure inflammable fuels which they used to destroy the building.

Armed with tommyguns, they took two guards by surprise and waylaid the third when he returned from an inspection round of the premises.

All were bound and gagged and left in the burning building. They managed to free themselves and escape.

Police said the terrorists knew the lay-out of the warehouse perfectly, including where to obtain the incendiary materials.

Seaman Is Killed As Huge Wave Sweeps Carrier

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A huge wave swept four men from the nuclear carrier Enterprise into the Atlantic Friday. One man was killed, another is missing, and a third was injured.

Seven other crewmen working on the aircraft elevator below the flight deck were injured, but did not go overboard.

Three of the men washed into the sea were picked up by a helicopter and an escorting destroyer. The fourth man is missing and presumed dead.

The missing man is Jesse B. Forney Jr. of Norfolk. The Navy said William L. Johnson was dead when picked up by the destroyer. He was from Zion, Ill.

The Navy said the Enterprise, which left Norfolk Wednesday for the Mediterranean, was making a routine shift of aircraft on the flight deck.

Without warning a huge wave engulfed the No. 1 elevator where the men were working. The elevator runs from the flight deck to the hangar deck and is exposed to the sea.

EASIER DIVORCES

Administration Blamed For Alliance Disarray

Rockefeller, considered a top possibility for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination, held a news conference in Chicago shortly after he arrived from Albany, N.Y., for a fund-raising dinner.

He said, "In the space of two months the United States has been embroiled in heated public controversy with Great Britain on the Skybolt issue, with Canada on the nuclear defense of North America issue, and with France on the organization of Europe and the defense of the Atlantic area.

"In less than one year the American government has also publicly quarreled with Chancellor Adenauer over negotiations on Berlin and has affronted the Netherlands by placing expediency over principle in West New Guinea.

"It is indisputably in the interest of the United States that West Europe by strong and self-reliant—an interest consistently upheld by two previous administrations since World War II," Rockefeller said.

"It is in the interest of the national security of the United States—and in the interest of for the achievement of positive ends.

"While this administration has paid lip service to these principles," Rockefeller said, "we must realize that an important reason for the disarray in the West is the administration's failure to live up to these principles."

Rockefeller told newsmen he thinks a very serious threat to U.S. and Western Hemisphere security exists in Cuba.

"The Communist government of Cuba," he said, "is a center for subversion of the entire Western Hemisphere.

"The people have got to have the facts."

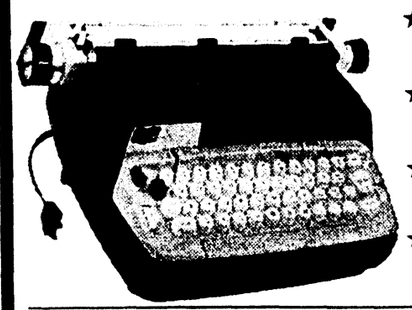

Asked if he thought the Kennedy administration has been less than truthful about the Cuban arms and personnel buildings, Rockefeller said, "I think "forthright" is a better word."

Rockefeller was in Chicago to address a $100-a-plate GOP fund-raising dinner Saturday night.

Deadline Near For Getting Banquet Tickets

Deadline for making reservations for the Monroe Chamber of Commerce's annual banquet meeting, scheduled here next Thursday night, is Tuesday at 5 p.m.

Chamber President J. H. Scogin Jr. said Friday that about 250 advance tickets had already been sold for the banquet which is set for 7:30 p.m. at the Paragon Club.

He urged members of the chamber to make their reservations at the chamber office before the Tuesday deadline.

Scogin said that only about 150 tickets remain to be sold since arrangements for the banquet are for a capacity of 400.

Speaker for the banquet will be Calvin D. Johnson, director of customer relations for the Remington Rand division of Sperry Rand Corporation and former U.S. Congressman from Illinois.

David C. Silverstein is serving as chairman of the attendance committee for the banquet, while Conway Crossland and Howard Griffin are co-chairmen of the arrangements committee.

The 26-year-old officer is married to the former Renate Katharina Hautz, has three boys and a girl and lives on Crescent Drive. He served in the U.S. Air force and attended college at NLSC. He has had police training through the LSU In-Service police courses.

Administration Blamed For Alliance Disarray

Rockefeller, considered a top possibility for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination, held a news conference in Chicago shortly after he arrived from Albany, N.Y., for a fund-raising dinner.

He said, "In the space of two months the United States has been embroiled in heated public controversy with Great Britain on the Skybolt issue, with Canada on the nuclear defense of North America issue, and with France on the organization of Europe and the defense of the Atlantic area.

"In less than one year the American government has also publicly quarreled with Chancellor Adenauer over negotiations on Berlin and has affronted the Netherlands by placing expediency over principle in West New Guinea.

"It is indisputably in the interest of the United States that West Europe by strong and self-reliant—an interest consistently upheld by two previous administrations since World War II," Rockefeller said.

"It is in the interest of the national security of the United States—and in the interest of Europe—that Europe share in its own defense and work with us for the achievement of positive ends.

"While this administration has paid lip service to these principles," Rockefeller said, "we must realize that an important reason for the disarray in the West is the administration's failure to live up to these principles."

Rockefeller told newsmen he thinks a very serious threat to U.S. and Western Hemisphere security exists in Cuba.

"The Communist government of Cuba," he said, "is a center for subversion of the entire Western Hemisphere.

"The people have got to have the facts."

Asked if he thought the Kennedy administration has been less than truthful about the Cuban arms and personnel buildings, Rockefeller said, "I think "forthright" is a better word."

Rockefeller was in Chicago to address a $100-a-plate GOP fund-raising dinner Saturday night.

Three hours of undergraduate credit can be earned in history and three in geography while the graduate credit can be earned in either history or geography.

Information on the tour and application blanks may be secured by contacting McCann or Buchanan at the college.

Cost of the tour is $297 per person, which includes everything but meals. A $50 deposit is required with the application with the balance due July 5.

Other stops scheduled on the bus tour include Taos, N. M., Albuquerque, the Petrified Forest, Hoover Dam, Beverly Hills, Los Angeles, San Diego, Yuma, Tucson, El Paso, Del Rio, Laredo, Monterrey, Guadalupe and the Mexican pyramids. Seaman Is Killed As Huge Wave Sweeps Carrier

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A huge wave swept four men from the nuclear carrier Enterprise into the Atlantic Friday. One man was killed, another is missing, and a third was injured.

Seven other crewmen working on the aircraft elevator below the flight deck were injured, but did not go overboard.

Three of the men washed into the sea were picked up by a helicopter and an escorting destroyer. The fourth man is missing and presumed dead.

The missing man is Jesse B. Forney Jr. of Norfolk. The Navy said William L. Johnson was dead when picked up by the destroyer. He was from Zion, Ill.

The Navy said the Enterprise, which left Norfolk Wednesday for the Mediterranean, was making a routine shift of aircraft on the flight deck.

Without warning a huge wave engulfed the No. 1 elevator where the men were working. The elevator runs from the flight deck to the hangar deck and is exposed to the sea.

Khrushchev Says Alarm Not Justified

ish delegation seeking to drum up additional Soviet-British trade. A number of the British businessmen accompanied Thomson to the meeting with Khrushchev.

Thomson said Khrushchev told him the cold war would continue as long as the German problem was not settled. The premier indicated strongly that he considered the question of a divided Germany and an unsigned German peace treaty as crucial problems in the entire climate of East-West relations.

Thomson said Khrushchev told him that if some agreement on Germany could be worked out it would be possible for West Berliners to live as they "see fit."

The publisher said Khrushchev appeared to envisage a system of free access to the divided city for the Western allies and he did not exclude the eventual reunification of Germany based on a settlement by the Germans themselves. This has been a long standing Soviet position.

Thomson said the impression was that Khrushchev is interested in a German peace treaty signed by both East and Western powers.

"At no time did he indicate he wanted a German peace treaty signed by only Russia," Thomson told the newsmen.

But Thomson added Khrushchev made it clear that there could be no thaw in the cold war until the German problem was resolved.

The conversations ranged over many international issues and developments, Thomson said.

Another British businessman who attended the meeting said that while Khrushchev obviously was pleased by the repercussions in the West to French blackballing of the British common market bid, the premier described French President Charles de Gaulle's methods as "crude."

ON FEDERAL HIGHWAYS

State's Interstate Progress Is Noted

World Capitol Bureau

WASHINGTON — Louisiana has completed 57.6 miles of the 682.6 miles of superhighways assigned to it under the national interstate and defense highways program scheduled for completion in 1972.

Completed portions in the state cost a total of $125,800,000 as of last Dec. 31, of which the Federal Government paid $111,400,000.

The Bureau of Public Roads, in a progress report on the entire system, said 6.3 additional miles of highway in Louisiana have been improved to meet present traffic requirements; 171:5 miles are now under construction; and 373.9 miles have reached the engineering or right-of-way acquisition stage.

Nationally, over 14,300 miles of the 41,000-mile interstate system are open to traffic, including 2,307 miles of toll roads, bridges and tunnels. Another 4,300 miles are currently under construction.

Designed to meet 1975 traffic needs, the system, when completed, will link all major cities with limited-access highway.

Commenting on the latest resignations, Harkness said, "I'm not a bit surprised. I would not be surprised if there are more resignations."

The Toronto Telegram said it learned two more Cabinet ministers had submitted their resignations to Diefenbaker on Saturday morning and that they were accepted. It identified them as Transport Minister Leon Balcer and Sen. Wallace McCutcheon, minister without portfolio.

In his resignation, Sevigny indicated Diefenbaker is at odds with Canada's senior military officers over nuclear arms.

"I cannot accept your opinions concerning our senior service officers," the assistant defense minister wrote Diefenbaker. "They are able, experienced men who are dedicated to the cause of peace through the medium of a strong defense and they deserve our respect and support."

"Our government has commitments towards NATO and NORAD. I believe that I could give to our Canadian people a sound explanation of our defense policy but it became clear to me that this would be impossible under the present attitude.

"Any so-called pro-Canadian policy based on this event (the U.S. State Department criticism) can only be interpreted as anti-Americanism and manufactured electoral propaganda. Action of this sort will be ruinous for Canada economically and could seriously impair the unity of the free world in matters of defense."

Opposition leader, etc, 7th graf ta34.

Opposition leader Lester B. Pearson of the Liberal party, Diefenbaker's chief opponent in the election, said the resignations confirm "deep divisions within the Cabinet which would appear to be threatening a breakup of the government." The Conservative government remains in power in a caretaker role until the elections.

T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic party said the resignations "underline the fact that the government has had no clear-cut policy because it couldn't agree on one."

In their letters of resignation, Hees and Sevigny denounced any anti-American attitude in the campaign or in the dispute over nuclear weapons. They indicated they believed the United States was right in its demands on Canada to accept nuclear weapons.

Hees, chairman of the Conservative party caucus who declared only Thursday the party was united for victory in April, said he subsequently found no evidence that Diefenbaker would change his attitude.

Sevigny, who assumed his post after Harkness resigned, called Diefenbaker's defense policy ambiguous and said he agreed with Harkness on the matter of nuclear weapons.

The Toronto Telegram reported that it had learned Diefenbaker decided at a party meeting Thursday that his campaign would be based on the barring of nuclear weapons on Canadian soil but permitting Canadian forces in NATO to have them if necessary.

In his letter, Hees charged Diefenbaker shirked a commitment to provide security for Canada by hedging on the nuclear weapons issue.

"I have stated clearly that I consider the present attitude of the government cannot but lead to a deterioration of our relations with the United States," he said.

Heart Disease Fight Discussed By Dr. Danti

"Louisiana and the Fight Against Heart Disease" was the discussion of Dr. August G. Danti, associate professor of pharmacy at Northeast Louisiana State College, at the North Louisiana Area Dietetic Association meeting this week.

Dr. Danti, who is serving as vice president of the Ouachita Heart Council and a member of the State Wide Speakers Bureau, indicated that the general public must recognize that the problem of heart and circulatory disease is our state's and nation's gravest health problem.

Fatalities from the cardiovascular diseases accounts for 54 per cent of all deaths from all cause in the U.S. each year, he pointed out. Last year more than 14,000 Louisiana residents died of the diseases of the heart and blood vessels — more than all other diseases combined.

"In Ouachita Parish, 503 of the 906 deaths from all causes were due to cardiovascular diseases. Scientists have increased our life expectancy from 48 years in 1900 to about 69 years today," he added. "Thus, more of us are living into the advanced age bracket in which the heart diseases normally take a greater toll. It must be emphasized, however, that heart diseases have no respect for age — the newly born to the aged being victims."

OUTMATCHED?

"Little fellows" may have odds against them, but they aren't necessarily outmatched...

Louisiana's Electric Cooperatives are "little fellows" in the gigantic electric power business. They are owned by thousands of "little fellows" who organized these non-profit, private enterprises when they couldn't get rural electricty any other way. Working together, they stand tall and strong . . . NEVER OUTMATCHED!

Khrushchev Says Alarm Not Justified

ish delegation seeking to drum up additional Soviet-British trade. A number of the British businessmen accompanied Thomson to the meeting with Khrushchev.

Thomson said Khrushchev told him the cold war would continue as long as the German problem was not settled. The premier indicated strongly that he considered the question of a divided Germany and an unsigned German peace treaty as crucial problems in the entire climate of East-West relations.

Thomson said Khrushchev told him that if some agreement on Germany could be worked out it would be possible for West Berliners to live as they "see fit."

The publisher said Khrushchev appeared to envisage a system of free access to the divided city for the Western allies and he did not exclude the eventual reunification of Germany based on a settlement by the Germans themselves. This has been a long standing Soviet position.

Thomson said the impression was that Khrushchev is interested in a German peace treaty signed by both East and Western powers.

"At no time did he indicate he wanted a German peace treaty signed by only Russia," Thomson told the newsmen.

But Thomson added Khrushchev made it clear that there could be no thaw in the cold war until the German problem was resolved.

The conversations ranged over many international issues and developments, Thomson said.

Another British businessman who attended the meeting said that while Khrushchev obviously was pleased by the repercussions in the West to French blackballing of the British common market bid, the premier described French President Charles de Gaulle's methods as "crude."

ON FEDERAL HIGHWAYS

State's Interstate Progress Is Noted

World Capitol Bureau

WASHINGTON — Louisiana has completed 57.6 miles of the 682.6 miles of superhighways assigned to it under the national interstate and defense highways program scheduled for completion in 1972.

Completed portions in the state cost a total of $125,800,000 as of last Dec. 31, of which the Federal Government paid $111,400,000.

The Bureau of Public Roads, in a progress report on the entire system, said 6.3 additional miles of highway in Louisiana have been improved to meet present traffic requirements; 171:5 miles are now under construction; and 373.9 miles have reached the engineering or right-of-way acquisition stage.

Nationally, over 14,300 miles of the 41,000-mile interstate system are open to traffic, including 2,307 miles of toll roads, bridges and tunnels. Another 4,300 miles are currently under construction.

Designed to meet 1975 traffic needs, the system, when completed, will link all major cities with limited-access highway.

Heart Disease Fight Discussed By Dr. Danti

"Louisiana and the Fight Against Heart Disease" was the discussion of Dr. August G. Danti, associate professor of pharmacy at Northeast Louisiana State College, at the North Louisiana Area Dietetic Association meeting this week.

Dr. Danti, who is serving as vice president of the Ouachita Heart Council and a member of the State Wide Speakers Bureau, indicated that the general public must recognize that the problem of heart and circulatory disease is our state's and nation's gravest health problem.

Fatalities from the cardiovascular diseases accounts for 54 per cent of all deaths from all cause in the U.S. each year, he pointed out. Last year more than 14,000 Louisiana residents died of the diseases of the heart and blood vessels — more than all other diseases combined.

"In Ouachita Parish, 503 of the 906 deaths from all causes were due to cardiovascular diseases. Scientists have increased our life expectancy from 48 years in 1900 to about 69 years today," he added. "Thus, more of us are living into the advanced age bracket in which the heart diseases normally take a greater toll. It must be emphasized, however, that heart diseases have no respect for age — the newly born to the aged being victims."

clear warheads long ago.

Commenting on the latest resignations, Harkness said, "I'm not a bit surprised. I would not be surprised if there are more resignations."

The Toronto Telegram said it learned two more Cabinet ministers had submitted their resignations to Diefenbaker on Saturday morning and that they were accepted. It identified them as Transport Minister Leon Balcer and Sen. Wallace McCutcheon, minister without portfolio.

In his resignation, Sevigny indicated Diefenbaker is at odds with Canada's senior military officers over nuclear arms.

"I cannot accept your opinions concerning our senior service officers," the assistant defense minister wrote Diefenbaker. "They are able, experienced men who are dedicated to the cause of peace through the medium of a strong defense and they deserve our respect and support."

"Our government has commitments towards NATO and NORAD. I believe that I could give to our Canadian people a sound explanation of our defense policy but it became clear to me that this would be impossible under the present attitude.

"Any so-called pro-Canadian policy based on this event (the U.S. State Department criticism) can only be interpreted as anti-Americanism and manufactured electoral propaganda. Action of this sort will be ruinous for Canada economically and could seriously impair the unity of the free world in matters of defense."

Opposition leader, etc, 7th graf ta34.

Opposition leader Lester B. Pearson of the Liberal party, Diefenbaker's chief opponent in the election, said the resignations confirm "deep divisions within the Cabinet which would appear to be threatening a breakup of the government." The Conservative government remains in power in a caretaker role until the elections.

T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic party said the resignations "underline the fact that the government has had no clear-cut policy because it couldn't agree on one."

In their letters of resignation, Hees and Sevigny denounced any anti-American attitude in the campaign or in the dispute over nuclear weapons. They indicated they believed the United States was right in its demands on Canada to accept nuclear weapons.

Hees, chairman of the Conservative party caucus who declared only Thursday the party was united for victory in April, said he subsequently found no evidence that Diefenbaker would change his attitude.

Sevigny, who assumed his post after Harkness resigned, called Diefenbaker's defense policy ambiguous and said he agreed with Harkness on the matter of nuclear weapons.

The Toronto Telegram reported that it had learned Diefenbaker decided at a party meeting Thursday that his campaign would be based on the barring of nuclear weapons on Canadian soil but permitting Canadian forces in NATO to have them if necessary.

In his letter, Hees charged Diefenbaker shirked a commitment to provide security for Canada by hedging on the nuclear weapons issue.

"I have stated clearly that I consider the present attitude of the government cannot but lead to a deteriorationg of our relations with the United States," he said.

Tax Debate On Cuts Said Months Away

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., said Saturday he does not see how his Finance Committee can get President Kennedy's tax bill to the floor for debate until after Labor Day.

Byrd said in an interview this estimate is based on the assumption that the measure will clear the House and reach his group in June. He said he has been told this is the earliest possible time.

The length of the Finance Committee's hearings will depend in part on the shape the bill is in when it passes the House, he said, adding that in any event several weeks will be required.

The committee began its hearings last year on Kennedy's tax revision bill April 2 and voted it out 4½ months later, on Aug. 16 Byrd noted.

"And the bill this year affects many more people than the one we considered last year," he emphasized.

If Byrd's committee should receive the bill on June 1 and take the same time that it did on the 1962 measure, it would be mid-October before the bill would reach the Senate.

Byrd voiced strong opposition to the President's 1963 tax-cutting proposals when they were submitted, and said Saturday he is more firm than ever in this position.

He reiterated that he would not support any tax cut unless it were accompanied by corresponding reductions in federal spending.

Byrd said he has received support for this stand in hundreds of letters sent to him from all parts of the country. He remarked that he is surprised that the proposed tax cut does not have more appeal.

"I cannot recall but one letter which favored the bill as it was submitted," he said.

Byrd added he understands several other senators are receiving similar mail.

Kennedy's tax recommendations call for cuts totalling $13.6 billion for individuals and corporations to take effect over three years.

These would be offset in part by various tax-law changes which would boost revenues by $3.3 billion.

A check of several Finance Committee members disclosed a widespread opinion, ranging from Byrd's view to general approval of the entire package by Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill.

Many of the members express doubts about the revenue-raising provisions, but some form of tax cut appears to have extensive support.

Byrd said he would not speculate at all as to what his committee might do.

MISS SALLIE FARRELL, state librarian, is shown with a Louisiana map showing growth of parish library development since 1925 when the Louisiana Library Commission (now Louisiana State Library) first began extension work. Fifty-six parishes in Louisiana now have parish libraries. All but four of these started as demonstration libraries. Fifty-one are locally supported, five are still in the demonstration stage, including the library in Lincoln Parish which opened in October. Two more parishes—Bienville and St. Landry—are scheduled for demonstration in 1965.

Latest Cold Wave Remains Over Area

By United Press International

The latest in a long series of winter cold waves drove temperatures well below the zero mark in the nation's Northeast Saturday.

Sub-zero readings ranged from the upper Great Lakes to the East Coast. Freezing temperatures touched down into the Gulf states and Oklahoma and westward into the Rocky Mountains.

A slow-moving storm deposited light snow over parts of Nebraska and was expected to move eastward into the Appalachians by Saturday night.

Forecasters alerted Californians to a storm churning off the Pacific Coast.

The storm, edging slowly toward the mainland, was expected to bring rain and high winds to central and northern California before the day was out.

Gale force winds were forecast from Point Conception, Calif., to Cape Blanco, Ore. Rain in the area may be locally heavy, forecasters said.

Two inches of snow fell in northeastern Nebraska and lower south Dakota. The storm could dump up to three inches in some sections as it moves eastward, the U.S. Weather Bureau said.

Astronauts Given Offer For Stories

NEW YORK (AP) — A publishing company has offered the nation's 16 astronauts and estimated $3.2 million for their personal stories on future space flights, the New York Times News Service said Saturday.

The Times story reported:

The offer has been made by Field Enterprises Educational Corp., publisher of World Book Encyclopaedia. It also includes a $100,000 insurance policy for each spaceman, and the guarantee of lifetime employment on retirement from government service.

Officials of the Field company acknowledged that the offer had been made and discussions were being held with C. Leo De Orsey, a Washington lawyer who has represented the seven Mercury astronauts, and Harry A. Batten, an advertising man from Philadelphia. Batten represents the nine new astronauts selected last year.

The talks were reported in the "amorphous stage," by Field officials.

Mercury astronauts received payment for their exclusive personal stories about the first manned orbital flights. But the Field offer far exceeds that made to the original seven, the service said.

The present $500,000 contract between Life magazine and the original astronauts extends only through the lifetime of Project Mercury.

Pakistan-India Talks Said At Critical Stage

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI)—Talks between Pakistan and India on the future of Kashmir have reached a "crucial stage for this round", a Pakistan official said.

But there were danger signals in India's other border dispute. The Communist New China news agency, monitored in London, charged that Indian troops intruded into the Spanggur Lake area of Communist-held Tibet 11 times between Dec. 4 and Jan. 20, calling this "sabotage" of the cease-fire along the Sino - Indian border.

New China said the Chinese Foreign Ministry protested the alleged intrusions to India, warning Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's government to "consider all the consequences that may result from the intrusions by Indian troops."

The Kashmir talks now are discussing the question of partitoning the state, which lies between the northern borders of India and Pakistan.

A Pakistan spokesman said his delegation now expects India to produce maps and draw the lines of the proposed partition. For the past 15 years, Pakistan has controlled about one-third of the state and India the rest, with the border the 1948 cease-fire line.

Tax Debate On Cuts Said Months Away

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., said Saturday he does not see how his Finance Committee can get President Kennedy's tax bill to the floor for debate until after Labor Day.

Byrd said in an interview this estimate is based on the assumption that the measure will clear the House and reach his group in June. He said he has been told this is the earliest possible time.

The length of the Finance Committee's hearings will depend in part on the shape the bill is in when it passes the House, he said, adding that in any event several weeks will be required.

The committee began its hearings last year on Kennedy's tax revision bill April 2 and voted it out 4½ months later, on Aug. 16 Byrd noted.

"And the bill this year affects many more people than the one we considered last year," he emphasized.

If Byrd's committee should receive the bill on June 1 and take the same time that it did on the 1962 measure, it would be mid-October before the bill would reach the Senate.

Byrd voiced strong opposition to the President's 1963 tax-cutting proposals when they were submitted, and said Saturday he is more firm than ever in this position.

He reiterated that he would not support any tax cut unless it were accompanied by corresponding reductions in federal spending.

Byrd said he has received support for this stand in hundreds of letters sent to him from all parts of the country. He remarked that he is surprised that the proposed tax cut does not have more appeal.

CREW OF 39

Hunt For Tanker Appears Fruitless

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (UPI) — Mounting hours of fruitless search caused open concern Saturday for the safety of 39 seamen — missing since Tuesday aboard an aging tanker loaded with molten sulphur.

"I've got long distance calls in all over the country trying to learn something," said Mrs. George E. Watson, wife of the first mate aboard the 524 - foot Marine Sulphur Queen.

"All I can find out is that she is overdue," the Galveston, Tex., woman complained.

Nearly a score of fast Coast Guard and Navy planes flying from bases in North Carolina, Florida and Mississippi have been scouring the sea lanes from the Virginia Capes to the gulf port of Beaumont, Tex., for two days looking for some trace of the big gray-hulled vessel.

Four of the planes remained in the air all Friday night.

THOROUGH SEARCH

"There is no possibility of having missed the tanker if it stayed on its track," said one of the search pilots flying out of the naval air station at Jacksonville, Fla.

"We're flying at 1,000 to 1,500 feet," he explained, "and from that height . . . the tanker would look tremendous. Even if it drifted a little off course, we'd have seen it easily."

The Sulphur Queen is a T-2 type tanker. About 500 such ships were built during World War II and over the years 10 of them have broken in two. The last one to snap was the Pine Ridge which went down in 1960 off treacherous Cape Hatteras, N.C., with a loss of seven lives.

Because of these experiences the American Bureau of Shipping required that the T-2s be reinforced with metal straps—two on the upper deck and two on the bottom.

One bureau spokesman said that considering the number of T-2s built, 10 sinkings was not a "bad percentage" considering the pounding a tanker takes in heavy seas.

The Sulphur Queen left Beaumont last Saturday and was due at Norfolk at noon Thursday. She was to have checked in with her Norfolk agent at noon Tuesday and again Wednesday, but no word was heard either day.

ONE THEORY

One theory was that she perhaps detoured in the Atlantic to miss a storm that kicked up 20 foot seas along the Southeastern Seaboard earlier this week. However, this did not account for her failing to report by radio.

Three Louisiana Men On Tanker

The Marine Transport Lines of Houston released a list of the crew Saturday.

The list said these crewmen gave Louisiana addresses:

Messman Wesley Fontenot, Mamou.

Pentagon Said Interested In 'Camel' Plane

WASHINGTON (AP)—The idea of a camel-like warplane, able to travel for days without a drink of fuel, is receiving revived Pentagon interest.

Originally the concept of an endurance plane—operating at low altitudes to escape radar detection while penetrating enemy territory with a load of nuclear weapons—was nourished only by the Air Force.

But reports current Saturday are that the top research and strategic echelons of the Pentagon have moved to support of renewed studies of the idea by the Air Force.

The thinking is toward use of such a system to supplement the ballistic missiles and present bombers in the strategic retaliatory system—not to replace them. In addition to weapons delivery, the endurance plane would be used for reconnaissance and possibly for troops and cargo transport.

One of the major problems, for both missiles and bombers, is the ability to penetrate an enemy's antiaircraft and future ballistic missiles defenses. The heart of both those defensive systems is radar, with which detection, tracking and fixing the course of antimissiles and fighter interceptors is accomplished.

Another problem is to keep the ballistic missiles or bomber bases from attack by counteraction or, in the case of bombers, getting them away from their bases before missiles or bombs fall.

The theory of the endurance plane is that it could help meet both problems.

Because it might remain in the air for as long as eight days, using two crews, the possibility of destruction on an airfield would be reduced. And because of its ability to hug the ground, beneath the level of radar beams, it could have good penetration capability.

Those familiar with the idea emphasize that this would not be an RS70 program—upon which Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara looks with disfavor. While sensor equipment similar to that which would have been used on the RS70 might be used by the low-slow plane, it would be a different aircraft. It would not be designed for high altitude nor necessarily supersonic excepts in spurts dictated by tactical situations.

It would be extensively equipped with decoys, to confuse and counter enemy radar if operating at altitudes within radar-beam levels.

The more enthusiastic advocates within the Air Force say the endurance plane—by virtue of both low- and high-level operation, plus the use of elaborate decoy and counterradar equipment — could hide in the sky.

Game Officials Confiscate 800 Pounds Of Fish

WINNSBORO (Special) — Eight-hundreds pounds of white perch were confiscated near Lar-o Lake Friday night by officials of the Louisiana Wildlife and Fish-eries Department.

Capt. Peyton of Winnsboro and agents, Oliver Taunton and A. D. Swayze of Catahoula Parish have made no arrests so far.

The wildlife officials said they attempted to stop a truck near the lake, giving chase when the ve-hicle failed to halt. However, dust from the gravel road prevented them from catching the truck.

Authorities found the fish in sacks weighing about 100 pounds each. The white perch was given to nursing homes at Harrisonburg, Wisner and Winnsboro.

Capt. Peyton did not identify any suspects, but said they had good leads which included the sideboards and sacks.

Ballet Performance Is Scheduled Here

The San Francisco Ballet will be presented in Neville High School Auditorium at 8:15 p.m., Tuesday, Feb. 19, by the North-east State Concerts Association.

The San Francisco group is ac-tually America's oldest perform-ing ballet company. It introduced the full-length "Nutcracker" to America, a ballet now annually presented by almost every com-pany in the country.

The San Francisco aggregation generates enthusiasm. Whey they danced recently at the Seattle World's Fair they outdrew other attractions. When they went on a cross-country tour last winter, they performed before sell - out houses and received the kind of reviews a press agent dreams about.

With three international tours under their dancing feet, they have captured every kind of audi-ence. Kings, queens, prime min-isters, emperors and governor generals have all fallen under their spell. These tours were ar-ranged by the State Department and are the reason why the com-pany is often referred to as our "dancing good will ambassador."

The company's stop here in Monroe is part of a 43-city tour of the United States. Gathered in this one group are a number of well-known dancers. Among them are Lew Christensen, Jocelyn Vollmar, Sally Bailey, Robert Gladstein, and Nancy Robinson.

No single seat tickets will be sold for this performance, but a number of season memberships in the Northeast State Concerts Association are available by tele-phoning FA 5-6361, Ext. 211.

2 Indictments Filed Against Local Residents

SHREVEPORT (Special) — Two Ouachita Parish residents have been arrested and released on bond following their indictments by a federal grand jury in Shreve-port Thursday.

Indicted for embezzlement was Leon E. Massey, a discharged as-sistant cashier for the First Na-tional Bank of West Monroe. Mas-sey was employed by the bank for several years until he was discharged from the bank.

The other indictment involved a Monroe real estate agent, Mrs. Myrtis Harper. She was arrested following her indictment on eight counts of falsifying documents and credit reports for FHA home loan applications in 1959 and 1960.

Massey is free under a $5,000 bond. Mrs. Harper was released after she posted bond of $3,000. Their bonds were accepted in Mon-roe Friday by U. S. Commissioner W. F. Pipes Jr.

The two cases were in no way related.

Massey was accused of taking a total of $4,203.39 on four sep-arate occasions while employed at the bank. He is accused of taking $3,473.59 on Feb. 28, 1962; $165 on March 14, 1962; $164.80 on March 15, 1962 and $400 on March 26, 1962. An official of the bank said the funds were fully restored shortly after discrepan-cies were revealed.

Massey had been with the bank since it was founded about 10 years ago.

The indictments against Mrs. Harper were returned in connec-tion with home loan applications processed for home buyers in Mon-roe and West Monroe and serv-iced through a Monroe mortgage loan firm.

Arraignment dates in Federal District Court have not been set for either Massey or Mrs. Har-per.

CONCENTRATE ON DEFENSE

Unionists Alter Market Tactics

PARIS (AP) — Proponents of European union are focusing on defense problems in a search for a compromise solution permitting Britain's eventual membership in the Common Market.

The unionists feel they have French Gaullists isolated on the European stage. While this cannot affect President Charles de Gaulle's control of France, the unionists hope to use this isolation as a lever.

United Europe supporters do not foresee any quick or easy success to circumvent the French veto of Britain's entry to the market. But they are taking a cue from De Gaulle and concentrating at-tention on defense issues ahead of economic problems.

After a study of De Gaulle's position, the unionists are con-vinced the key to the present deadlock rests in the Dec. 21 Nassau, Bahamas agreement be-tween President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan whereby Britain agreed to substitute American-built Polaris missiles for its air-borne Skybolt. The unionists are readjusting their efforts on the theory that an accord in the atomic field will unlock the doors to economic agreement.

The likeliest proposal from un-ionist leaders would be formation of a European nuclear, force, closely coordinated with the American force within the frame-work of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

This picture developed from Strasbourg sessions of the Com-mon Market Assembly, parlia-mentary branch of the six-nation European Economic Community. Except for the absence of Com-munists and extreme right-wing-ers, the assembly reflects a cross-section of public opinion in all six nations.

Debate last week in the assem-bly, which adopted a resolution urging resumption of the Brussels, Belgium, negotiations for British entry, made these points:

U.S. Reaction To Canada's Action Varied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Canada's refusal to accept nuclear warheads left "a gaping hole in the air defenses of the United States" at the time of the Cuban crisis, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said Saturday.

But Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said the Kennedy administration fumbled and bumbled in its recent relations with Canada.

Morse said in a taped radio broadcast that the State Department's blunt note to Canada, which figured in the fall of the government of Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker, "far from being impolitic, was long overdue."

Exactly the opposite view was taken by Scott, who said in a speech prepared for an Albany, N.Y., Republican rally that if the government were awarding performance banners as it did in World War II, "the State Department building in Washington would today be flying an I-for-ineptitude banner."

He added that the United States now can "expect to see a contest among political parties in Canada to prove which is most anti-American."

Morse said Canada's failure to accept nuclear warheads leaves a hole in the Northern security line "that makes her policy our business, too."

"It is stating the obvious to say that Canada has been sweeping the nuclear issue under the rug because of a considerable body of opinion in Canada which shuns the nuclear war and nuclear weapons," Morse said.

"If the Canadians are complaining that they are not equal partners with the United States, that is our complaint, too, that Canada is not fulfilling the role of an equal partner.

"We have the right and the obligation to our citizens to find out without further delay whether Canada intends to finish the joint defense arrangements she began with us in 1958. Canada must be advised, along with many others of our Western allies, that the United States can no longer afford to furnish them the protection of our military strength, while they decline, for domestic political reasons or any other, to fulfill their obligations to us.

"I would have us explain to Canada that we are prepared to go ahead with revised air defense plans for the United States that will not require any dependence on Canada at all, if it is the decision of the Canadians to keep nuclear weapons off her soil."

Morse said he thinks the same kind of message should go to Spain and to members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization — "especially (President Charles) De Gaulle of France."

"If they are not ready to make a larger contribution to the common defense, then the United States will have no choice but to reduce our commitments to them, consolidate our military forces, and look to defense arrangements that will not depend upon the actions or response of any ally; Canada, France, or any other," he added.

On the other hand, Scott called the State Department's action a 20th century version of the "Sackville affair."

He said that during the American election of 1888, British Ambassador Lord Sackeville was "tricked into writing a letter that said it was in the best interests of Great Britain to re-elect President Cleveland" which contributed to Cleveland's defeat.

"This month no one tricked the U.S. State Department," the senator continued. "It fumbled and bumbled into this mess all by itself when it criticized Canada for its failure to equip its jet interceptors and antiaircraft missiles with nuclear warheads."

He contrasted the Kennedy administration's handling of foreign affairs with what he called "the quiet sureness, dignity and wise understanding" displayed by the Republican Eisenhower administration.

POLIO DRIVE WORKER Guy Jones of the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce prepares a chart to keep tabs on the amount of Sabin Oral Vaccine to be given today in the mass immunization campaign against polio. The drive will be conducted in nine Monroe area parishes and locally is sponsored by the Ouachita Parish Medical Society and the Jaycees of Monroe and West Monroe. Clinics will be held from noon through 5 p.m.

CAMPAIGN TODAY

Questions On Polio Vaccine Answered

Today is "Victory Over Polio" day in Ouachita Parish and here are answers to a number of questions that have arisen concerning the oral vaccine to be administered.

Wives of local doctors will be standing by today to answer any further questions that may arise. If any answers are needed the wives will be available at FA 2-1491. Call in your questions.

Q. Why can't my family doctor give the vaccine?

A. He can. However, because of the ever-present possibility of an epidemic, the physicians of Ouachita Parish have agreed that the mass immunization program should be undertaken now. And, too, a mass immunization program that reaches 85 per cent of the population will tend to immunize the 15 per cent who missed it.

Q. I understand persons of all ages should take the vaccine. Does that include infants?

A. If your baby is under three months old you should consult your private physician. The vaccine won't hurt the baby, but a booster will be required when the baby is less than three months of age. Since we won't be set up to give boosters, we are suggesting that you see your private physician on children less than three months old.

Q. If I take the Sabin oral polio vaccine, will I need a booster?

A. To the best of our knowledge, you won't need a booster for at least five years.

'SPEECHES WON'T SOLVE PROBLEM'

Mansfield Urges Support Of Kennedy's Cuba Stand

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said Saturday in a strong statement of support for President Kennedy's Cuba stand that speeches are not going to solve the problem. He urged critics of the President to trust him and turn over to the proper authority any information they may have.

The Montana Democrat made his remarks in a UPI interview even as Republican critics united for one of the strongest attacks yet on the administration's handling of the Cuba situation.

"The difficulties in Cuba are not going to be solved by speeches on the floor of Congress," he said. "What we have to do is place our trust in the hands of the President, who has enormous responsibility and who, I believe, is just as patriotic as those who criticize him."

"If any of these critics have constructive alternatives they wish to propose, all they have to do is come forward and do so," the Senate majority leader said. "As our country is concerned, our people — Democrats and Republicans — must always remember there is no cheap, no quick or easy out of the difficulties confronting us in Cuba. This is only one of the many trouble spots in the world where we have to keep on the alert constantly."

Mansfield said the administration "is keeping a strict daily air surveillance of Cuba. Every scrap of information is being gone over thoroughly by appropriate intelligence agencies. I'd suggest that if any member of Congress has any information he thinks has a bearing on the Cuban situation, he should immediately present it to the CIA, state or defense departments, or all three, and be assured it will be screened very thoroughly."

One outspoken GOP critic, Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, N. Y., did convey unverified and unpublished information to central intelligence director John A. McCone Friday at a meeting arranged by Kennedy. He also gave McCone some proposals for economic action against Cuba to pass along to Kennedy.

But there was no let up in the criticism. Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., said Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara's own evidence shows that the Kremlin can export "tremendous subversion" into Latin America. He added that he is "very concerned" about the threat of infiltration and subversion posed to such Latin American nations as Venezuela, Brazil, Guatemala and Chile.

Dirksen also commented that McNamara's listing of Soviet force in Cuba "said nothing about Soviet submarines" and made no mention of "night movements" of men and material on the island.

When John Stimac's children are grown, his Medallion Home will still be modern

Mr. & Mrs. John L. Stimac, 115 Pinewood Drive, West Monroe, La., have enjoyed their modern Medallion Home for over 2 years. As the years go by, the Stimacs will find their house stays modern, because its "worth-more" features were designed to meet the needs of tomorrow.

"My Flameless Electric Range cooks faster and cleans in a jiffy," says Mrs. Stimac. "The kitchen stays cooler and fresher. I just set the surface control, and foods, such as rice and vegetables, will not boil over or burn.

"Modern lighting is one of the treasures of our Medallion Home. It helps to beautify every room, while it gives us the assurance of proper light for our children's youthful eyes. There is even a light over my sink for a bright, more efficient kitchen.

"Full housepower means that we can use all of our helpful appliances without blown fuses. And there is enough capacity for the additional flameless appliances that we are sure to want.

"Flameless Electric Washer and Dryer lets me wash and dry in any weather. No more lugging wet, heavy clothes outside. Never any fumes in an electric dryer, so it can't harm fabrics or colors."

A Medallion Home is a protected investment because it will stay modern for many years. And all that time you will be enjoying better living electrically. If you're planning to build, buy or remodel, it will pay to get full information from your LP&L office today.

U.S. Reaction To Canada's Action Varied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Canada's refusal to accept nuclear warheads left "a gaping hole in the air defenses of the United States" at the time of the Cuban crisis, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said Saturday.

But Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said the Kennedy administration fumbled and bumbled in its recent relations with Canada.

Morse said in a taped radio broadcast that the State Department's blunt note to Canada, which figured in the fall of the government of Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker, "far from being impolitic, was long overdue."

Exactly the opposite view was taken by Scott, who said in a speech prepared for an Albany, N.Y., Republican rally that if the government were awarding performance banners as it did in World War II, "the State Department building in Washington would today be flying an I-for-ineptitude banner."

He added that the United States now can "expect to see a contest among political parties in Canada to prove which is most anti-American."

Morse said Canada's failure to accept nuclear warheads leaves a hole in the Northern security line "that makes her policy our business, too."

"It is stating the obvious to say that Canada has been sweeping the nuclear issue under the rug because of a considerable body of opinion in Canada which shuns nuclear war and nuclear weapons," Morse said.

"If the Canadians are complaining that they are not equal partners with the United States, that is our complaint, too, that Canada is not fulfilling the role of an equal partner.

"We have the right and the obligation to our citizens to find out without further delay whether Canada intends to finish the joint defense arrangements she began with us in 1958. Canada must be advised, along with many others of our Western allies, that the United States can no longer afford to furnish them the protection of our military strength, while they decline, for domestic political reasons or any other, to fulfill their obligations to us.

"I would have us explain (to Canada) that we are prepared to go ahead with revised air defense plans for the United States that will not require any dependence on Canada at all, if it is the decision of the Canadians to keep nuclear weapons off her soil."

Morse said he thinks the same kind of message should go to Spain and to members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization — "especially (President Charles) De Gaulle of France."

"If they are not ready to make a larger contribution to the common defense, then the United States will have no choice but to reduce our commitments to them, consolidate our military forces, and look to defense arrangements that will not depend upon the actions or response of any ally; Canada, France, or any other," he added.

On the other hand, Scott called the State Department's action a 20th century version of the "Sackville affair."

He said that during the American election of 1888, British Ambassador Lord Sackeville was "tricked into writing a letter that said it was in the best interests of Great Britain to re-elect President Cleveland" which contributed to Cleveland's defeat.

"This month no one tricked the U.S. State Department," the senator continued. "It fumbled and bumbled into this mess all by itself when it criticized Canada for its failure to equip its jet interceptors and antiaircraft missiles with nuclear warheads."

He contrasted the Kennedy administration's handling of foreign affairs with what he called "the quiet sureness, dignity and wise understanding" displayed by the Republican Eisenhower administration.

POLIO DRIVE WORKER Guy Jones of the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce prepares a chart to keep tabs on the amount of Sabin Oral Vaccine to be given today in the mass immunization campaign against polio. The drive will be conducted in nine Monroe area parishes and locally is sponsored by the Ouachita Parish Medical Society and the Jaycees of Monroe and West Monroe. Clinics will be held from noon through 5 p.m.

CAMPAIGN TODAY

Questions On Polio Vaccine Answered

Today is "Victory Over Polio" day in Ouachita Parish and here are answers to a number of questions that have arisen concerning the oral vaccine to be administered.

Wives of local doctors will be standing by today to answer any further questions that may arise. If any answers are needed the wives will be available at FA 2-1491. Call in your questions.

Q. Why can't my family doctor give the vaccine?

A. He can. However, because of the ever-present possibility of an epidemic, the physicians of Ouachita Parish have agreed that the mass immunization program should be undertaken now. And, too, a mass immunization program that reaches 85 per cent of the population will tend to immunize the 15 per cent who missed it.

Q. I understand persons of all ages should take the vaccine. Does that include infants?

A. If your baby is under three months old you should consult your private physician. The vaccine won't hurt the baby, but a booster will be required when the baby is less than three months of age. Since we won't be set up to give boosters, we are suggesting that you see your private physician on children less than three months old.

Q. If I take the Sabin oral polio vaccine, will I need a booster?

A. To the best of our knowledge, you won't need a booster for at least five years.

'SPEECHES WON'T SOLVE PROBLEM'

Mansfield Urges Support Of Kennedy's Cuba Stand

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said Saturday in a strong statement of support for President Kennedy's Cuba stand that speeches are not going to solve the problem. He urged critics of the President to trust him and turn over to the proper authority any information they may have.

The Montana Democrat made his remarks in a UPI interview even as Republican critics united for one of the strongest attacks yet on the administration's handling of the Cuba situation.

"The difficulties in Cuba are not going to be solved by speeches on the floor of Congress," he said. "What we have to do is place our trust in the hands of the President, who has enormous responsibility and who, I believe, is just as patriotic as those who criticize him."

"If any of these critics have constructive alternatives they wish to propose, all they have to do is come forward and do so," the Senate majority leader said. "As our country is concerned, our people — Democrats and Republicans — must always remember there is no cheap, no quick or easy out of the difficulties confronting us in Cuba. This is only one of the many trouble spots in the world where we have to keep on the alert constantly."

But there was no let up in the criticism. Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., said Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara's own evidence shows that the Kremlin can export "tremendous subversion" into Latin America. Dirksen also commented that McNamara's listing of Soviet force in Cuba "said nothing about Soviet submarines" and made no mention of "night movements" of men and material on the island.

Major Increase In January Noted

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

The month of January showed a great increase in the use of the library. In that month a total of 37,548 books were loaned to the patrons of the library for home use. This is a gain of 4,734 books over January of 1962 and is the largest January circulation in the history of the library and shows that the use of the library if growing all of the time. During the month a total of 349 new borrowers were registered making a total registration of 40,111 borrowers. 2,606 reference questions were answered by members of the library staff. This does not include the many people who are able to locate their own reference material. A record number of new books were also added to the library. 1,176 added and 132 were discarded. The book collection of February 1 stood at 37,044 books.

In the past week a variety of new titles have been added to the library collection. There are several interesting books in the field of fiction. "Two Hours to Darkness" is the title of a new book by Anthony Trew. It is the story of a commander of a British nuclear submarine and how he allowed his fears and obsessions to make him lose his balance. It is a powerful story of men under stress and has a lesson for our times. Mary Carter is the author of a novel about present day youth called "A Fortune in Dimes." The setting is in California and the book clearly reveals the loneliness of a world in which one fails to grow up. Two new mystery stories are available for readers in that field. They are "Deadly Contact" by Amber Dean and "Mourner's Voyage" by Shane Martin.

The field of non - fiction offers a variety of books. "El Gringo" by H. D. Radler gives a picture of an American in Latin America. Books of etiquette are always in demand. The latest title was completed by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt shortly before her death. It is called "The Book of Common Sense Etiquette."

The latest book in the Life Nature Library series is "The Universe" by David Bergamini. Cookbooks are always in demand and the latest one added to the collection is "The Bachelor's Cookbook" by Lee Sheridan. It contains many easy and delicious recipes. Dr. Spock has become almost a household word in the field of child rearing. His latest book is called "Problems of Parents" and contains much excellent advice. A very useful book for those in the business world is "Standard Handbook for Secretaries" by Lois Irene Hutchinson. "Advertising Wins Elections" by Maurice McCafferey contains much very excellent advice about successful political campaigns. A beautiful new book in the gardening collection is "Japanese Gardens for Today" by David Engel. The art of paper folding is becoming very popular. A new book in this field is "Folding Paper Puppets" by Shari Lewis.

A very fine book of literary criticism is "The Magic Lantern of Marcel Proust" written by Howard Moss. An important addition to the history of the Southwest is "Journey Into Darkness" by John Upton Terrell. It is an account of the ill - fated expedition of Narvaez to Florida in 1527 and of the trek made by the few survivors under the leadership of Cabez de Vaca from Florida to Mexico City. Another addition to the history collection is "The French and Indian Wars" by Edward Hamilton, a volume in the Mainstream of America series. William Henry Bigler is the author of an interesting book about the old west called "Bigler's Chronicle of the West." "They Came From Everywhere" is an account of the builders of the modern country of Israel, written by Robert St. John. He has drawn a very good picture of the men and women engaged in this project.

Two new books have been added to the genealogy collection in the past week. They are: "The Family Tree of Caroline Jackson Lee" and "The Register of Overwharton Parish, Stafford County, Virginia" both compiled by George H. S. King.

The Ouachita Parish Public Library has an outstanding reference collection and new books are always being added to this field. Among the additions of the past week are: "Ulrich's Periodicals Directory", a classified list of selected periodicals; "The Information Please Almanac" for 1963 which contains a wealth of material; "The World Almanac" for 1963 which is the best ready reference tool a library can have; "The World of Advertising" a lovely book which was a gift from the Gulf States Advertising Company; "Sweet's Catalog Service of the Light Construction Catalog File for 1963" and "The Rand McNally Commercial Atlas and Marketing Guide for 1963." All of these books make it possible for the library staff to service you and answer your questions.

A PITY

CHATEAU NEUF, France (UPI) — Mrs. Marie Charbonnier, 34, said she doubted she will ever drive again after a court suspended her license forhtwo years after her first accident in 30 years. She said that "by the time I'm 36 I'll have probably lost the use of my hands — a pity. I enjoyed driving so much."

RUNNING THE SCALES

New York Critics Now On The Move

By JOHN CALE

The newspaper strike in the big city up east continues with its accompanying confusion, hardship and, by way of contrast, the saving sense of humor Americans seem able to find under trying circumstances.

One story told of the drama critic for the New York Times taking a cab to the theatre so as to keep his critical eyes sharpened even though he realized there would be no deadline to meet and no review to be printed. Upon boarding the taxi, he discovered the driver was the drama critic for the Herald Tribune.

ON SCHEDULE

It seems the Vienna Choir Boys started a movement towards vocal ensembles for the northeast Louisiana area. Following by little more than a week was the La. Tech series presentation of the Roger Wagner Chorale, one of America's top singing groups. One of the more interesting scores performed by the chorale was a modern secular cantata by Lucas Foss, "The Prairie." The work consists of eight parts, based on poems of the old west by Carl Sandburg.

Now, the Monroe area will hear the well - known Centenary College Choir in a concert at Neville High School auditorium Friday of this week at 8 p.m. Dr. A. C. Voran, director of the 49-voice singing organization, works on the assumption that audiences want to see a pretty picture while listening to good music.

As a result, the choir makes use of several costume changes during a concert and also avoids traditional divisions in stage positioning according to pitch. Voran will place a high soprano in front of a low bass if the couple happens to look and sing well together. Such tricks — along with high vocal standards — have made the Centenary aggregation an international favorite over the years.

It's musical comedy time again at the Little Theatre. A Saturday opening has been set this week for "Annie Get Your Gun." Director Richard Clark says the play will feature trick shooting effects, sparkling dance numbers and an array of tunes which became lasting hits.

Working with the dance numbers is choregrapher Bob Beard, who was brought to Monroe especially to work with L. T.'s musical of the year. Eloy Fominaya is in charge of musical direction. Raymond Lucero is technical director and the production will star Betty Bandy in the role of Annie.

The San Francisco Ballet is the next event on the Northeast Concerts series, slated at Neville Auditorium for Tuesday, February 19.

SHAKESPEARE

The fifth in a series of World Heritage and Book film presentations is scheduled for two showings at the Paramount Theatre Thursday. The fare is Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar," starring Marlon Brando, James Mason, Greer Garson and Deborah Kerr. Performances are scheduled for 4 and 7:30 p.m.

"Julius Caesar" is known as one of Shakespeare's most widely quoted works and his most typically modern play. It deals with certain political realities which generations from Caesar's time until now have been rather painfully aware — the lust for power, jealousy, the role of women in politics, the conflict between mob rule and an autocratic government, and the less fortunate taxpayers caught in between.

So if you want to brush up on Shakespeare quotations or pick up a few ideas on the stormy course of politics through the ages, "Julius Caesar" has both to offer.

Boredom Costs U.S. Millions Of Mathematicians

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP)—Boredom in the classroom is costing this country millions of badly needed mathematicians, a Dartmouth College professor said Saturday.

John E. Kemeny told a national meeting of high school principals, "If the new age of science is to flourish in the United States a much larger percentage of mathematically talented students must be encouraged to pursue this talent."

"Many more able students are bored out of mathematics than frightened out of it," he said in a speech. He listed the three main causes of losing talented mathematics students as "boredom, poor instruction and an outdated curriculum."

The situation has improved in recent years, Kemeny said, but as recently as 1950 "mathematics instruction in the United States was about 150 years behind mathematical research. Our high school mathematics programs did not even mention the great discoveries of the 19th century."

Grade school teachers, in particular, Kemeny said, are "the product of past sins in mathematical education; therefore, more often than not, their weakest subject is arithmetic. It is true that the mathematical education of grade school teachers has been scandalously neglected."

When a good grade school student finishes his arithmetic in record time, Kemeny said, "The teacher will be slightly annoyed, and will do one of two things: "Either she will give him 10

CONVERTED BY REPUBLICANS

Goldwater Salute Now For Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fund-raising affair that started out as a "Salute to Barry Goldwater" was converted by Republicans Saturday into a "Salute to the Senate," with Goldwater listed as honor guest.

Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky, who heads the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, gave no reason for the change in format in a statement announcing the contributory dinner will be held in a Washington hotel May 9.

Nor could he be reached in Kentucky to learn what fund-raising goal has been fixed. Previously, Goldwater's friends had set out to collect upward of $500,000 to finance Senate Campaign Committee activities and turn some money over to the national and House committees.

In an obvious effort to promote party unity, Morton said that Republican governors and top political figures of the party from all across the country" would be invited to participate.

These may include GOP Govs. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, George Romney of Michigan, William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania and James A. Rhodes of Ohio as well as former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

There were some lifted eyebrows within the party--but no public protests—over the original plan to salute Goldwater, a conservative spokesman, for his four years of service as chairman of the Campaign Committee.

Recently Goldwater has thrown some cold water on efforts of friends to promote him for the 1964 GOP presidential nomination. In a Feb. 5 letter to an Arizona legislator he said, "As far as I am concerned, I have never had any intention but to seek one office, that being United States senator from Arizona." His Senate seat will be at stake in next year's election.

Morton said that if the Republicans stir up enough enthusiasm he thinks they can win more than half the 25 Senate Democrat seats involved in the 1964 voting while holding the nine they have at stake. This would still leave them short of control of the Senate, where they now are outnumbered 67-33 by the Democrats.

Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D. carried this prediction even further in a speech prepared for a party rally at the University of Maryland.

"We can win back the White House if—and it is a big if—we do not cut our own throats in the process," he said.

"The Kennedy family and its New Frontier assortment of bloc relatives and ideological cousins do not have the 1964 election locked up, not by a long shot."

But Mundt said the Republicans would be inviting what he called "another four years of smorgasbord government if we permit petty differences and pouting personalities to split our party."

He defined "smorgasbord government," as "a giveaway technique by which a little of something is given to everybody but nothing of substance is received by anyone."

Man Gets 2 Years For Manslaughter

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) - Royce D. Peoples, 59, of Coalberg Saturday was convicted of first degree manslaughter in the shotgun slaying of Jacob J. Hogan, former friend, last July 4.

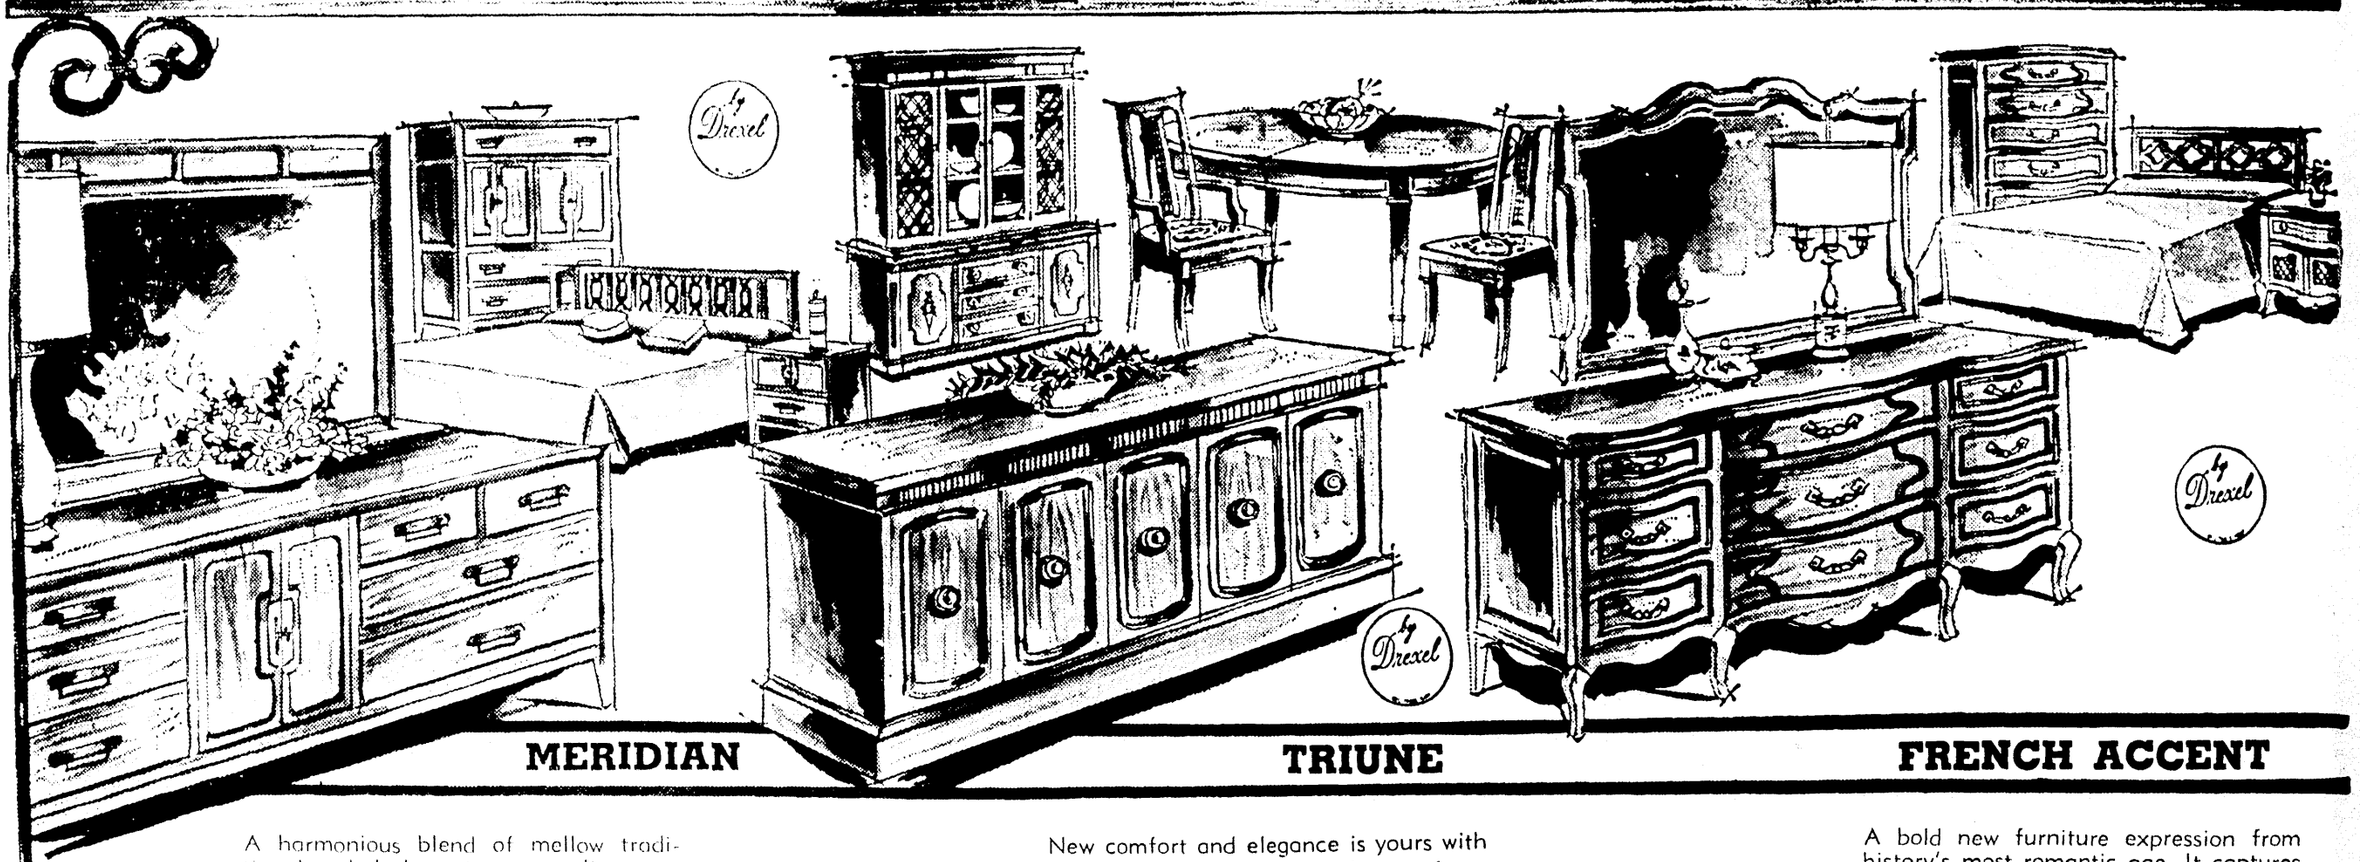

Circuit Judge Alta L. King sentenced Peoples to two years in prison.

A beautiful new book in the gardening collection is "Japanese Gardens for Today" by David Engel. The art of paper folding is becoming very popular. A new book in this field is "Folding Paper Puppets" by Shari Lewis.

A very fine book of literary criticism is "The Magic Lantern of Marcel Proust" written by Howard Moss. An important addition to the history of the Southwest is "Journey Into Darkness" by John Upton Terrell. It is an account of the ill - fated expedition of Narvaez to Florida in 1527 and of the trek made by the few survivors under the leadership of Cabez de Vaca from Florida to Mexico City. Another addition to the history collection is "The French and Indian Wars" by Edward Hamilton, a volume in the Mainstream of America series. William Henry Bigler is the author of an interesting book about the old west called "Bigler's Chronicle of the West. "They Came From Everywhere" is an account of the builders of the modern country of Israel, written by Robert St. John. He has drawn a very good picture of the men and women engaged in this project.

Two new books have been added to the genealogy collection in the past week. They are; "The Family Tree of Caroline Jackson Lee" and "The Register of Overwharton Parish, Stafford County, Virginia" both compiled by George H. S. King.

The Ouachita Parish Public Library has an outstanding reference collection and new books are always being added to this field. Among the additions of the past week are: "Ulrich's Periodicals Directory"; a classified list of selected periodicals; "The Information Please Almanac" for 1963 which contains a wealth of material. "The World Almanac" for 1963 which is the best ready reference tool a library can have; "The World of Advertising" a lovely book which was a gift from the Gulf States Advertising Company; "Sweet's Catalog Service of the Light Construction Catalog File for 1963" and "The Rand McNally Commercial Atlas and Marketing Guide for 1963." All of these books make it possible for the library staff to service you and answer your questions.

RUNNING THE SCALES

New York Critics Now On The Move

By JOHN CALE

The newspaper strike in the big city up east continues with its accompanying confusion, hardship and, by way of contrast, the saving sense of humor Americans seem able to find under trying circumstances.

One story told of the drama critic for the New York Times taking a cab to the theatre so as to keep his critical eyes sharpened even though he realized there would be no deadline to meet and no review to be printed. Upon boarding the taxi, he discovered the driver was the drama critic for the Herald Tribune.

ON SCHEDULE

It seems the Vienna Choir Boys started a movement towards vocal ensembles for the northeast Louisiana area. Following by little more than a week was the La. Tech series presentation of the Roger Wagner Chorale, one of America's top singing groups. One of the more interesting scores performed by the chorale was a modern secular cantata by Lucas Foss, "The Prairie." The work consists of eight parts, based on poems of the old west by Carl Sandburg.

Now, the Monroe area will hear the well - known Centenary College Choir in a concert at Neville High School auditorium Friday of this week at 8 p.m. Dr. A. C. Voran, director of the 49-voice singing organization, works on the assumption that audiences want to see a pretty picture while listening to good music.

As a result, the choir makes use of several costume changes during a concert and also avoids traditional divisions in stage positioning according to pitch. Voran will place a high soprano in front of a low bass if the couple happens to look and sing well together. Such tricks — along with high vocal standards — have made the Centenary aggregation an international favorite over the years.

It's musical comedy time again at the Little Theatre. A Saturday opening has been set this week for "Annie Get Your Gun." Director Richard Clark says the play will feature trick shooting effects, sparkling dance numbers and an array of tunes which became lasting hits

Working with the dance numbers is choregrapher Bob Beard, who was brought to Monroe especially to work with L. T.'s musical of the year. Eloy Fominaya is in charge of musical direction, Raymond Lucero is technical director and the production will star Betty Bandy in the role of Annie.

The San Francisco Ballet is the next event on the Northeast Concerts series, slated at Neville Auditorium for Tuesday, February 19.

SHAKESPEARE

The fifth in a series of World Heritage and Book film presentations is scheduled for two showings at the Paramount Theatre Thursday. The fare is Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar," starring Marlon Brando, James Mason, Greer Garson and Deborah Kerr. Performances are scheduled for 4 and 7:30 p.m.

"Julius Caesar" is known as one of Shakespeare's most widely quoted works and his most typically modern play. It deals with certain political realities which generations from Caesar's time until now have been rather painfully aware — the lust for power, jealousy, the role of women in politics, the conflict between mob rule and an autocratic government, and the less fortunate taxpayers caught in between.

So if you want to brush up on Shakespeare quotations or pick up a few ideas on the stormy course of politics through the ages, "Julius Caesar" has both to offer.

Boredom Costs U.S. Millions Of Mathematicians

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP)—Boredom in the classroom is costing this country millions of badly needed mathematicians, a Dartmouth College professor said Saturday.

John E. Kemeny told a national meeting of high school principals, "If the new age of science is to flourish in the United States a much larger percentage of mathematically talented students must be encouraged to pursue this talent."

"Many more able students are bored out of mathematics than frightened out of it," he said in a speech. He listed the three main causes of losing talented mathematics students as "boredom, poor instruction and an outdated curriculum."

The situation has improved in recent years, Kemeny said, but as recently as 1950 "mathematics instruction in the United States was about 150 years behind mathematical research. Our high school mathematics programs did not even mention the great discoveries of the 19th century."

Grade school teachers, in particular, Kemeny said, are "the product of past sins in mathematical education; therefore, more often than not, their weakest subject is arithmetic. It is true that the mathematical education of grade school teachers has been scandalously neglected."

When a good grade school student finishes his arithmetic in record time, Kemeny said, "The teacher will be slightly annoyed, and will do one of two things: "Either she will give him 10

CONVERTED BY REPUBLICANS

Goldwater Salute Now For Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fund-raising affair that started out as a "Salute to Barry Goldwater" was converted by Republicans Saturday into a "Salute to the Senate," with Goldwater listed as honor guest.

Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky, who heads the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, gave no reason for the change in format in a statement announcing the contributory dinner will be held in a Washington hotel May 9.

Nor could he be reached in Kentucky to learn what fund-raising goal has been fixed. Previously, Goldwater's friends had set out to collect upward of $500,000 to finance Senate Campaign Committee activities and turn some money over to the national and House committees.

In an obvious effort to promote party unity, Morton said that Republican governors and top political figures of the party from all across the country" would be invited to participate.

These may include GOP Govs. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, George Romney of Michigan, William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania and James A. Rhodes of Ohio as well as former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

There were some lifted eyebrows within the party—but no public protests—over the original plan to salute Goldwater, a conservative spokesman, for his four years of service as chairman of the Campaign Committee.

Recently Goldwater has thrown some cold water on efforts of friends to promote him for the 1964 GOP presidential nomination. In a Feb. 5 letter to an Arizona legislator he said, "As far as I am concerned, I have never had any intention but to seek one office, that being United States senator from Arizona." His Senate seat will be at stake in next year's election.

Morton said that if the Republicans stir up enough enthusiasm he thinks they can win more than half the 25 Senate Democrat seats involved in the 1964 voting while holding the nine they have at stake. This would still leave them short of control of the Senate, where they now are outnumbered 67-33 by the Democrats.

Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D. carried this prediction even further in a speech prepared for a party rally at the University of Maryland.

"We can win back the White House if—and it is a big if—we do not cut our own throats in the process," he said.

"The Kennedy family and its New Frontier assortment of bloc relatives and ideological cousins do not have the 1964 election locked up, not by a long shot."

But Mundt said the Republicans would be inviting what he called "another four years of smorgasbord government if we permit petty differences and pouting personalities to split our party."

He defined "smorgasbord government," as "a giveaway technique by which a little of something is given to everybody but nothing of substance is received by anyone."

Circuit Judge Alta L. King sentenced Peoples to two years in prison.

The name 'Catahoula Prairie' was applied many years ago to an area community which was centered around a trading post and fort. The community under a different name still exists today, but trails have given way to highways, and travelers no longer need to obtain passports from a commandant.

Catahoula Prairie Community was well known to early settlers in LaSalle Parish, but with the passing of time the original name faded into the mists and was replaced by another.

The story behind the community starts back before the time when wagon roads began to criss cross the territory.

The first permanent settlers who came to what is now LaSalle Parish established their homes on the western bluffs of Catahoula Lake and the northern shore of Little River above it where a series of beautiful prominences borders on this winding stream. These locations had all the advantages found in adjacent low swamp lands and were safe from overflows.

PACKS HORSE TRAILS

Since there were no wagon roads in this entire section when these pioneers came in the latter half of the 1700's, the period of Spanish occupation, pack horse trails became much used and assumed great importance.

Two such trails, which originated east of the Mississippi River and passed through Harrisonburg and Troy (now Jonesville), formed a junction on the foothills near Old River at a point now known as White Hall on Highway 84, eight miles east of the present town of Jena, and combined there to make up the historic "Three Notch" trail that led to Alexandria, thence to Burr Ferry and Texas.

Royal Spanish Governor Antonio Del Ulloa established a fort and trading post at the junction of these trails and maintained a garrison there under the command of Commandante Nicholas Levine, a dapper mustachioed Spanish Don who had a flare for military discipline, but was a shrewd trader and diplomat. The name of the fort and trading post was Fort George IV, but the community came to be known as "Catahoula Prairie," and is so referred to by contemporary writers.

MANY FACTORS

Many factors contributed to the growth and importance of the Catahoula Prairie trading post. Not only was it located at the junction of two major east-west pack horse trails, but had the additional advantage of water transportation on Old River. Too, the surrounding area teemed with fur bearing and game animals, and the people were protected from marauding Indians and highway-men by the military garrison that was maintained at Fort George IV.

Fort George IV was the most important military outpost between Natchez, Mississippi and Alexandria, Louisiana. When a traveler wanted to go from Natchez to Alexandria, he was required to get a passport from Commandante Jose Vidal, for whom Vidalia was named. The commandante then sent a guard with him to Commandante Acalde Don Juan Herbard at Black River (now Trinity), who sent another guard with him to Catahoula Prairie where Nicholas Levine, commandante of Fort George IV, furnished him a guard to Alexandria.

The ruins of Fort George IV are on the Joseph Kuhn estate near White Hall, eight miles east of Jena on Highway 84. Well preserved face brick marked "Nice, France" as well as both French and Spanish coins found there are treasured souvenirs of the Joseph Kuhn family.

Travelers going from Catahoula Prairie to Alexandria who were inclined toward revelry, romance, and fine wines could stop on their journey at David Jones' "road house," which was located on a beautiful height overlooking Little River at a point now known as Walkers Ferry. There they found accommodations for both themselves and their pack horses.

BARREL-CHESTED

Jones was a big barrel-chested operator of English descent who boasted that when giving orders around his place, he "never chawed his tobacker twice," and that whatever he said was "spot cash on the barrel head," and no one ever crossed his path, nor did they ask many questions.

Growing out of a need for an established trail by his place, Jones, in 1800, blazed out a route from Alexandria to his ferry, thence to Catahoula Prairie through the Elm Bayou swamp to Don Juan Herbard's ferry (now Trinity). Later, when this trail was widened to accommodate wagons, it was known as the "Three-Notch Road," since Jones had scored three notches beneath the blazes on the trees to distinguish it from other trails. Incidentally, today's highways almost coincide with David Jones' original trail.

Catahoula Prairie's first independent general store was opened by Oliver Morgan and John Henry in 1807 on the north bank of Old River near the present traffic bridge, which point later became known as Rhinehardt's steamboat landing.

MONEY SCARCE

Because of the scarcity of money, most trading was done by barter. A beaver pelt, for example, was worth a certain amount of gunpowder or lead for molding bullets. The pioneers' wants were few. They made bread from the corn they grew, and supplemented their domestic meat supply with deer, bear, and turkeys. They bartered for a few pounds of coffee and sugar, cooking utensils, and on occasions, a few yards of northern domestic.

In 1833, Truman A. Briethaupt, a native of Milah, Germany, acquired a large tract of land in and near Catahoula Prairie where he engaged in farming and raising livestock. Two years later he built a home which, by standards at that time and place, was a mansion.

Briethaupt bought a Negro slave who was a skilled carpenter to do the inside work such as closets, walls, and ornimented mantles. All demension materials were hand hewn from logs from the nearby forest and were fastened together with wooden tenons driven in auger holes. The roof was hand-drawn cypress shingles, and all exposed woodwork was hand-planned. Briethaupt, who was a brick mason and had a working knowledge of ceramics, "burned" the brick in a wood furnace with which he built the peers and chimneys. He painted the home white and named it White Hall.

With the passing of the years, the name Catahoula Prairie was lost, and the community is now known as White Hall. The old Briethaupt home is now a part of the J. D. Davis estate. White Hall service station and store stands at the junction of Highway 84 and the Harrisonburg Road, and the original "White Hall," which was recently modernized, stands nearby, and few people know that it is an important historic landmark.

THERE WAS A TIME when a person wishing to travel between Natchez and Alexandria, had to obtain a passport, and journeys were made with a guard escort.

Palms, Flowers, 'Money' Line First Family Retreat Street

The street where President Kennedy and his family live when in Palm Beach, Florida, is in a quiet neighborhood of big wealth. The first family's visits are taken in stride by many who are accustomed to the arrivals and departures of kings and queens and Kennedys.

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The street where they live in Palm Beach is lined with palms, palmetto and poinsettia, jasmine, hibiscus and money.

The flora and the fauna are lush, the neighborhood is quiet and the elegance muted. Ordinarily one sees little movement. An assistant gardener rakes out the tire marks on a gravel driveway. On the road, a Jag or T-Bird or Bentley rolls by soundlessly and the contagion of silence mutes even the visiting delivery trucks.

The area is not without its touches of democracy. Across the road, for example, a man might pick up a little winter place for $60,000, with luck. On the ocean side of North Country Road, however, the estates are bigger, the money is older and a prospective buyer, seeking seasonal refuge in a marbled and parqueted lean-to, could expect to spend between a quarter and one million dollars.

ON OCEAN SIDE

When they are in Palm Beach, the John F. Kennedys live on the ocean side. Before he was inaugurated, the President and his family stayed at his father's home, a mile up the road. In the last two winters, the presidential family has taken the sun at the borrowed home of a friend, Col. Capton M. Paul, a retired Army officer and financier.

The address is 601 North County Road. Even when Mr. Kennedy is there, one sees little to indicate the presidential presence. A single police car is parked discreetly near some bushes off the driveway. An officer engages a Secret Service man in desultory conversation.

One doesn't see the other Secret Service agents scattered in and around the house, including the two men who patrol the sea wall with submachine guns at night. Of the X-ray devices said to be in use at the second driveway for examining all deliveries. Or the "red phone" or the Army Signal Corps man with the secret code book said to be in proximity to the President should he have to order a nuclear attack.

Or, on a less monumental scale, the circle formed by the driveway near the house, surrounding a charming fountain from which a stone boy blows a tiny spray from the lily pads. Or the real live children named Caroline and John Jr., who like to play near the fountain.

RESPLENDENT FOLIAGE

With all the resplendent foliage, one also doesn't see from the road the handsome white Regency house itself, which has eight bedrooms and a marble spiral staircase and a big living room with a long, floor - to - ceiling view of the sea. Or the house staff of nine-transported from the White House - the French chef, two Filipino stewards, three maids, two laundrymen and one dishwasher. Or the well - waxed English and French antiques. Or the presidential rocker, on which a recent visitor spied a white pillow embroidered with red letters spelling out "The Loved One," this last believed to have been put there as a gag by the wife of the President of the United States.

Or the inner court yard, where the President and his family watch movies at night on a big screen borrowed from a movie company. Or the sparkling turquoise pool, where the President swims or lounges, as always near a phone. Or the handsome, stately loggia, a covered terrace, where the President conducts his business around a coffee table.

The house stands on 295 feet of ocean front, which in today's market is worth $1,000 a foot. All in all, according to real estate men you couldn't buy the place for less than $500,000 if it were for sale, which it isn't. The house is loaned free to the Kennedys as befits wealthy friends.

In this quiet neighborhood of quiet big wealth, talk of money is rather gauche. It also belies the fact that while the President enjoys a yearly salary of $100,000 and expenses of $90,000, while everyone knows the Kennedys are as rich as Republicans, the presidential family began to economize this season at Palm Beach.

According to a man precisely in a position to know, Mrs. Kennedy this winter ordered her staff to purchase groceries from a chain supermarket instead of the specialty shops from which she used to buy - and all the other Kennedys still do.

ECONOMY ON FOOD

"She said it was because they were spending too much in the White House, that they would try to save some on food in Palm Beach," said the man who should know.

North County Road, on the ocean side, is not the kind of neighborhood where you'd walk across the backyard to borrow a tray of ice cubes. The big homes - there are Spanish villas and French villas and Italian villas and others that can only be described as pure Howard Johnson - are well separated by distance and a wall or thick shrubbery.

Behind the heavily veined banyan trees and down the stately rows of royal palms live some pretty impressive people. Immediately south of the road company New Frontier live the Robert A. Magowans. He is chairman of the board of Safeway Stores and she is a Merrill out of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith.

Next is Mrs. Robert R. Young, widow of the railroad tycoon, in whose home the Duke and Duchess of Windsor were introduced to Palm Beach Society. Then there are the Charles Wrightsmans, old friends of the Kennedys, at whose home the President and First Lady celebrated New Year's Eve in a white tie blast that included six of "the world's ten best-dressed women."

MOTHER WORRIES

Despite County Road's awesome wealth and forbidding exclusivity, there are things with which plain folks can identify. Rose Kennedy, who worries as mothers do everywhere, frequently expresses concern about the President's health. "Did you see him on television tonight?" she will ask a friend. "I thought he looked tired, didn't you?"

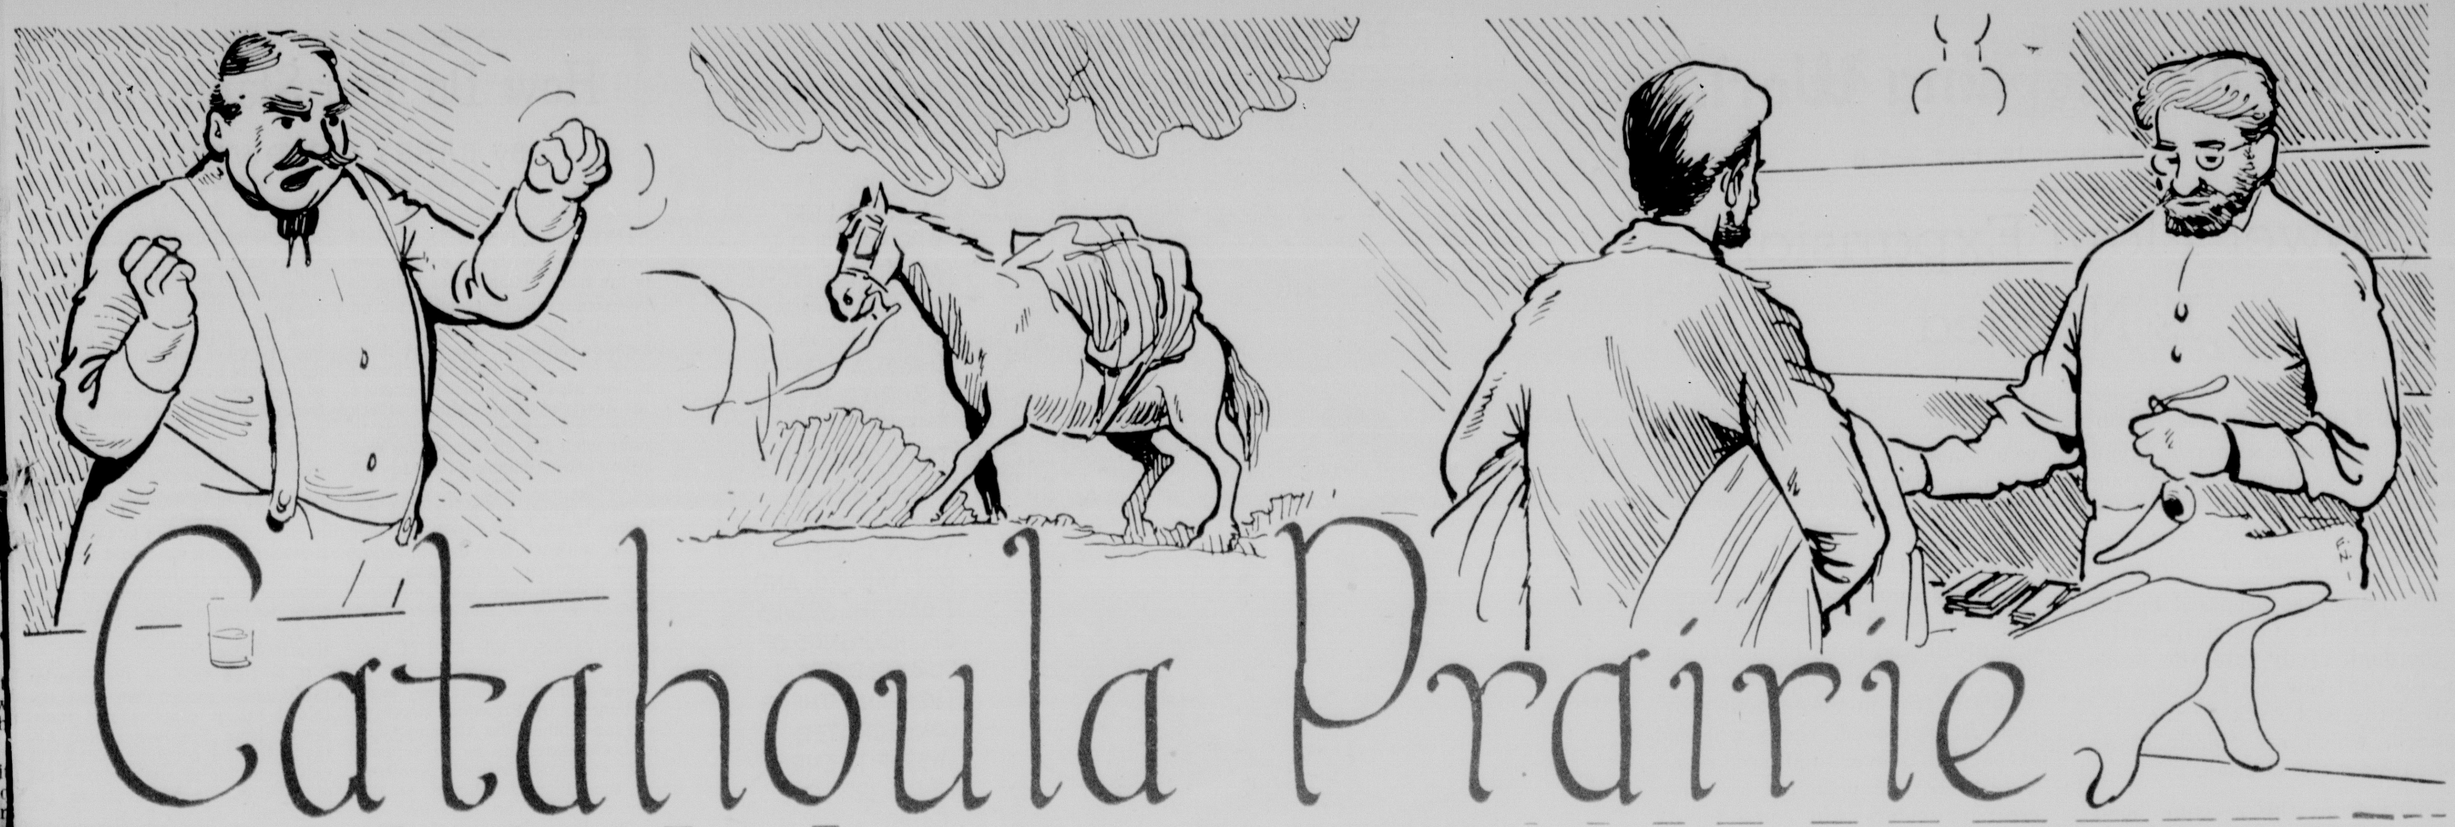

Many people along County Road have known John Kennedy since he was a skinny boy racing up and down the beach in old ten his sneakers, no sox. All of them knew him as Jack. But with his inaugural, they fell into the habit of referring to him only as the President.

Across the road the presidential image of a young, glamorous leader clearly needs repair work.

Katy Blatt, aged 8, asked her mother one day, "I don't understand why I just can't go over there and play with Caroline. What kind of people are they if we can't call them up to play with the kids?"

"Well, they're kind of special people."

ECONOMY ON FOOD

"She said it was because they were spending too much in the White House, that they would try to save some on food in Palm Beach," said the man who should know.

North County Road, on the ocean side, is not the kind of neighborhood where you'd walk across the backyard to borrow a tray of ice cubes. The big homes - there are Spanish villas and French villas and Italian villas and others that can only be described as pure Howard Johnson - are well separated by distance and a wall or thick shrubbery.

Behind the heavily veined banyan trees and down the stately rows of royal palms live some pretty impressive people. Immediately south of the road company New Frontier live the Robert A. Magowans. He is chairman of the board of Safeway Stores and she is a Merrill out of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith.

Next is Mrs. Robert R. Young, widow of the railroad tycoon, in whose home the Duke and Duchess of Windsor were introduced to Palm Beach Society. Then there are the Charles Wrightsmans, old friends of the Kennedys, at whose home the President and First Lady celebrated New Year's Eve in a white tie blast that included six of "the world's ten best-dressed women."

MOTHER WORRIES

Despite County Road's awesome wealth and forbidding exclusivity, there are things with which plain folks can identify. Rose Kennedy, who worries as mothers do everywhere, frequently expresses concern about the President's health. "Did you see him on television tonight?" she will ask a friend. "I thought he looked tired, didn't you?"

Many people along County Road have known John Kennedy since he was a skinny boy racing up and down the beach in old tennis sneakers, no sox. All of them knew him as Jack. But with his inaugural, they fell into the habit of referring to him only as the President.

Across the road the presidential image of a young, glamorous leader clearly needs repair work.

Katy Blatt, aged 8, asked her mother one day, "I don't understand why I just can't go over there and play with Caroline. What kind of people are they if we can't call them up to play with the kids?"

"Well, they're kind of special people."

Power Plant Expansion Is Needed

The proposed $6½ million revenue bond issue, which is vitally needed to finance a "must" expansion to the Monroe power and water systems, should, we believe, receive the wholehearted endorsement of the people of Monroe.

The issue was proposed by the Monroe Utilities Commission after a thorough study into the needs for the next few years. It was approved the past week by the City Council, which set March 12 as the date for the election.

Funds from the revenue bond will be used to boost the output of the power plant to 99,500 kilowatts, which the city must have by 1965 to give the people of this growing and progressive city the services they need and want. At the same time $1.4 million of the bond issue will be spent to improve the water system.

Modernization over a period of years has brought the power facilities to a point where they now meet existing demands. But at the present rate of growth, and not allowing for an increase, the facilities will be overtaxed in two more years.

No one, we feel sure, wants a return to the operation of a few years ago, which would be the case unless the expansion is made, when the service was inadequate, resulting in many interruptions that were costly to both businesses and homeowners. Such an attitude would not be progressive and in keeping with the spirit of Monroe.

Since the Monroe Utilities Commission took over operation of the facilities in 1956, service has been constantly improved. At the same time, the facilities have operated at a profit and have been able to pay for expansions in late years.

This is true in the present proposal. If approved, there will be no cost whatsoever to Monroe residents since the principal and interest payments will come from the available earnings.

Everyone will agree that the Utilities Commission has done an outstanding job of managing the facilities. Members serve without pay and have worked long hours to give the city its present excellent system. The general manager, French L. Smith, has done a top job in his position and works constantly to better the facilities, and improve the service.

We believe the people appreciate the tremendous job done by the utilities organization, and that they want the power and water systems to continue to meet the demands of a growing and progressive city. For these reasons alone, we believe the vast majority of Monroe citizens will stamp approval for the bond issue on March 12.

South's Farmers Lag

Agriculture in the south is falling behind because it is failing to use fully and wisely its farm lands and people, the Association of Southern Agricultural Workers was told recently in a meeting in Memphis.

L. Y. Ballentine, North Carolina commissioner of agriculture and president of the National Association of Agricultural Commissioners, said the south had made a start toward using acres released from production of such crops as cotton and feed grains but "there is evidence to show that the momentum has slowed or that the south has made progress in some respects at the expense of abandoning opportunities in others.

Ballentine cited several reasons for the south's leaving 27 million acres idle between 1945 and 1960.

One, he said, is the program aimed at reducing production crops which have developed surpluses.

Another is the concentration of farm production. Many southern farmers have practically stopped farming and allowed fertile acres to grow up in weeds because they are concentrating on poultry production.

Ballentine cited "the idea that all farming must be very large and a highly mechanized operation to be profitable."

One reason farmers have turned to poultry is that it is still one phase of agriculture that is not under government control and therefore does not necessitate the vast amount of bookkeeping and the great number of reports to the government that are required when controlled crops are grown.

Poultry-raising, under the house-growing method, requires little land. Those who raise poultry on a mass-production basis use only a few acres at most. If they concentrate on poultry they usually let their other land lie idle.

The speaker recommended that idle land be put back into production of new crops, such as fruits, vegetables and nuts and to produce beef, pork and milk. These, he said, are products which would attract processing industries to the area and help solve their problems. He stated:

"It is my belief that if the south would utilize fully, and wisely its total resources of farm land and farm people, the needed increase in non-farm jobs would take care of itself. No other segment of the economy constitutes such proportionately big markets for the products of industry as today's agriculture."

Undoubtedly, Ballentine is right in thinking that the general economic situation in the south could be greatly improved by an extended use of idle land. While the whole country is constantly threatened with over-production of farm crops, failure by southern farmers to raise and sell their share of these crops means that other sections can produce more than their share and therefore can boost the economy of those sections.

Southern farmers would do well to try to work around the crop control program in such a way that they can use their idle acres to make more money for themselves and to provide jobs for others in the processing plants that would be needed if production of the crops mentioned above were increased.

Boom In Automation

It is reported that as much as one-fifth of American industry's capital spending for new plant and equipment this year may be marked for automation and instrumentation.

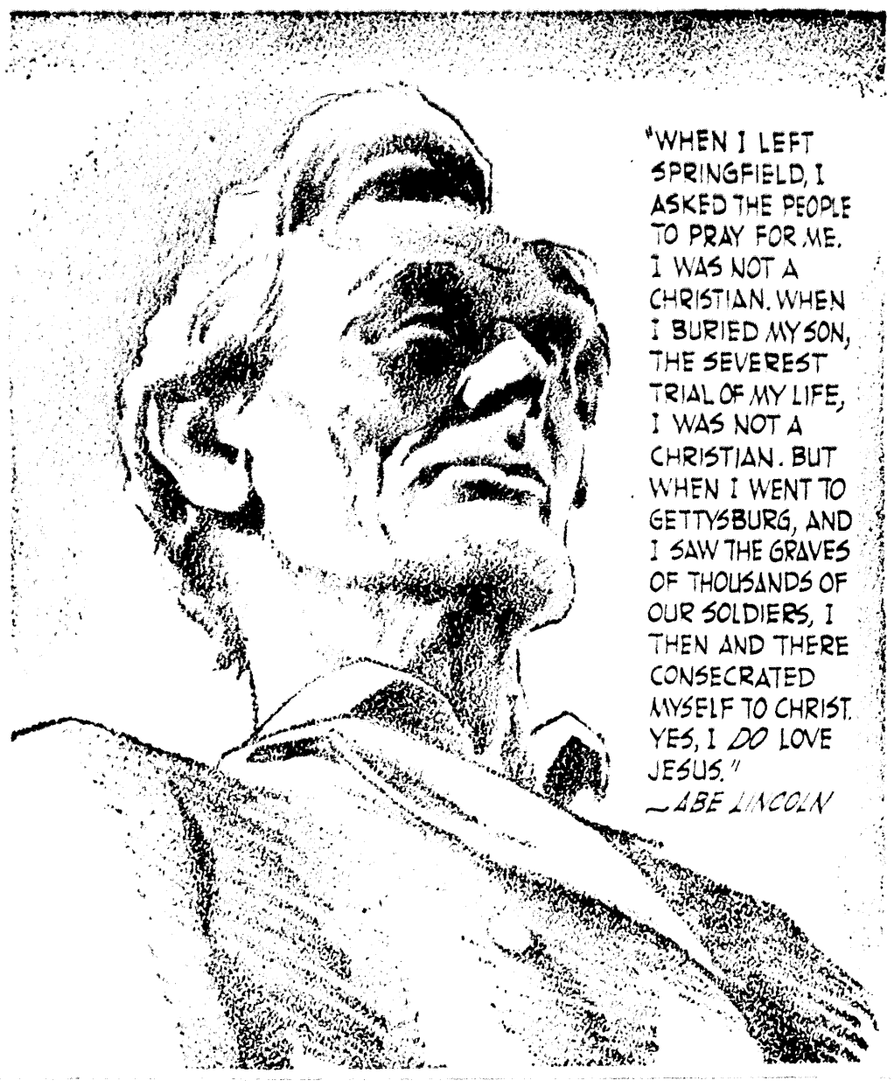

There is good reason for this. President Kennedy's crackdown on industry's margin of profit and his insistence that industry continue to grant wage increases without raising prices is forcing industry to turn, as much as possible to machine production in order to survive.

More than 3,500 new classrooms have been built in Kentucky in the past three years.

President Abraham Lincoln signed the Land - Grant College Act July 2, 1862.

If anyone called Nitro, W. Va., a "boom town," the residents might frown at the pun. But they really couldn't complain. For the city got its name from the explosives manufactured at a large federal plant there during World War I.

McNamara Is Contradicted

Three Naval Intelligence Estimates To Play Explosive Role In Senate Subcommittee's Probe

Three Naval Intelligence estimates will play an explosive role in the upcoming Senate Armed Services Preparedness Subcommittee's probe of the growing Soviet military build - up in Cuba.

These suppressed reports, now being studied by committee members, clearly show that the Navy's sea and air surveillance of Russian activities in Cuba reveal a striking contrast to the private and public statements by Kennedy Administration officials.

One ONI estimate directly contradicts Defense Secretary McNamara's flat assurances to the House Armed Service Committee that the Soviet has withdrawn its medium - range missiles, stating:

"In no instance were bare missiles disclosed for inspection during the Navy's surveillance of eight Soviet ships between 5 and 9 November."

In his sworn testimony before the House committee, McNamara told the legislators:

"We are convinced beyond any reasonable doubt that 42 medium-range ballistic missiles were removed from Cuba aboard eight Soviet ships between 5 and 9 November and that 42 IL-28 bombers were similarly removed between 5 and 6 December.

"All of the IL-28 bombers and 35 of the missile transporters were uncovered for photographic and visual alongside inspection while Soviet vessels were at sea, and the remainder of the missiles were observed covered in exactly the same observation condition as previously noted at the specific missile sites."

Inasmuch as the Navy conducted these on - the - spot inspections, the senators plan to grill Secretary McNamara on why that service's intelligence evaluation of its findings differs so greatly from his conclusions.

This same Naval estimate listed three pages of supporting missile launching equipment spotted by low - level flights over Cuba that never showed up on photographs of weapons leaving the island.

COUNTING KILOGRAMS—Another alarming Naval Intelligence estimate clashes head - on with President Kennedy's continued public assurances that no new Russian strategic weapons have been detected entering Cuba since last October.

This ONI report reveals that Naval surveillance of Soviet ships last month uncovered some convincing evidence that Russia is gain building a formidable stockpile of nuclear weapons in Cuba.

A total of 750 kilograms of fissionable material was detected aboard Russian vessels docking at ports near Havana and Banes during one week period in mid-January.

The detection of this huge amount of nuclear material, according to the estimate, indicates only one thing — the presence of nuclear weapons.

A third Naval Intelligence report deals with the so - called "fishing port" the Soviets are building in Cuba. It states flatly that photographic and visual evidence indicates the Russians are constructing a "strategic" naval base, large enough to handle an entire Soviet coastal fleet. The building of oversize docks, unloading cranes, and extra - large fuel bunkers are cited as supporting evidence of the military nature of the base.

It is the Navy's frank assessment that this base will be used for Communist expansion throughout the Western Hemisphere. From Cuba, hordes of weapons and trained fighters will be transported by Soviet submarines to carry on revolution and subversion activities into one Latin American country after another.

If Secretary McNamara is completely disregarding these highly reliable Naval reports — as his public and private statements indicate — the senators want to know his reasons. If he hasn't read them, they want to know why.

Until Germany can be split away from France, the President believes that De Gaulle and Chancellor Adenauer hold a whip hand that could cut deep into U. S. gold reserves if the U. S. tried to put economic pressure on France at this time.

Together, France and West Germany now hold $4 billion of the $21 billion in foreign claims now outstanding against U. S. gold reserves. Since there now are an estimated $17 billion in foreign claims above required U. S. gold reserves, a joint French - German demand for payment could easily touch off a U. S. balance-of-payments crisis.

This vulnerability of the U. S. dollar was noted by the President at this week's White House briefing of Democratic congressional leaders.

During the discussion on De Gaulle's Common Market veto of Great Britain, Senate Democratic Whip Hubert Humphrey, Minn., proposed to the President:

"Couldn't we apply economic pressure against France to make De Gaulle more reasonable to deal with?"

"As long as Germany and France are linked so closely together, economic pressure could be a two - way sword," replied the President. "Those governments alone hold more than $4 billion in claims against our gold supply. That puts us in a very vulnerable position, if they should jointly exercise their claims."

That ended the discussion.

New Tax Credit

Deductions May Be Made On Depreciable Personal Property

As a business or professional man who bought depreciable, tangible personal property in 1962, you well may find an unexpected tax cut available to you when you fill out your 1962 return. This cut is in the form of a brand new credit which you take as a straight reduction in your tax, not just as a deduction from taxable income. It is almost the equivalent of a cash rebate. Thus, be sure you take full advantage of the new credit by completing Form 3468 and filing it with your tax return.

Your cost base for computing your depreciation deduction is reduced by the amount of credit to which you are entitled, whether or not you actually take the credit. It would be exceedingly wasteful for you not to take the credit if you are entitled to it — and you are entitled to the credit for depreciable, tangible personal property you bought in 1962 if it has a useful life of four years or more and is used in a trade or business or for the production of income. The credit is not allowed for buildings and their structural components nor for livestock.

The amount of the credit varies with the length of the expected useful life of the asset you buy. If you bought equipment with a useful life of four to less than six years, you get only one-third of the full 7 per cent credit of the cost of the equipment; if its expected useful life is six to less than eight years, you get two-thirds of the full 7 per cent credit; if the equipment's expected useful life is eight years or more, you get a tax credit equal to a full 7 per cent of the equipment's cost.

Here is how this works. Say you bought a new business car in 1962 for $3,000, a truck for $4,000 and two pieces of equipment for $10,000 each. The car has a useful life of three years, the truck four years, one piece of equipment six years, the other eight years. You compute your 1962 tax - cutting investment credit as follows:

Truck — one-third of 7 percent of $4,000, or	$93
First equipment — two-thirds of 7 per cent of $10,000, or	$466
Second equipment — 100 per cent of 7 per cent of $10,000, or	$700
Total credit	$1,259

If your 1962 tax comes to, say, $3,000, you'll pay $1,259 of it with your investment credit.

One caution. The cost of the assets on which depreciation is computed must be reduced by the credit. So in the above example, depreciation for 1962 on the truck would have to be based on $4,000 less a $93 credit or $3,907, etc.

The new investment credit is not limited to a manufacturer, retailer, etc. A salesman who bought a car for business can take the credit if he intends to use his car for at least four years. A dentist who bought a new dental chair can take the credit, a doctor who bought a new X-ray machine can take the credit, and so on.

Here is how the new 7 per cent investment credit ties in with the special flat 20 per cent depreciation you, as a business or professional man, can claim in the first year you acquire new or used depreciable tangible personal property having a useful life of at least six years. While all other depreciation (straight line, declining balance, etc.) is based on the cost less the new investment credit, this is not so for 20 per cent first year depreciation. Both the new investment credit and 20 per cent depreciation are figured on the same full cost. Do not overlook this when you're completing your 1962 return.

For instance, if you bought a machine with a useful life of 10 years for $10,000, take a 7 per cent investment credit of $700 (7 per cent of $10,000) and a 20 per cent first year depreciation deduction of $2,000 (20 per cent of $10,000). Then compute your regular depreciation for 1962 on this property on an adjusted cost of $7,300 ($10,000 less $2,000 less $700).

One warning: there are certain detailed exceptions on the kinds of property on which you can take the credit, which you should discuss with your accountant or attorney. Also, there is no dollar limit on purchases of new property eligible for the credit, but only up to $50,000 of used property bought in any year is eligible for the credit.

Tomorrow: Casualty losses.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U.S. Senator From Arizona

Dozens of telegrams, letters and telephone calls have come to me from Cuban exiles living in this country since I called for an investigation of the Bay of Pigs invasion attempt. Many of them were from men who participated in the abortive invasion attempt in April of 1961. Many others were from persons in positions to know what the understanding was among the Cubans prior to the invasion.

These people all insist that the United States promised air and naval support for the invading force. Some of those who took part insisted that they wouldn't have dreamed of going ashore on Castro's Cuban bastion if they hadn't expected this kind of support.

Now against this, we have statements by President Kennedy and his brother, the Attorney General, claiming that no air support was ever planned or promised for the invasion attempt at the Bay of Pigs. The President explains that the United States might as well have gone ahead and conducted the whole invasion with American forces if it was going to supply United States air support.

In his account, the Attorney General claims that the invasion plans — without provision for air cover — were approved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Central Intelligence Agency as well as the President.

This contention brings up what I believe is one of the most important reasons why a thorough-going investigation of the Bay of Pigs fiasco is needed right away. It is that the Congress and the people of the United States must find out once and for all just how much influence inexperienced civilian officials are wielding in military matters which affect the security of the United States and the cause of freedom throughout the world.

I say very frankly that the plan for the invasion of Cuba — as described by the Attorney General — looks exclusively like the work of some civilian strategists who have never faced up to the realities of a rigid military situation. It certainly looks like the last type of military operation that would ever gain the approval of men who drew their experience from World War II or the Korean War.

Why is it, for example, that in 1961 the administration thought we could invade Cuba with 1500 men without benefit of air cover or naval support, but in 1962, when it was thought we might have to invade Cuba to force removal of Russian missiles, a force of more than 300,000 men and every kind of air and naval support possible was mobilized?

It is true that in the interim the Castro government had obtained heavy supplies and manpower from the Soviet bloc nations. But he certainly didn't receive enough to make this kind of a difference in our plans for invasion.

Regardless of what was planned by the United States in connection with the Bay of Pigs operation, it is fully apparent that many of the men who engaged in the disastrous adventure — men who died or suffered through imprisonment — thought the American government intended to give them air support.

In other words, if we accept the administration's present explanation, many men lost their lives or risked their lives on the basis of a false impression. This, by itself, argues strongly for an investigation to show who in authority with the United States government gave substance to this false impression — if, indeed, that is what it was.

As I have said on the Senate floor, I believe the Senate Committee on Armed Services should conduct a full and impartial inquiry into these unhappy events so the American people will have the full facts.

How do you stand, sir?

Federal Subsidies

Government Regulation Of Farming And Education Is Sought

Although President Kennedy regards his tax program as the "most urgent task confronting the Congress in 1963," he is pressing for enactment also of other far-reaching proposals which already have run into formidable opposition.

The House Ways and Means Committee opened hearings on the Administration's tax proposals — and a prolonged battle is certain.

Other major controversies already have developed on Administration programs for federal subsidies for education, for federal regulation of — farm production, and for higher social security taxes to provide health aid for the elderly.

These are only some of the many proposals urged by the Administration — most of which face an uncertain future.

An all-out battle is being waged by the Administration for tax legislation, on the ground that it is needed as a tonic for the sluggish economy — but also in the belief that its enactment would improve Democratic prospects in the 1964 Presidential and congressional elections.

The latter goal was clearly outlined in an address to the Democratic National Committee by Theodore C. Sorensen, who is Mr. Kennedy's special counsel and speech writer.

Mr. Sorensen asserted that enactment of the tax program would help solve economic and other problems which otherwise might handicap Democratic candidates — including the President — in 1964.

Discussing future prospects, he said that "we're in for a — of a battle" in both the 88th Congress and in the 1964 election.

He expressed confidence, however, that the Administration would be successful in both endeavors.

Much of the Kennedy program, however, is encountering strong opposition in Congress on the ground that it is too costly and would centralize far too much additional power in the federal government.

This has caused some to believe that, in order to get a tax bill through Congress, the Administration may concentrate its forces in this area and be more willing than in the past to accept moderate compromises in social legislation.

If this policy is pursued it will mean, in effect, postponing to 1963 the big push for items like medicare, but in the meantime to move through Congress "moderate" beginnings of progress that could later burgeon into tremendous spending.

WOULD SUBSIDIZE EDUCATION

The fate of the Administration's program for federal subsidies for education was very much in doubt as the full House and Education and Labor Committee began hearings.

A massive 182-page multibillion dollar measure — wrapping up in one package 24 separate assistance proposals — was introduced by Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D. N.Y.) and by Senator Morse (D-Ore.).

Rep. Powell is chairman of the House Committee and Senator Morse is chairman of a Senate Education subcommittee.

Administration sources admit that the cost will be at least $4.6 billion over the next three years — but opponents contend that the total is certain to exceed $7 billion.

Strong opposition by many who believe that educational problems can best be solved on the state and local levels is augmented by the racial and religious controversies this legislation has run into.

Among the proposals was a $1.5 billion four - year program for public elementary and secondary classroom construction and for teachers' salaries. Congress last year rejected a $2.5 billion three year propgram.

Another proposal was a $1 billion three - year program to aid construction of public and private non-profit colleges and universities. Congress last year rejected a $2,345,000,000 five-year program of federal aid for college construction — as well as for student scholarships. The scholarship proposal was dropped this year.

There is great opposition to the single package approach - "something for everyone," except private elementary and secondary schools — but the omnibus bill can be split up into separate measures later if the Administration should so desire.

Until Germany can be split away from France, the President believes that De Gaulle and Chancellor Adenauer hold a whip hand that could cut deep into U. S. gold reserves if the U. S. tried to put economic pressure on France at this time.

Together, France and West Germany now hold $4 billion of the $21 billion in foreign claims now outstanding against U. S. gold reserves. Since there now are an estimated $17 billion in foreign claims above required U. S. gold reserves, a joint French - German demand for payment could easily touch off a U. S. balance-of-payments crisis.

This vulnerability of the U. S. dollar was noted by the President at this week's White House briefing of Democratic congressional leaders.

During the discussion on De Gaulle's Common Market veto of Great Britain, Senate Democratic Whip Hubert Humphrey, Minn., proposed to the President:

"Couldn't we apply economic pressure against France to make De Gaulle more reasonable to deal with?"

"As long as Germany and France are linked so closely together, economic pressure could be a two - way sword," replied the President. "Those governments alone hold more than $4 billion in claims against our gold supply. That puts us in a very vulnerable position, if they should jointly exercise their claims."

That ended the discussion.

New Tax Credit

Deductions May Be Made On Depreciable Personal Property

As a business or professional man who bought depreciable, tangible personal property in 1962, you well may find an unexpected tax cut available to you when you fill out your 1962 return. This cut is in the form of a brand new credit which you take as a straight reduction in your tax, not just as a deduction from taxable income. It is almost the equivalent of a cash rebate. Thus, be sure you take full advantage of the new credit by completing Form 3468 and filing it with your tax return.

Your cost base for computing your depreciation deduction is reduced by the amount of credit to which you are entitled, whether or not you actually take the credit. It would be exceedingly wasteful for you not to take the credit if you are entitled to it — and you are entitled to the credit for depreciable, tangible personal property you bought in 1962 if it has a useful life of four years or more and is used in a trade or business or for the production of income. The credit is not allowed for buildings and their structural components nor for livestock.

The amount of the credit varies with the length of the expected useful life of the asset you buy. If you bought equipment with a useful life of four to less than six years, you get only one-third of the full 7 per cent credit of the cost of the equipment; if its expected useful life is six to less than eight years, you get two-thirds of the full 7 per cent credit; if the equipment's expected useful life is eight years or more, you get a tax credit equal to a full 7 per cent of the equipment's cost.

Here is how this works. Say you bought a new business car in 1962 for $3,000, a truck for $4,000 and two pieces of equipment for $10,000 each. The car has a useful life of three years, the truck four years, one piece of equipment six years, the other eight years. You compute your 1962 tax - cutting investment credit as follows:

Truck — one-third of 7 percent of $4,000, or	$93
First equipment — two-thirds of 7 per cent of $10,000, or	$466
Second equipment — 100 per cent of 7 per cent of $10,000, or	$700
Total credit	$1,259.

If your 1962 tax comes to, say, $3,000, you'll pay $1,259 of it with your investment credit.

One caution. The cost of the assets on which depreciation is computed must be reduced by the credit. So in the above example, depreciation for 1962 on the truck would have to be based on $4,000 less a $93 credit or $3,907, etc.

The new investment credit is not limited to a manufacturer, retailer, etc. A salesman who bought a car for business can take the credit if he intends to use his car for at least four years. A dentist who bought a new dental chair can take the credit, a doctor who bought a new X-ray machine can take the credit, and so on.

Here is how the new 7 per cent investment credit ties in with the special flat 20 per cent depreciation you, as a business or professional man, can claim in the first year you acquire new or used depreciable tangible personal property having a useful life of at least six years. While all other depreciation (straight line, declining balance, etc.) is based on the cost less the new investment credit, this is not so for 20 per cent first year depreciation. Both the new investment credit and 20 per cent depreciation are figured on the same full cost. Do not overlook this when you're completing your 1962 return.

For instance, if you bought a machine with a useful life of 10 years for $10,000, take a 7 per cent investment credit of $700 (7 per cent of $10,000) and a 20 per cent first year depreciation deduction of $2,000 (20 per cent of $10,000). Then compute your regular depreciation for 1962 on this property on an adjusted cost of $7,300 ($10,000 less $2,000 less $700).

One warning: there are certain detailed exceptions on the kinds of property on which you can take the credit, which you should discuss with your accountant or attorney. Also, there is no dollar limit on purchases of new property eligible for the credit, but only up to $50,000 of used property bought in any year is eligible for the credit.

Tomorrow: Casualty losses.

By BARRY GOLDWATER
U.S. Senator From Arizona

Dozens of telegrams, letters and telephone calls have come to me from Cuban exiles living in this country since I called for an investigation of the Bay of Pigs invasion attempt. Many of them were from men who participated in the abortive invasion attempt in April of 1961. Many others were from persons in positions to know what the understanding was among the Cubans prior to the invasion.

These people all insist that the United States promised air and naval support for the invading force. Some of those who took part insisted that they wouldn't have dreamed of going ashore on Castro's Cuban bastion if they hadn't expected this kind of support.

Now against this, we have statements by President Kennedy and his brother, the Attorney General, claiming that no air support was ever planned or promised for the invasion attempt at the Bay of Pigs. The President explains that the United States might as well have gone ahead and conducted the whole invasion with American forces if it was going to supply United States air support.

In his account, the Attorney General claims that the invasion plans — without provision for air cover — were approved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Central Intelligence Agency as well as the President.

This contention brings up what I believe is one of the most important reasons why a thoroughgoing investigation of the Bay of Pigs fiasco is needed right away. It is that the Congress and the people of the United States must find out once and for all just how much influence inexperienced civilian officials are wielding in military matters which affect the security of the United States and the cause of freedom throughout the world.

I say very frankly that the plan for the invasion of Cuba — as described by the Attorney General — looks exclusively like the work of some civilian strategists who have never faced up to the realities of a rigid military situation. It certainly looks like the last type of military operation that would ever gain the approval of men who drew their experience from World War II or the Korean War.

Why is it, for example, that in 1961 the administration thought we could invade Cuba with 1500 men without benefit of air cover or naval support, but in 1962, when it was thought we might have to invade Cuba to force removal of Russian missiles, a force of more than 300,000 men and every kind of air and naval support possible was mobilized?

It is true that in the interim the Castro government had obtained heavy supplies and manpower from the Soviet bloc nations. But he certainly didn't receive enough to make this kind of a difference in our plans for invasion.

Regardless of what was planned by the United States in connection with the Bay of Pigs operation, it is fully apparent that many of the men who engaged in the disastrous adventure — men who died or suffered through imprisonment — thought the American government intended to give them air support.

In other words, if we accept the administration's present explanation, many men lost their lives or risked their lives on the basis of a false impression. This, by itself, argues strongly for an investigation to show who in authority with the United States government gave substance to this false impression — if, indeed, that is what it was.

As I have said on the Senate floor, I believe the Senate Committee on Armed Services should conduct a full and impartial inquiry into these unhappy events so the American people will have the full facts.

How do you stand, sir?

Government Regulation Of Farming And Education Is Sought

Although President Kennedy regards his tax program as the "most urgent task confronting the Congress in 1963," he is pressing for enactment also of other far-reaching proposals which already have run into formidable opposition.

The House Ways and Means Committee opened hearings on the Administration's tax proposals — and a prolonged battle is certain.

Other major controversies already have developed on Administration programs for federal subsidies for education, for federal regulation of — farm production, and for higher social security taxes to provide health aid for the elderly.

These are only some of the many proposals urged by the Administration — most of which face an uncertain future.

An all-out battle is being waged by the Administration for tax legislation, on the ground that it is needed as a tonic for the sluggish economy — but also in the belief that its enactment would improve Democratic prospects in the 1964 Presidential and congressional elections.

The latter goal was clearly outlined in an address to the Democratic National Committee by Theodore C. Sorensen, who is Mr. Kennedy's special counsel and speech writer.

Mr. Sorensen asserted that enactment of the tax program would help solve economic and other problems which otherwise might handicap Democratic candidates — including the President — in 1964.

Discussing future prospects, he said that "we're in for a — of a battle" in both the 88th Congress and in the 1964 election.

He expressed confidence, however, that the Administration would be successful in both endeavors.

Much of the Kennedy program, however, is encountering strong opposition in Congress on the ground that it is too costly and would centralize far too much additional power in the federal government.

This has caused some to believe that, in order to get a tax bill through Congress, the Administration may concentrate its forces in this area and be more willing than in the past to accept moderate compromises in social legislation.

If this policy is pursued it will mean, in effect, postponing to 1963 the big push for items like medicare, but in the meantime to move through Congress "moderate" beginnings of progress that could later burgeon into tremendous spending.

WOULD SUBSIDIZE EDUCATION

The fate of the Administration's program for federal subsidies for education was very much in doubt as the full House and Education and Labor Committee began hearings.

A massive 182-page multibillion dollar measure — wrapping up in one package 24 separate assistance proposals — was introduced by Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D. N.Y.) and by Senator Morse (D-Ore.).

Rep. Powell is chairman of the House Committee and Senator Morse is chairman of a Senate Education subcommittee.

Administration sources admit that the cost will be at least $4.6 billion over the next three years — but opponents contend that the total is certain to exceed $7 billion.

Strong opposition by many who believe that educational problems can best be solved on the state and local levels is augmented by the racial and religious controversies this legislation has run into.

Among the proposals was a $1.5 billion four - year program for public elementary and secondary classroom construction and for teachers' salaries. Congress last year rejected a $2.5 billion three-year propgram.

Another proposal was a $1 billion three - year program to aid construction of public and private non-profit colleges and universities. Congress last year rejected a $2,345,000,000 five-year program of federal aid for college construction — as well as for student scholarships. The scholarship proposal was dropped this year.

There is great opposition to the single package approach — "something for everyone," except private elementary and secondary schools — but the omnibus bill can be split up into separate measures later if the Administration should so desire.

The Week In Focus

Cuba -- The Sore Thumb

When is a military buildup offensive in nature and when is it merely defensive?

That fine line of distinction was argued and discussed around the world the past week, and particularly in Washington. Accusations continued to be made that the Soviet Union is shyly building up a tremendous military machine in Cuba, only 90 miles from the U.S. despite the supposed withdrawal of Russian missiles from the island last October.

Many congressmen claimed to have evidence of the Soviet buildup and in some instances military men privately agreed with them. The dispute became so thorny for the New Frontier administration that President Kennedy and his top officials pushed everything else aside and went before the American people with it.

MCNAMARA

On Wednesday, Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara and CIA Director John A. McCone, armed with stacks of photographs and intelligence reports, held an unprecedented press conference to deny the charges of a Soviet buildup.

McNamara said "we are convinced beyond reasonable doubt that all offensive missiles and bombers known to be in Cuba have been pulled out." He said he was satisfied there are no major elements of offensive weapons systems in the caves of Cuba, although he acknowledged there still are about 17,000 Soviet troops in Cuba.

McCone echoed McNamara's statement, but did admit weakly under questioning from the Senate Armed Services Preparedness Subcommittee that large quantities of Soviet tanks, guns, aircraft and troops remain in Cuba, and that a "relatively small amount" of Soviet military equipment has reached Cuba in the period since the quarantine was imposed last fall.

McNamara did concede that there were five kinds of Soviet missiles in Cuba, but claimed they posed no threat to the U.S.

On Thursday, President Kennedy threw his weight behind the statements, but left an out in case another situation developed like that last fall. He repeatedly asserted that the U.S. has no evidence of any offensive weapons on the island, but conceded missiles could be concealed in Cuba. He declared that anything is possible or conceivable. "After our experience last fall, we operate on the assumption that we are hoping for the best, but expect the worst. It is very possible the worst will come." However, the President sounded a grave warning when he said that the world would face its greatest crisis in history if the U.S. ever again should detect Soviet offensive missiles in Cuba.

Many Congressmen failed to buy the administration's explanation, saying that any type of Soviet equipment in Cuba was a menace to the U.S.

KEATING

Senator Kenneth B. Keating of New York, the chief congressional critic of the Cuban situation, said, after the round-robin explanation, that evidence given still "verifies my contention that the Soviet bastion in Cuba is at least 10 times stronger now than it was in July." He added, "The Soviets have not brought thousands of troops and millions of rubles worth of equipment into Cuba merely to bask in the Cuban sun."

Senator John Stennis of Mississippi, chairman of the preparedness subcommittee, said he didn't see any lessening of the military threat in Cuba after all the "talk I've heard" either, and went ahead with plans to continue hearings in the matter. The same situation held true in the House where Rep. Armistead Selden of Alabama said his subcommittee on inter-American affairs will open hearings February 18 on "the nature of the Castro-Communist subversive apparatus" in the Western Hemisphere.

Other intelligence reports, outside the government, claim the Soviets have, among other things, 18,700 troops, including five generals in Cuba, 44 medium and intermediate-range missiles, 140 or more ground-to-air missiles, 184 MIG fighters, 260 tanks, 32 patrol boats and tremendous amounts of smaller arms.

Who is right? No one knows—only time will tell. But the look ahead indicates another Cuban crisis—one that could touch off a major conflict. The least that could happen would be an attempt by the Soviets to take over Latin America through Castro-types of revolutions . . .

Other Domestic Issues

AS IF TROUBLE with President Charles de Gaulle of France over the Common Market and Cuba wasn't enough, the U.S. still was involved in the dispute with Canada over the arming of Canadian forces—both at home and in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization—with U.S. nuclear weapons. The major controversy has resulted in the fall of Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker's government and the call for a new national election to be held April 8. The open break came when Diefenbaker accused the U.S. of meddling in Canada's internal affairs. During the forthcoming campaigns, Diefenbaker has promised to play down anti-Americanism, but emphasized bluntly that the nuclear dispute would be an issue. The controversy didn't make many congressmen any too happy and the worst part—a big gap still remains in U.S. nuclear defenses. . . in the event of an attack by the Soviet Union.

ON THE CHEERING side, a new breed of Polaris missile, designed to bring all land areas of the world within range of rocket-firing nuclear submarines scored its first test flight success the past week after six failures. The advanced Polaris, the third generation A3 model, traveled 1,840 miles. Eventually it will have a reach of 2,875 miles. When the A3 becomes operational in about 18 months, no target in the world will be immune from the fleet of Polaris submarines, the Navy says. . .

IN CONGRESS the past week, President Kennedy sent in his major health proposals, calling for improvement in the nation's health and boosting its medical facilities and manpower. Briefly, his proposal calls for the expenditure of $1.6 billion, an increase of $250 million more than the current price tag. It would support training of more doctors, dentists and nurses, extend for five years authority to share cost of building new hospitals and strengthen federal authority over sales of cosmetics, over-the-counter drugs and other items. He also envisioned the cutting of the nation's mental hospital population in half. He reserved the details of his controversial medicare program for his special message on aging expected to go to Congress late next week. The proposal was defeated in the last Congress, and little chance is seen for passage this year . . . New trouble also cropped up on his aid-to-education proposal. A spokesman for the Roman Catholic church, renewing the church's long-standing feud with the President over the issue, said the plan was "totally unacceptable." . . . And the furor over the Presidents Tax Cut and "Reform" plan continued to meet stiff opposition, although Treasurer Secretary Douglas Dillon attempted to put a little pressure on by saying the administration "feels the program is needed to forestall a recession." . . .

KENNEDY

POLITICIANS like to talk, and U.S. Senators are no exception. This was proven the past week when Senate liberals lost their 1963 fight to make it easier to cut off filibuster. The reason given—the historic reluctance of the senators to tamper with their right to talk as long as they want. . . THE ARMY is planning to form a new group of anti-guerrilla experts and base it in the Panama Canal Zone—in position to help Latin American nations cope with any Cuban-formented uprisings. Many are expected to develop now. . . THE SUPERINTENDENT of District of Columbia schools reports disciplinary problems in the schools there have become aggravated so acutely that teachers now have reached the breaking point. He blames a breakdown in family responsibility for much of the problem. Washington schools now have almost 90 per cent Negro enrollment. . . THE GOVERNMENT says it may have to provide schools at some military bases in Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina this fall if children living on the stations are to attend non-segregated schools. The cost would be tremendous. . . . AND SENATOR Hugh Scott has accused the State Department of "news management bordering on outright censorship." He issued the statement after Milton Friedman, reporter for the Jewish Telegraphic Agency was banned from a background briefing on the Middle East.

A Tall General Named Defiance

Harsh words and undiplomatic charges were hurled at French President Charles de Gaulle the past week, but the scarred old veteran of many a battle continued to breathe defiance at the U.S. and England over the European Common Market and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization plan.

THE BOILING storm was the major topic of conversation in the Pubs of London and the Bistros of Paris, as well as in the capitals of the world.

Frenchmen on the whole and in true Gallic fashion were proud of their "general" for "spitting in the face" of the English and Americans, while in Britain many classes in French were discontinued and Princess Margaret and her husband cancelled a visit to France. But the Pub and Bistro owners were happy . . . business had never been better and if this was a sample of the Common Market, they wanted more.

But diplomats and heads of state were worried. In a secret Brussels meeting, 40 representatives of CM nations except France, the charge was made that de Gaulle poses "a more deadly threat to Western Europe and the Free World than Russian Communism." All agreed on "the dire necessity to put an immediate stop to de Gaulle's bid for domination of Europe."

The dispute broke out when de Gaulle vetoed British entry into the CM and also declared France would build an independent nuclear force, thereby rejecting the U.S. plan for a multi-nation Western nuclear defense with U.S. weapons.

In London, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan referred to de Gaulle as trying to act like a Hitler. Other common market nations, notably Holland, Italy and Belgium, attacked what they called de Gaulle's "grand design" for a French-dominated Europe, independent of the U.S., and threatened to pull out of the CM. President Kennedy, expressing disappointment over the dispute, nevertheless called for continued Western Unity and said "I think it would be a disaster if we should divide at a time when very stormy seas lie ahead and unity is essential." In Bonn, Chancellor Adenauer tried to allay fears that his new treaty with France would now drive a wedge between West Germany and the U.S.

ADENAUER

Lashing back de Gaulle, still defiant of all charges, claimed the U.S. was trying to use Britain to set up a "free trade" market in Europe for American goods because "the Americans can no longer sell anything to Africans, the South Americans and even to the Arabs." And he said the Anglo-American agreement on the Polaris and the multi-nation nuclear force changed his attitude on British application for entry into Europe, thereby hinting he, too, should have been invited to the Bahamas talks where the plan was formulated. As a parting shot, he said he wasn't a Hitler, but that he had been compared to a Napoleon.

What's ahead—very rough going for the West and a probable change in several governments before the dispute is settled.

Other Foreign Developments

IN THE meanwhile, the Soviet Union has informed France that if the West German army should be given control of atomic weapons this "would signify a very serious deterioration of the situation in Europe." It said in such an event, this would be "considered an immediate menace to the Soviet Union's interests and would oblige it immediately to take the necessary measure which such a situation would dictate." There seems little room for doubt but for once the Soviets were really serious and such an event could touch off a firecracker situation.

THE SOVIET Union has also protested against visits of U.S. nuclear submarines to Japan, saying they will "pave the way" for the introduction of American nuclear weapons into Japan. The Japanese rejected the note, but said the submarines will not be armed with nuclear missiles.

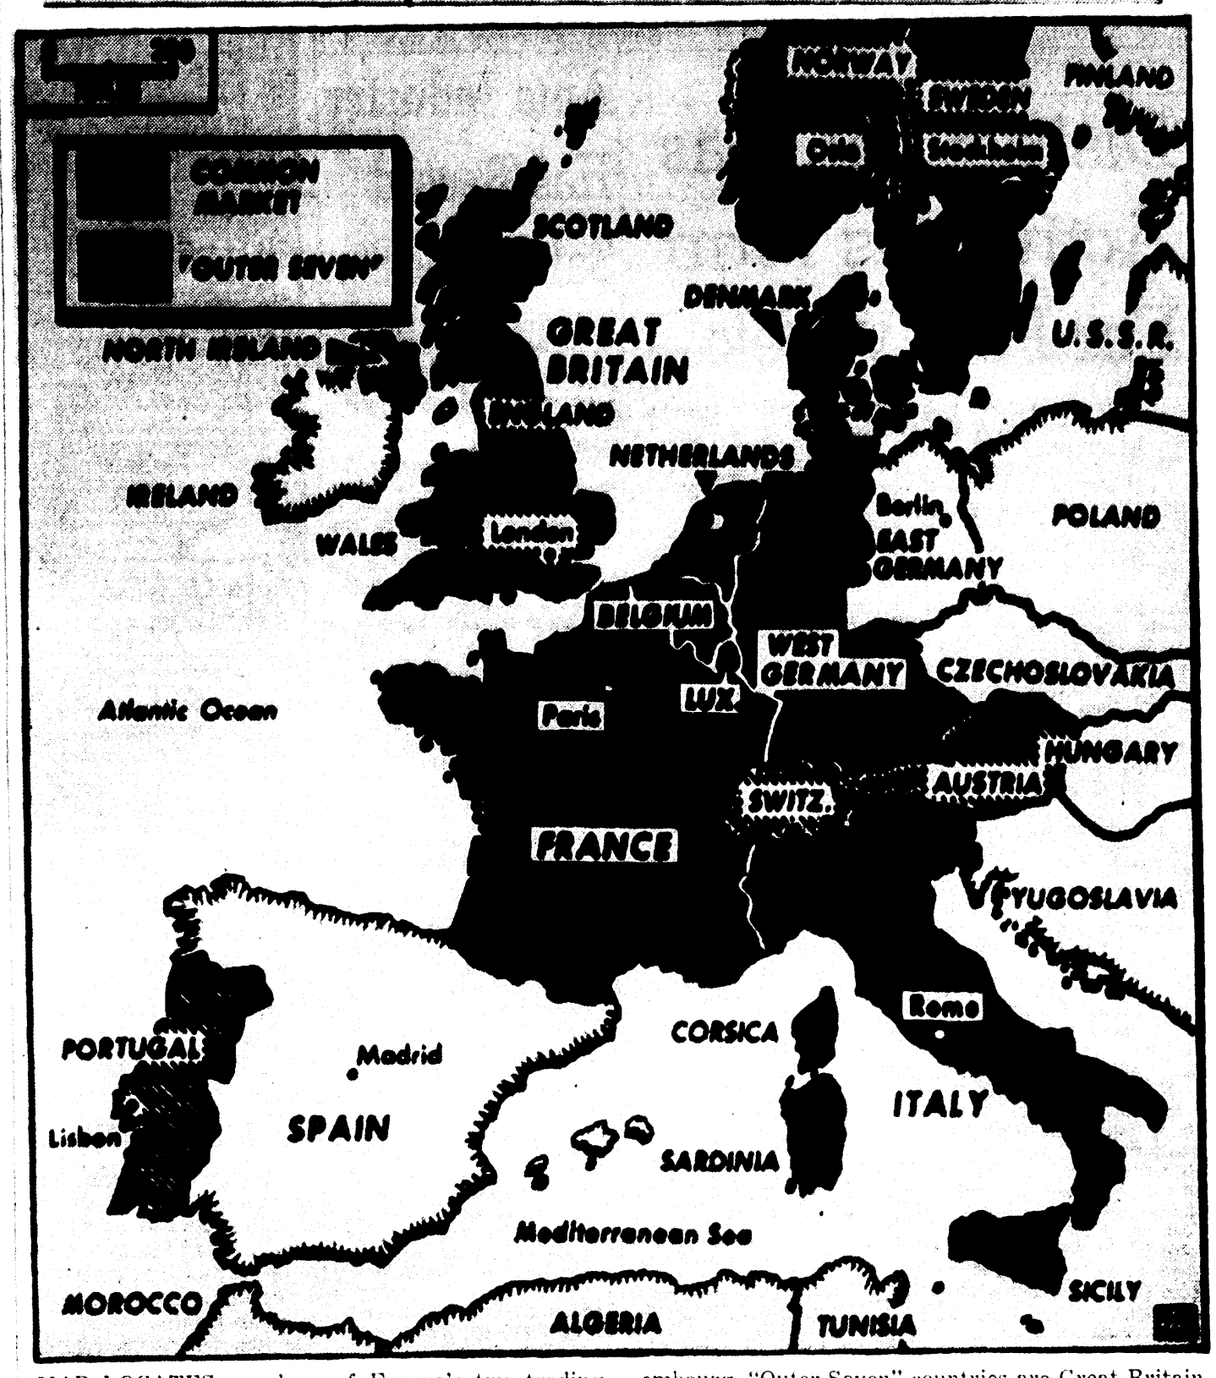

A STORIED old Riff rebel warrior, Abd El Krim, who almost wrested control of his native Morocco from Spain and France in the 1920s died in exile the past week. At the height of his career he and his 100,000 Riff warriors smashed one Spanish army and massacred another. . .

APPARENTLY North Viet Nam is trying to become a neutralist in the Communist camp—something no other nation has been able to accomplish. Heavily dependent on both the Soviet Union and Red China, the Hanoi bailiwick of the veteran Moscow-trained Ho Chi Minh hopes to avoid offending either by keeping a political balance in the ideological split between Moscow and Peking. In recent months, the Soviet Union is called the "center" of the communist world rather than "the leader" and China usually is called "our great ally." . . .

MEANWHILE, the dirty "little war" in South Viet Nam continues to claim U.S. lives and planes. A Vietnamese air force fighter-bomber piloted by two U.S. AF captains crashed and exploded the past week. It was not known if communist gunfire brought the plane down. One American was killed. The communist say they can win this one eventually because the "U.S. lacks staying power." . . .

AND A FOOTNOTE to history . . . Some of the drugs sent to Fidel Castro as ransom for Cuban prisoners carry a special marking which will show if Castro sells or barters them abroad rather than using them in Cuba. It is hard to understand what difference it would make anyway. The pie has already been snatched from the back window. . .

Food Is Major Problem For L. America

By FRANK BRUTTO

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—For years food production has not kept pace with the growth of population in Latin America—and the worst is yet to come. There are 200 million mouths to feed now. In 20 years the number is expected to be 360 million.

The answer? Authorities agree that land reform, splitting up big estates where necessary and puting all available soil to better use, can make a dent in the problem. This is a keystone of the Alliance for Progress program which the United States is backing.

What, then, of land reform? Is it getting anywhere?

Reports from Associated Press bureaus show progress in spots, but in general little accomplished so far.

Argentina, once a prime supplier of wheat, has almost dropped out of the world market for this commodity. Brazil, which has replaced Argentina as Latin America's biggest agricultural producer, urgently needs better land utilization.

Mexico, with a 45 per cent gain in agricultural produce in 25 years, has made notable progress. Venezuela is making some progress. But, by and large, land reform is a tremendous problem for Brazil, Chile, Peru, Bolivia, Ecuador, Colombia and nearly all other countries of Latin America.

Population density is not yet high in Latin America. The U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization estimates that only about 100 million hectares (247 million acres) of Latin America's total two billion hectares are arable. About 370 million hectares are used for permanent meadow or pasture. Nearly half of the total—one billion hectares—is forest land and the remainder is unproductive.

RESOURCES BIG

Land resources still are large because only about 5 per cent of the land has been brought under cultivation, compared with more than 10 per cent for the world as a whole.

Farm efficiency is low. There is one tractor for every 304 arable hectares compared with one to 43 hectares in the United States. The worker's average output is $450. It is twice that in Western Europe and $3,350 in the United States.

Dr. Herman Santa Cruz, assistant director of FAO for Latin America, says that in the next 40 years Latin America must at least triple its food production.

Argentina — Deposed President Arturo Frondizi presented an agrarian reform bill in 1958 authorizing expropriation of land with payment for it. The bill never got out of committee.

Reaction Varies Over CM In England And France

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

LONDON (AP) — The teacher was shocked.

A week before, her private classroom was a happy babble of British-accented French from 45 female voices.

Now, her face ashen, the French woman surveyed what remained of the language class she conducted weekly. There were only a dozen women on hand—and they were conversing in English.

It wasn't her fault that France's President de Gaulle pictured Britain as unfit to become truly a part of Europe. All she'd wanted to do was go on making her living by teaching British ladies.

"Well," snorted one British lady. "If we're not good enough to be part of Europe, I suppose we don't need to speak French, really."

And out she stalked, while other ladies, solemnly nodding, recalled that France sang a different tune when Britain helped liberate her from the Nazis.

THE CRISIS

The Brussels crisis which wound up with Britain vetoed from membership in the European Economic Community has revived the ancient British-French game of bickering. Talk in the pubs of London and the bistros of Paris is lively.

"Have you heard this one?" asks a Briton over his evening pint. "Seems this bloke suddenly ran across De Gaulle after not seeing him for many a year.

"'Mon Dieu! De Gaulle!' shouts the blighter. And old Charles looks at him down that long nose of his and says, good and sharp, 'I authorize you to call me just "Mon General"—for the time being.'"

"Francophobia to the rescue!" says a London newspaper headline. The accompanying article explains that what happened in Brussels may be all to the good. Now Britain, like the Britain of old, will pitch in and go it alone, stung by the French into closing ranks and tripling efforts to cure her own economic ills.

But in the Paris bistro, the Frenchman grins happily.

"De Gaulle?" he asks the foreign visitor, "Was he the fool or the wise man? I think he was the wise man. He has spit in the eye of England and he has spit in the eye of the United States! Vive De Gaulle!"

The Common Market, until a short time ago, seldom occupied conversationalists in pubs and bistros. The average Frenchman and Briton understood little of such things as trade preferences, cartel regulations and variable levies.

The day to day talk of the economists made dull reading.

But not always.

There was the moment, for example, when a minister was gravely reporting on the problem of non-member Denmark, should Britain not be a member. Denmark's trade is almost equally balanced between EEC and non-EEC nations.

The minister pointed out solemnly that Denmark exports her "lean young pigs to Britain for bacon and the old lady pigs, nearing the end of their careers, to Germany for sausage." She thus has difficulty choosing up sides.

A conservative party meeting in Britain received a sober report of progress on the commonwealth's prospects. The EEC, the Conservatives were told, had agreed to permit the import of canned kangaroo meat.

"Yes," shouted one Conservative, "but what about frozen kangaroo meat?"

Mostly, however, Common Market discussions were in another world for the average European-in-the-street.

Then, suddenly, the Common Market became a lively international topic.

In Britain, old feelings of rivalry with France surged to the fore. Many a Briton figured his country had been kicked in the teeth by De Gaulle, had been badly used and humiliated.

Crisis Is Facing The Ruhr, Industrial Heart Of Europe

BOCHUM, Germany (AP)—They are talking crisis in the Ruhr, the industrial heart of Europe.

The Pennsylvania miner and the Middle East oil worker both play a part in a story that adds a taint of gloom to tales of Germany's "economic miracle."

To the casual visitor, the mighty Ruhr Valley may seem just like one sprawling city with a great many fields, parks and trees.

Taking the 6:37 train from Oberhausen to Hamm, you stop at seven towns in 80 minutes and you have crossed the length of the Ruhr.

BIG REFINERY

Pitheads, pastures, a towering refinery, an old farmhouse, a busy shopping street, a herd of cows, a steel mill and above all clouds of dust, gas fumes and smoke mark the area where more than 5 million people live.

Fifty per cent of all coal and 30 per cent of all steel produced in the European Common Market come from here. Germany's largest oil refinery, the continent's largest zinc plant and Europe's largest inland river port — Duisburg—are all in the Ruhr area. Over-all industrial output is worth more than $10 billion per year.

And yet, there is an air of crisis. They call it the coal crisis.

While consumption of Ruhr coal has remained at the same level for the past eight years, use of fuel oil has increased more than ten times, despite heavy taxes.

Imported coal, mostly from the United States, sells cheaper in the Ruhr than the domestic product despite the additional freight costs. A ceiling has been put on such imports to protect the German product.

Twenty-four pits have been idled during the past few years. In 1963, at least six more will close down. Many of the hundred that continue to operate are doing so at a loss. Dismissed miners have found jobs in other industries.

The government thinks increased mechanization may help and it is shelling out many millions of dollars to assist this progress. But mechanization has its limits with coal seams averaging only a little more than four feet in thickness—much thinner than those in the United States.

One protective measure would be to curb the spread of oil. But the fact is that even some of the Ruhr's own blast furnaces are using oil instead of coal. German homes, which did not know oil heating ten years ago, are less and less dependent on coal.

Closing down all mines would mean abandoning almost 100 billion tons of coal, enough to cover German needs for hundreds of years. In times of crisis, there would be no domestic source of energy except the few million tons of oil from German wells. Vastly increased foreign currency outlays for coal and oil would impose a tremendous burden on Germany's payments balance.

But great changes are inevitable, in any case. And setting the pace in sketching a new picture of the Ruhr is Bochum, a city of 400,000 right in its heart.

Once an exclusive domain of coal and steel, Bochum during the past few years has attracted a large plant manufacturing television sets, a new $275 million automobile plant built by Opel, General Motors' largest European subsidiary, and hundreds of small and medium sized business firms —none of them associated with coal and steel.

And within the next ten years, a $500 million university will be erected here to offer a center of study for 10,000.

The Week In Focus

Cuba -- The Sore Thumb

When is a military buildup offensive in nature and when is it merely defensive?

That fine line of distinction was argued and discussed around the world the past week, and particularly in Washington. Accusations continued to be made that the Soviet Union is shyly building up a tremendous military machine in Cuba, only 90 miles from the U.S. despite the supposed withdrawal of Russian missiles from the island last October.

Many congressmen claimed to have evidence of the Soviet buildup and in some instances military men privately agreed with them. The dispute became so thorny for the New Frontier administration that President Kennedy and his top officials pushed everything else aside and went before the American people with it.

MCNAMARA

On Wednesday, Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara and CIA Director John A. McCone, armed with stacks of photographs and intelligence reports, held an unprecedented press conference to deny the charges of a Soviet buildup.

McNamara said "we are convinced beyond reasonable doubt that all offensive missiles and bombers known to be in Cuba have been pulled out." He said he was satisfied there are no major elements of offensive weapons systems in the caves of Cuba, although he acknowledged there still are about 17,000 Soviet troops in Cuba.

McCone echoed McNamara's statement, but did admit weakly under questioning from the Senate Armed Services Preparedness Subcommittee that large quantities of Soviet tanks, guns, aircraft and troops remain in Cuba, and that a "relatively small amount" of Soviet military equipment has reached Cuba in the period since the quarantine was imposed last fall.

McNamara did concede that there were five kinds of Soviet missiles in Cuba, but claimed they posed no threat to the U.S.

On Thursday, President Kennedy threw his weight behind the statements, but left an out in case another situation developed like that last fall. He repeatedly asserted that the U.S. has no evidence of any offensive weapons on the island, but conceded missiles could be concealed in Cuba. He declared that anything is possible or conceivable. "After our experience last fall, we operate on the assumption that we are hoping for the best, but expect the worst. It is very possible the worst will come." However, the President sounded a grave warning when he said that the world would face its greatest crisis in history if the U.S. ever again should detect Soviet offensive missiles in Cuba.

Many Congressmen failed to buy the administration's explanation, saying that any type of Soviet equipment in Cuba was a menace to the U.S.

KEATING

Senator Kenneth B. Keating of New York, the chief congressional critic of the Cuban situation, said, after the round-robin explanation, that evidence given still "verifies my contention that the Soviet bastion in Cuba is at least 10 times stronger now than it was in July." He added, "The Soviets have not brought thousands of troops and millions of rubles worth of equipment into Cuba merely to bask in the Cuban sun."

Senator John Stennis of Mississippi, chairman of the preparedness subcommittee, said he didn't see any lessening of the military threat in Cuba after all the "talk I've heard" either, and went ahead with plans to continue hearings in the matter. The same situation held true in the House where Rep. Armistead Selden of Alabama said his subcommittee on inter-American affairs will open hearings February 18 on "the nature of the Castro-Communist subversive apparatus" in the Western Hemisphere.

Other intelligence reports, outside the government, claim the Soviets have, among other things, 18,700 troops, including five generals in Cuba, 44 medium and intermediate-range missiles, 140 or more ground-to-air missiles, 184 MIG fighters, 260 tanks, 32 patrol boats and tremendous amounts of smaller arms.

Who is right? No one knows—only time will tell. But the look ahead indicates another Cuban crisis—one that could touch off a major conflict. The least that could happen would be an attempt by the Soviets to take over Latin America through Castro-types of revolutions . . .

Other Domestic Issues

AS IF TROUBLE with President Charles de Gaulle of France over the Common Market and Cuba wasn't enough, the U.S. still was involved in the dispute with Canada over the arming of Canadian forces—both at home and in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization—with U.S. nuclear weapons. The major controversy has resulted in the fall of Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker's government and the call for a new national election to be held April 8. The open break came when Diefenbaker accused the U.S. of meddling in Canada's internal affairs. During the forthcoming campaigns, Diefenbaker has promised to play down anti-Americanism, but emphasized bluntly that the nuclear dispute would be an issue. The controversy didn't make many congressmen any too happy and the worst part—a big gap still remains in U.S. nuclear defenses. . . in the event of an attack by the Soviet Union.

ON THE CHEERING side, a new breed of Polaris missile, designed to bring all land areas of the world within range of rocket-firing nuclear submarines scored its first test flight success the past week after six failures. The advanced Polaris, the third generation A3 model, traveled 1,840 miles. Eventually it will have a reach of 2,875 miles. When the A3 becomes operational in about 18 months, no target in the world will be immune from the fleet of Polaris submarines, the Navy says. . .

KENNEDY

IN CONGRESS the past week, President Kennedy sent in his major health proposals, calling for improvement in the nation's health and boosting its medical facilities and manpower. Briefly, his proposal calls for the expenditure of $1.6 billion, an increase of $250 million more than the current price tag. It would support training of more doctors, dentists and nurses, extend for five years authority to share cost of building new hospitals and strengthen federal authority over sales of cosmetics, over-the-counter drugs and other items. He also envisioned the cutting of the nation's mental hospital population in half. He reserved the details of his controversial medicare program for his special message on aging expected to go to Congress late next week. The proposal was defeated in the last Congress, and little chance is seen for passage this year . . . New trouble also cropped up on his aid-to-education proposal. A spokesman for the Roman Catholic church, renewing the church's long-standing feud with the President over the issue, said the plan was "totally unacceptable." . . . And the furor over the Presidents Tax Cut and "Reform" plan continued to meet stiff opposition, although Treasurer Secretary Douglas Dillon attempted to put a little pressure on by saying the administration "feels the program is needed to forestall a recession." . . .

POLITICIANS like to talk, and U.S. Senators are no exception. This was proven the past week when Senate liberals lost their 1963 fight to make it easier to cut off filibuster. The reason given——the historic reluctance of the senators to tamper with their right to talk as long as they want. . . THE ARMY is planning to form a new group of anti-guerrilla experts and base it in the Panama Canal Zone—in position to help Latin American nations cope with any Cuban-formented uprisings. Many are expected to develop now. . . THE SUPERINTENDENT of District of Columbia schools reports disciplinary problems in the schools there have become aggravated so acutely that teachers now have reached the breaking point. He blames a breakdown in family responsibility for much of the problem. Washington schools now have almost 90 per cent Negro enrollment. . . THE GOVERNMENT says it may have to provide schools at some military bases in Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina this fall if children living on the stations are to attend non-segregated schools. The cost would be tremendous. . . . AND SENATOR Hugh Scott has accused the State Department of "news management bordering on outright censorship." He issued the statement after Milton Friedman, reporter for the Jewish Telegraphic Agency was banned from a background briefing on the Middle East.

A Tall General Named Defiance

Harsh words and undiplomatic charges were hurled at French President Charles de Gaulle the past week, but the scarred old veteran of many a battle continued to breathe defiance at the U.S. and England over the European Common Market and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization plan.

THE BOILING storm was the major topic of conversation in the Pubs of London and the Bistros of Paris, as well as in the capitals of the world.

Frenchmen on the whole and in true Gallic fashion were proud of their "general" for "spitting in the face" of the English and Americans, while in Britain many classes in French were discontinued and Princess Margaret and her husband cancelled a visit to France. But the Pub and Bistro owners were happy . . . business had never been better and if this was a sample of the Common Market, they wanted more.

But diplomats and heads of state were worried. In a secret Brussels meeting, 40 representatives of CM nations except France, the charge was made that de Gaulle poses "a more deadly threat to Western Europe and the Free World than Russian Communism." All agreed on "the dire necessity to put an immediate stop to de Gaulle's bid for domination of Europe."

The dispute broke out when de Gaulle vetoed British entry into the CM and also declared France would build an independent nuclear force, thereby rejecting the U.S. plan for a multi-nation Western nuclear defense with U.S. weapons.

In London, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan referred to de Gaulle as trying to act like a Hitler. Other common market nations, notably Holland, Italy and Belgium, attacked what they called de Gaulle's "grand design" for a French-dominated Europe, independent of the U.S., and threatened to pull out of the CM. President Kennedy, expressing disappointment over the dispute, nevertheless called for continued Western Unity and said "I think it would be a disaster if we should divide at a time when very stormy seas lie ahead and unity is essential."

In Bonn, Chancellor Adenauer tried to allay fears that his new treaty with France would now drive a wedge between West Germany and the U.S.

ADENAUER

Lashing back de Gaulle, still defiant of all charges, claimed the U.S. was trying to use Britain to set up a "free trade" market in Europe for American goods because "the Americans can no longer sell anything to Africans, the South Americans and even to the Arabs." And he said the Anglo-American agreement on the Polaris and the multi-nation nuclear force changed his attitude on British application for entry into Europe, thereby hinting he, too, should have been invited to the Bahamas talks where the plan was formulated. As a parting shot, he said he wasn't a Hitler, but that he had been compared to a Napoleon.

What's ahead—very rough going for the West and a probable change in several governments before the dispute is settled.

Other Foreign Developments

IN THE meanwhile, the Soviet Union has informed France that if the West German army should be given control of atomic weapons this "would signify a very serious deterioration of the situation in Europe." It said in such an event, this would be "considered an immediate menace to the Soviet Union's interests and would oblige it immediately to take the necessary measure which such a situation would dictate." There seems little room for doubt but for once the Soviets were really serious and such an event could touch off a firecracker situation.

THE SOVIET Union has also protested against visits of U.S. nuclear submarines to Japan, saying they will "pave the way" for the introduction of American nuclear weapons into Japan. The Japanese rejected the note, but said the submarines will not be armed with nuclear missiles.

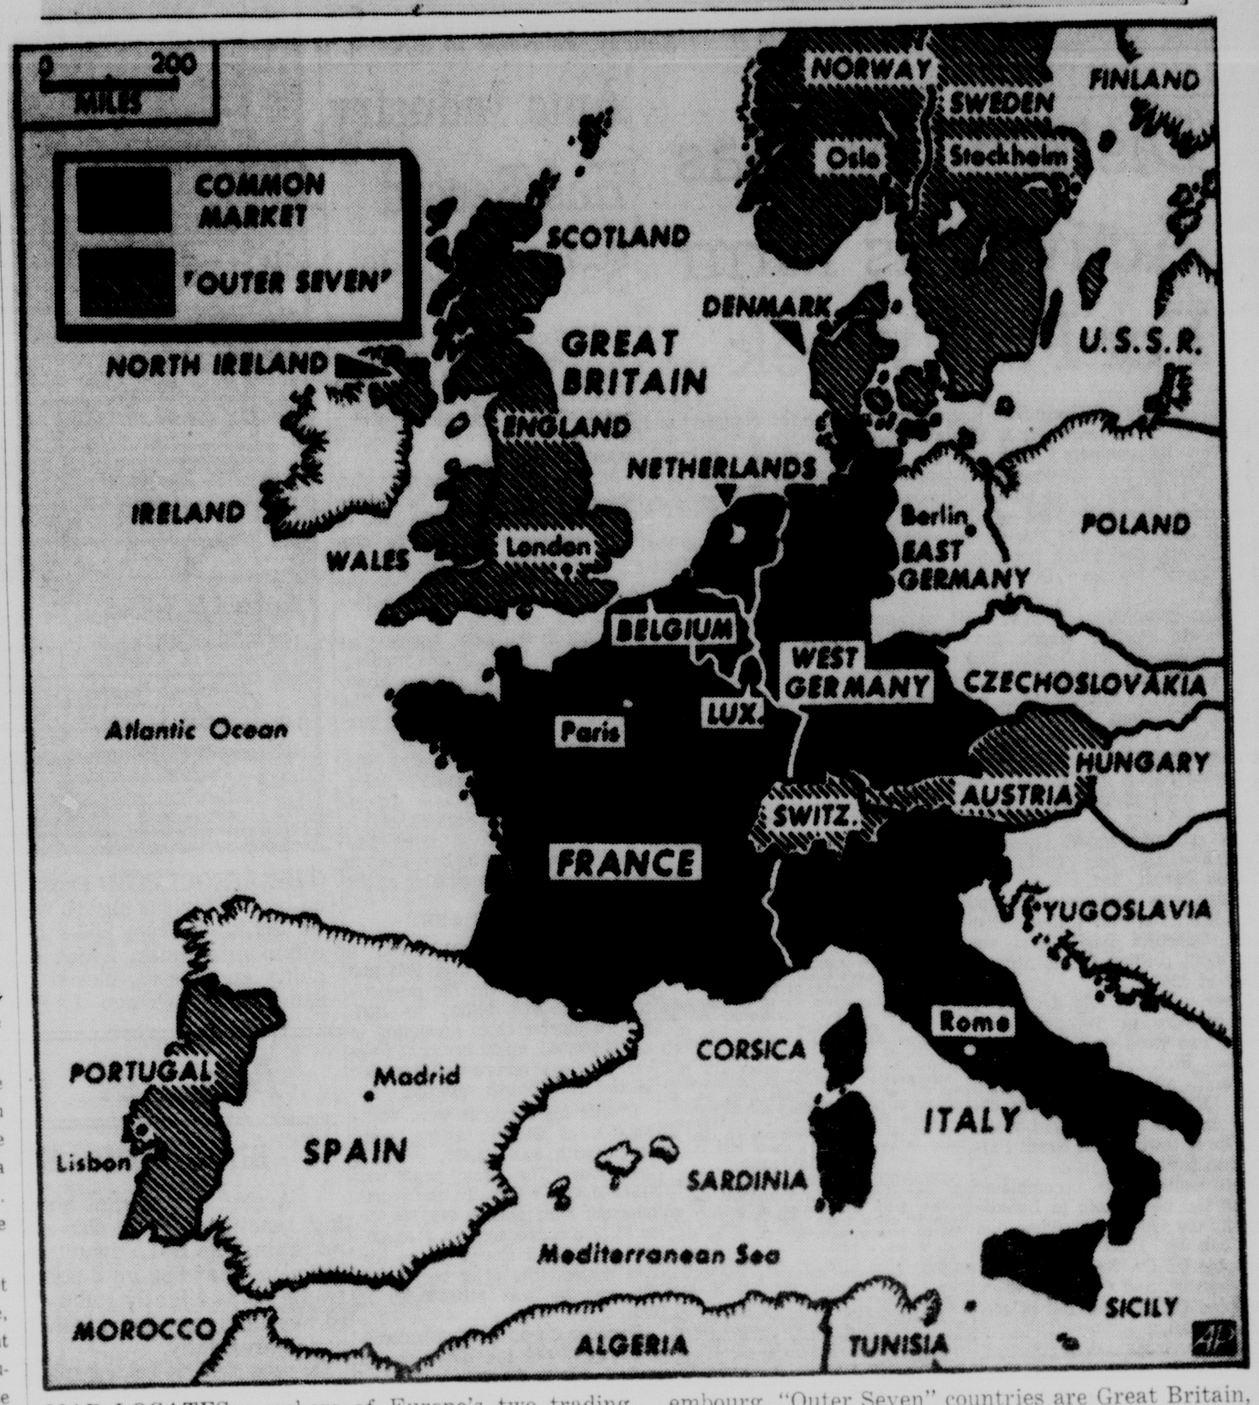

A STORIED old Riff rebel warrior, Abd El Krim, who almost wrested control of his native Morocco from Spain and France in the 1920s died in exile the past week. At the height of his career he and his 100,000 Riff warriors smashed one Spanish army and massacred another. . .

APPARENTLY North Viet Nam is trying to become a neutralist in the Communist camp—something no other nation has been able to accomplish. Heavily dependent on both the Soviet Union and Red China, the Hanoi bailiwick of the veteran Moscow-trained Ho Chi Minh hopes to avoid offending either by keeping a political balance in the ideological split between Moscow and Peking. In recent months, the Soviet Union is called the "center" of the communist world rather than "the leader" and China usually is called "our great ally." . . .

MEANWHILE, the dirty "little war" in South Viet Nam continues to claim U.S. lives and planes. A Vietnamese air force fighter-bomber piloted by two U.S. AF captains crashed and exploded the past week. It was not known if communist gunfire brought the plane down. One American was killed. The communist say they can win this one eventually because the "U.S. lacks staying power." . . .

AND A FOOTNOTE to history . . . Some of the drugs sent to Fidel Castro as ransom for Cuban prisoners carry a special marking which will show if Castro sells or barters them abroad rather than using them in Cuba. It is hard to understand what difference it would make anyway. The pie has already been snatched from the back window. . .

Food Is Major Problem For L. America

By FRANK BRUTTO

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—For years food production has not kept pace with the growth of population in Latin America—and the worst is yet to come. There are 200 million mouths to feed now. In 20 years the number is expected to be 360 million.

The answer? Authorities agree that land reform, splitting up big estates where necessary and putting all available soil to better use, can make a dent in the problem. This is a keystone of the Alliance for Progress program which the United States is backing.

What, then, of land reform? Is it getting anywhere?

Reports from Associated Press bureaus show progress in spots, but in general little accomplished so far.

Argentina, once a prime supplier of wheat, has almost dropped out of the world market for this commodity. Brazil, which has replaced Argentina as Latin America's biggest agricultural producer, urgently needs better land utilization.

Mexico, with a 45 per cent gain in agricultural produce in 25 years, has made notable progress. Venezuela is making some progress. But, by and large, land reform is a tremendous problem for Brazil, Chile, Peru, Bolivia, Ecuador, Colombia and nearly all other countries of Latin America.

Population density is not yet high in Latin America. The U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization estimates that only about 100 million hectares (247 million acres) of Latin America's total two billion hectares are arable. About 370 million hectares are used for permanent meadow or pasture. Nearly half of the total—one billion hectares—is forest land and the remainder is unproductive.

RESOURCES BIG

Land resources still are large because only about 5 per cent of the land has been brought under cultivation, compared with more than 10 per cent for the world as a whole.

Farm efficiency is low. There is one tractor for every 304 arable hectares compared with one to 43 hectares in the United States. The worker's average output is $450. It is twice that in Western Europe and $3,350 in the United States.

Dr. Herman Santa Cruz, assistant director of FAO for Latin America, says that in the next 40 years Latin America must at least triple its food production.

Argentina — Deposed President Arturo Frondizi presented an agrarian reform bill in 1958 authorizing expropriation of land with payment for it. The bill never got out of committee.

Reaction Varies Over CM In England And France

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

LONDON (AP) — The teacher was shocked.

A week before, her private classroom was a happy babble of British-accented French from 45 female voices.

Now, her face ashen, the French woman surveyed what remained of the language class she conducted weekly. There were only a dozen women on hand—and they were conversing in English.

It wasn't her fault that France's President de Gaulle pictured Britain as unfit to become truly a part of Europe. All she'd wanted to do was go on making her living by teaching British ladies.

"Well," snorted one British lady. "If we're not good enough to be part of Europe, I suppose we don't need to speak French, really."

And out she stalked, while other ladies, solemnly nodding, recalled that France sang a different tune when Britain helped liberate her from the Nazis.

THE CRISIS

The Brussels crisis which wound up with Britain vetoed from membership in the European Economic Community has revived the ancient British-French game of bickering. Talk in the pubs of London and the bistros of Paris is lively.

"Have you heard this one?" asks a Briton over his evening pint. "Seems this bloke suddenly ran across De Gaulle after not seeing him for many a year.

"'Mon Dieu! De Gaulle!" shouts the blighter. And old Charles looks at him down that long nose of his and says, good and sharp, 'I authorize you to call me just "Mon General"—for the time being.'"

"Francophobia to the rescue!" says a London newspaper headline. The accompanying article explains that what happened in Brussels may be all to the good. Now Britain, like the Britain of old, will pitch in and go it alone, stung by the French into closing ranks and tripling efforts to cure her own economic ills.

But in the Paris bistro, the Frenchman grins happily.

"De Gaulle?" he asks the foreign visitor, "Was he the fool or the wise man? I think he was the wise man. He has spit in the eye of England and he has spit in the eye of the United States! Vive De Gaulle!"

The Common Market, until a short time ago, seldom occupied conversationalists in pubs and bistros. The average Frenchman and Briton understood little of such things as trade preferences, cartel regulations and variable levies.

The day to day talk of the economists made dull reading.

But not always.

There was the moment, for example, when a minister was gravely reporting on the problem of non-member Denmark, should Britain not be a member. Denmark's trade is almost equally balanced between EEC and non-EEC nations.

The minister pointed out solemnly that Denmark exports her "lean young pigs to Britain for bacon and the old lady pigs, nearing the end of their careers, to Germany for sausage." She thus has difficulty choosing up sides.

A conservative party meeting in Britain received a sober report of progress on the commonwealth's prospects. The EEC, the Conservatives were told, had agreed to permit the import of canned kangaroo meat.

"Yes," shouted one Conservative, "but what about frozen kangaroo meat?"

Mostly, however, Common Market discussions were in another world for the average European-in-the-street.

Then, suddenly, the Common Market became a lively international topic.

In Britain, old feelings of rivalry with France surged to the fore. Many a Briton figured his country had been kicked in the teeth by De Gaulle, had been badly used and humiliated.

Crisis Is Facing The Ruhr, Industrial Heart Of Europe

BOCHUM, Germany (AP)—They are talking crisis in the Ruhr, the industrial heart of Europe.

The Pennsylvania miner and the Middle East oil worker both play a part in a story that adds a taint of gloom to tales of Germany's "economic miracle."

To the casual visitor, the mighty Ruhr Valley may seem just like one sprawling city with a great many fields, parks and trees.

Taking the 6:37 train from Oberhausen to Hamm, you stop at seven towns in 80 minutes and you have crossed the length of the Ruhr.

BIG REFINERY

Pitheads, pastures, a towering refinery, an old farmhouse, a busy shopping street, a herd of cows, a steel mill and above all clouds of dust, gas fumes and smoke mark the area where more than 5 million people live.

Fifty per cent of all coal and 30 per cent of all steel produced in the European Common Market come from here. Germany's largest oil refinery, the continent's largest zinc plant and Europe's largest inland river port — Duisburg—are all in the Ruhr area. Over-all industrial output is worth more than $10 billion per year.

And yet, there is an air of crisis. They call it the coal crisis.

While consumption of Ruhr coal has remained at the same level for the past eight years, use of fuel oil has increased more than ten times, despite heavy taxes.

13 COMPLETIONS

District Oil, Gas Activity Is Firm For Past Week

Drilling held relatively firm last week in the Monroe Oil & Gas District as compared with the past month, with 13 completions reported in three of 14 northeast Louisiana parishes. Nine of the finals came in Union Parish, in the Monroe Gas Field, according to District Manager Duncan S. Cook.

Other completions occurred in Catahoula Parish, where three were recorded, and Tensas Parish, which listed one.

Stakings for new locations fell moderately from last week's report, with 10 fresh sites marked out in five separate parishes. Ouachita Parish had two of them — one each in the Monroe and Calhoun Fields — while Catahoula recorded three, Concordia and Rapides, two each, and Tensas Parish, one.

Active rigs numbered 15 and were scattered over a nine-parish area. Ouachita Parish had one such unit, drilling in the Monroe Field at 1260 feet.

Other wells actively drilling or testing were in Tensas Parish where two were drilling and two testing, Richland, Franklin and Caldwell, all with one drilling unit, Rapides and Concordia with one each testing, LaSalle with three testing, and Grant Parish, two testing.

Two wells were recompleted during the week, both in LaSalle Parish, the Olla Field, identified by Cook as Hunt Petroleum's Goodpine Oil Co. No. F-31 in section 19-10-5E, and Cities Service's Goodpine Oil Co. No. B-2 in section 18-10-5E.

Six units were plugged and abandoned during the same period, though the total on inactive sites fell by seven to 104. Locations numbered 38 and 22 were drilling.

Here's Cook's breakdown on the week's completions, new locations, and active rigs.

Auto Industry Has Record Sales Week

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The automobile industry pushed the gas pedal all the way down during the week with reports of record sales and profits.

And the Kennedy administration nudged its campaign for a tax cut into high gear in the face of congressional opposition to coupling reduction with revision.

Some economists say: "As the automobile industry goes, so goes the whole economy."

If that is the case, business as a whole should be off and running.

New car sales in January broke all records for the month. The total of 543,521 exceeded the previous peak of 512,000 in 1955.

General Motors captured 55.6 per cent of the month's sales, Ford 25.4, Chrysler 11.8, American Motors 5.9 and Studebaker 1.3.

Ford Motor Co.'s sales and earnings were the highest ever in 1962 and the fourth quarter of the year.

UP 21 PER CENT

Sales totaled $8,089,616,876, a gain of 21 per cent over 1961 and up 18 per cent over the previous record of $6.8 billion in 1957. Fourth-quarter sales amounted to $2,293,900,000, up 23 per cent from the previous record $1,896,000,000 in the 1961 fourth quarter.

Profits for the year were $480,702,453, or $4.36 a share, compared with $409,579,689, or $3.72 last year. The prior peak was $454,200,000 in 1955. In the fourth quarter, Ford earned $130,300,000, or $1.18 a share, against $120,400,000, or $1.09 a share, in the like 1961 period. The prior record for the quarter was $128,200,000 in 1955.

Chrysler Corp., making a comeback from red ink days, posted record fourth-quarter profits of $50.3 million, equal to $5.57 a share, against $31.6 million, or $3.52 a share, in the 1961 period. For the whole year the company cleared $65.4 million, equal to $7.24 a share, compared with $11.1 million, or $1.24 a share, in 1961. This was far short of the $132,170,000 profit in 1949.

Chrysler directors voted to split the common stock two-for-one and to raise the dividend 25 cents on the new shares.

General Motors Corp. earlier had reported earning more money in 1962 than any corporation in any year.

Cotton Futures Gains Are Sharp

NEW YORK (AP)—Sharp gains on the new crop months featured cotton futures trading during the past week, with some contracts advancing as much as $1.45 a bale.

Among factors helping to raise the price of the nearer months was an increasing tightening in the available supply of free cotton. The more distant positions tended to lag a bit during the early portion of the week, but an Agriculture Department announcement made prices firmer on Thursday.

The USDA announcement was that the 1963 crop loan rate would remain unchanged from that in effect this season—that is at 3247 a pound (for basis middling one inch at average locations).

Many trade observers had expected the 1963 rate to be around 30 cents a pound.

With loan entries into the government stock continuing to run well ahead of repossessions, the supply of free cotton is becoming tight. The stock now is estimated at 6.9 million bales, but trade needs for the balance of the season are estimated at nearly 7.5 million bales.

Exports showed some improvement during the week ended Feb. 5, totaling 39,000 bales, compared with 30,000 one week earlier. However, in the like week a year ago the total was 88,000.

For the season through Feb. 5, exports totaled 1,235,000 bales, compared with 2,666,000 at the same time a year earlier.

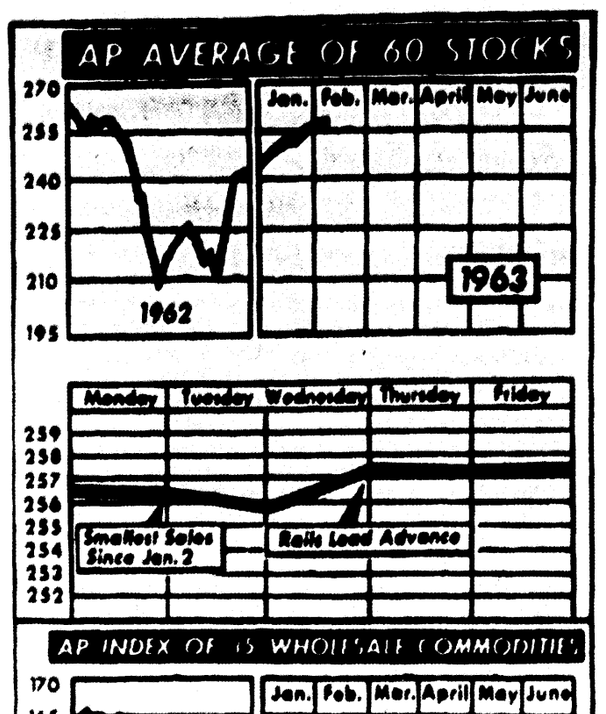

LP&L Plans More Service

Electric power projects, estimated to cost approximately $300,000, have been planned for the West Monroe - Monroe area and immediate vicinity in 1963, according to F. C. McConnell, district manager for Louisiana Power and Light Company in West Monroe.

McConnell said the Company budgets projects annually, planning ahead by calendar years insofar as possible.

"The projects planned for 1963 are generally the result of overall growth of the Ouachita area, building," McConnell said. "We are always proud to be able to report construction needs of this sort — because they help not only us, but the area we serve as well."

The district manager pointed out that these budget items do not include many smaller construction and maintenance jobs which will be routinely performed by LP&L in the local area during the year.

THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks moved higher for the eighth week in a row when it closed at 257.2, up from 256.5 in the previous period. The commodity index, which experienced evenly divided gains and losses, closed unchanged at 169.9, the same as a week ago. (AP Wirephoto)

Market Comment

BLUE CHIP STOCKS GAIN

A resilient market bounced back from profit taking reactions twice this week and notched a small net gain. The DJIA swung in a range between 675 and 685 closing at 680 up 2 points for the week. Volume of trading was slightly reduced averaging around 4 million shares daily.

The news highlight which sparked a general recovery on Tuesday was the indication of very sizeable business for McDonnell and several of the subcontracting firms ran up on the news but reacted to profit realizing on Wednesday. Oils and coppers moved ahead steadily during the week while rails, airlines and steels were leaders in late strength. Steady demand for blue chips again centered on American Telephone and Standard of New Jersey. General Motors declared the regular dividend on Monday and absorbed some selling but rebounded to an all-time high. Chrysler announced a two for one stock split which promptly touched off a surge of demand for the stock. Low priced fringe issues also continued to gain, led by N.Y. Central and Pennsylvania Railroad.

An attitude of caution was still being observed by the public. Selling balance persisted in the odd lots and short sellers responded to weakness. Among individual issues, stock splits boosted Sterling Drug and Iowa Power. Other standouts were Gulf Oil, Cerro De Pasco, National Airlines, Warner Lambers and White Motors.

Phillips Petroleum

With important interests in liquified petroleum gas and petrochemicals in addition to integrated oil and natural gas operations, Phillips Petroleum represents an unusually diversified investment for longer term capital appreciation. Estimated net income for 1962 was $107 million or $3.11 per share vs $113.8 million or $3.31 per share in 1961. The company estimated four quarter 1962 net income at a record $35.1 million of $1.02 per share, compared to $33.4 million or $0.97 per share in the like period of 1961. Product volume increased substantially in 1962, but lower prices for most products held earnings down below previous years levels. Management has stated that they expect net earnings for 1963 to exceed the record results of 1961.

Proctor & Gamble

A highly successful program of diversification, new product development, and aggressive merchandising has resulted in record breaking results for this industry leader. Earnings have been in an uninterrupted uptrend since 1952 and dividends have been increased each year since 1956. Future growth should be bolstered by expansion overseas and a continuing flow of new products. Shares have retraced about 40 per cent their 1961-62 decline but still offer good value for longer range growth. For the first half of fiscal 1963, consolidated net earnings amounted to $1.49 per share, up from $1.42 per share in the previous years comparable period.

Texas Instruments

Though current earnings continue to be hampered by semiconductor price pressures, the combination of Texas Instruments strong trade position, aggressive management and highly regarded research efforts should ensure full participation in the projected growth of the electronics industry. With earnings expected to resume a better trend, the common stock is regarded as an attractive long-term commitment. Full year 1962 results should approximate $2.10-$2.15 a share as compared with $2.36 in 1961. First quarter 1963 earnings vs a year ago will be affected by the company's efforts in the military electronic equipment area, which will go heavily into work in progress rather than into billable equipment, and by the cancellation of the skybolt missile program. However, appreciable improvement in the apparatus division, continuing excellent results from the materials and controls and science service divisions and steady improvement in the components division should result in considerably improved full year sales and earnings results.

White Motors

Demand for heavy trucks is continuing at a high level. We believe that truck sales for White in 1962 exceeded 26,000 vs 19,093 in 1961 and that dollar sales approximated $440 million compared to $335 million in the previous year. We estimate that 1962 earnings, to be reported in the latter part of February were modestly above the $4 per share level. Earnings in 1961 were $3.04 per share. Assuming continued good business conditions, we believe that profits in the current year could show sharp improvement over the 1962 results. Both sales and earnings are expected to show a sharp rise in the first quarter over the $96 million and 71 cents per share of the year ago quarter, and net may be well in excess of $1. Selling at about 11-12 times estimated 1962 earnings the common stock seems reasonably evaluated and has speculative appeal for medium to longer term appreciation and income.

Market Holds To Tradition Of February

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market last week remained true to the tradition that February is a month of irregularity. It was a mixed week, as generally expected.

The uneven performance followed seven straight weeks of advance, and there is an old Wall Street saying that "no tree grows to the sky."

Brokers were pleased, however, that the list gave ground only in spots, and very reluctantly. They observed that there has been a lot of "idle money" around Wall Street, waiting to snap up stock when prices weaken enough to be attractive.

Even when it was obvious that some long-term profits were being taken in an assortment of top-grade blue chips, declines were kept within moderate bounds and, as some quality issues fell, others rose.

Statistically, it was a losing market because, of the 1,475 issues traded, declines outnumbered advances by 732 to 598.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks, however, made a modest gain of .7 as it closed the week at 257.2.

This was accounted for by the fact that some heavily weighted key stocks in the AP average more than matched the losers.

The reverse held true for the Dow Jones industrial average, which took a net loss of 3.27 as it ended the week at 679.92.

Volume slipped to 20,210,540 million shares from 21,363,612 the previous week.

Actually, there was only one clear-cut day of advance during the five days of trading. This was Wednesday, when late strength on Tuesday followed through into the succeeding session. This was credited to a huge new Air Force order for 1,000 jet planes from McDonnell Aircraft, the eventual cost estimated to be about $1.7 billion stretched over five years.

The McDonnell contract caused a sympathetic rise among other aerospace issues and this became contagious, stocks in other groups sharing the buoyant feeling. Many manufacturers will get subcontracts from McDonnell.

Much of the drab feeling early in the week was accounted for by the fact that neither General Motors nor Lockheed raised dividends, as many investors had hoped.

On Thursday, however, Chrysler came through with a 2-for-1 stock split proposal, the split to be accompanied by a doubled dividend. This triggered a vigorous rise among motors.

The automotive stocks dominated the week's trading, the Big Three and American Motors preempting the top four places among the volume leaders. American Motors led the bullish feeling with a forecast that the first quarter of 1963 would be a mighty good one for the firm.

Sentiment was further buttressed by a recovery in steel production and news that auto sales in January set a record for the month.

On the bond market, U.S. government issues halted a three-week slide but failed to make up any of the lost ground. Corporates also showed only small changes.

BEATING TAX REFORM

Oil Industry May Have Bad Time

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The oil industry may have difficulty organizing a united front against the oil tax reforms suggested by President Kennedy.

The situation is similar to the oil imports dispute that has had various segments of the domestic industry at odds for years.

President Kennedy's Jan. 24 tax message did not call for a direct reduction of the oil industry's 27½ per cent depletion tax allowance but it included four suggestions for correcting "unintended defects."

One suggestion asked Congress to prevent American oil firms from using excess foreign tax credit to offset U.S. tax liability on income obtained from the foreign operations.

One trade association that has battled for stricter oil imports controls hinted rather broadly it would not mind seeing Congress tighten the tax provisions which apply to such foreign operations.

The hint was made as the 6,500-member Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners association (TIPRO) announced it is undertaking an evaluation survey of practical effects of the Kennedy proposals.

"It seems entirely possible government revenues can best be increased by tax changes which would have the effect of diverting American investment away from further unneeded foreign production and into increased drilling of exploratory wells in the United States," said Johnny Mitchell, Tipro president from Houston.

Tipro's depletion allowance resolutions traditionally have sought retention of the 27½ per cent allowance "for the production of oil and gas within the United States."

Mitchell said last July 31 Tipro takes no position with respect to the level of percentage depletion for American companies operating abroad.

"The appropriate per cent in these instances is a matter which others are best qualified to answer," he said. "We have taken the position there are abuses of foreign tax credit allowances by some American oil companies operating abroad."

Most other trade groups normally have taken a position in the past that any attack on depletion as applied to foreign operations could trigger a full scale attack on domestic operations.

These groups include the 7,000-member Independent Petroleum Association of America (IPAA) which has been fighting oil imports since it was founded in 1932.

The IPAA executive committee is to meet in Washington on Monday and Tuesday to study the Kennedy proposals and develop courses of action.

Mitchell said the proposed tax changes have been made at a time when domestic exploration and drilling is seriously depressed.

"There is a demonstrated need for a significant increase in exploratory drilling in order to maintain a safe relationship between reserves and demand," he said.

"Any adverse change in the incentive resulting from the expensing of intangible costs would be particularly damaging and is certain to hit hardest at the very thing for which the mandatory oil import program was established."

He said the Tipro survey is expected to provide a basis for determining what percentage of domestic producers would be forced to curtail projected future drilling programs.

"It seems entirely possible the proposal could result in less government revenue and at the same time do irreparable damage to the home producing industry," he said.

Pan American Completes Unit In Collins Field

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Pan American Petroleum Co. has completed its Collins unit No. 4, sec. 25-8n-15w, in the Collins field of Covington County.

The well tested at the rate of 336 barrels of 40 gravity oil per day on a quarter inch choked with tubing pressure of 500 pounds.

Completion was from a perforated interval in the Rhodesta sand at 13,777-82 feet.

The field currently lists one other producer which is the discovery well. Two other wells have been temporarily abandoned.

Sun Oil has location staked for its Wingo No. 1, sec. 35-3n-9e, in the one well Conerly field of Pike County. The start is a southeast offset to the discovery well. Contract depth is 10,800 feet to test the lower Tuscaloosa sand productive in the discovery well.

In the expanding Summerland field of Jones and Covington counties, four new tests are scheduled. Triad Oil and Gas Co. has location staked for its Laird-Gambrell No. 3, sec 3-9n-1w. Wilbur Knight and Southdown, Inc., have location staked for three tests, the Dees No. 1, sec. 2-9n-14w, Dees No. 2, sec 2-9n-14w, and the Dees No. 3, sec. 35-10n-14w. The Summerland field currently lists 18 producing wells.

In Smith County, LaRue-Smith Producing Co. has abandoned its wildcat, the Duncan No. 1, sec. 5-10n-14w, at total depth of 13,015 feet. Also in Smith County, Placid Oil Co. is below 12,850 feet, and nearing contract depth in its wildcat, the Austin, No. 1, sec. 3-10n-16w.

American Petrofina Co. of Texas drilled below 8,100 feet in its Knight No. 1, sec. 18-5n-5e, confirmation well in the recently found Pelahatchie field of Rankin County. Contract depth is 11,600 feet.

Cities Service Petroleum Co. is in the process of officially completing its Green County wildcat discovery, the Robinson Land Co. No. 1, sec. 15-4n-8w, as a dual producer. The new discovery was drilled to 13,057 feet with seven-inch casing set to 12,711 feet. Perforating and testing has been underway for several weeks with commercial production established in four different zones.

District Oil, Gas Activity Is Firm For Past Week

Drilling held relatively firm last week in the Monroe Oil & Gas District as compared with the past month, with 13 completions reported in three of 14 northeast Louisiana parishes. Nine of the finals came in Union Parish, in the Monroe Gas Field, according to District Manager Duncan S. Cook.

Other completions occurred in Catahoula Parish, where three were recorded, and Tensas Parish, which listed one.

Stakings for new locations fell moderately from last week's report, with 10 fresh sites marked out in five separate parishes. Ouachita Parish had two of them — one each in the Monroe and Calhoun Fields — while Catahoula recorded three, Concordia and Rapides, two each, and Tensas Parish, one.

Active rigs numbered 15 and were scattered over a nine-parish area. Ouachita Parish had one such unit, drilling in the Monroe Field at 1260 feet.

Other wells actively drilling or testing were in Tensas Parish where two were drilling and two testing, Richland, Franklin and Caldwell, all with one drilling unit, Rapides and Concordia with one each testing, LaSalle with three testing, and Grant Parish, two testing.

Two wells were recompleted during the week, both in LaSalle Parish, the Olla Field, identified by Cook as Hunt Petroleum's Goodpine Oil Co. No. F-31 in section 19-10-3E, and Cities Service's Goodpine Oil Co. No. B-2 in section 18-10-3B.

Six units were plugged and abandoned during the same period, though the total on inactive sites fell by seven to 104. Locations numbered 38 and 22 were drilling.

Auto Industry Has Record Sales Week

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The automobile industry pushed the gas pedal all the way down during the week with reports of record sales and profits.

And the Kennedy administration nudged its campaign for a tax cut into high gear in the face of congressional opposition to coupling reduction with revision.

Some economists say: "As the automobile industry goes, so goes the whole economy."

If that is the case, business as a whole should be off and running.

New car sales in January broke all records for the month. The total of 543,521 exceeded the previous peak of 512,000 in 1955.

General Motors captured 55.6 per cent of the month's sales, Ford 25.4, Chrysler 11.8, American Motors 5.9 and Studebaker 1.3.

Ford Motor Co.'s sales and earnings were the highest ever in 1962 and the fourth quarter of the year.

UP 21 PER CENT

Sales totaled $8,089,616,876, a gain of 21 per cent over 1961 and up 18 per cent over the previous record of $6.8 billion in 1957. Fourth-quarter sales amounted to $2,298,900,000, up 23 per cent from the previous record $1,896,000,000 in the 1961 fourth quarter.

Profits for the year were $480,702,453, or $4.36 a share, compared with $409,579,689, or $3.72 last year. The prior peak was $454,200,000 in 1955. In the fourth quarter, Ford earned $130,300,000, or $1.18 a share, against $120,400,000, or $1.09 a share, in the like 1961 period. The prior record for the quarter was $128,200,000 in 1955.

Chrysler Corp., making a comeback from red ink days, posted record fourth-quarter profits of $50.3 million, equal to $5.57 a share, against $31.6 million, or $3.52 a share, in the 1961 period. For the whole year the company cleared $65.4 million, equal to $7.24 a share, compared with $11.1 million, or $1.24 a share, in 1961. This was far short of the $132,170,000 profit in 1949.

Chrysler directors voted to split the common stock two-for-one and to raise the dividend 25 cents on the new shares.

General Motors Corp. earlier had reported earning more money in 1962 than any corporation in any year.

Cotton Futures Gains Are Sharp

NEW YORK (AP)—Sharp gains on the new crop months featured cotton futures trading during the past week, with some contracts advancing as much as $1.45 a bale.

Among factors helping to raise the price of the nearer months was an increasing tightening in the available supply of free cotton. The more distant positions tended to lag a bit during the early portion of the week, but an Agriculture Department announcement made prices firmer on Thursday.

The USDA announcement was that the 1963 crop loan rate would remain unchanged from that in effect this season—that is at 3247 a pound (for basis middling one inch at average locations).

Many trade observers had expected the 1963 rate to be around 30 cents a pound.

With loan entries into the government stock continuing to run well ahead of repossessions, the supply of free cotton is becoming tight. The stock now is estimated at 6.9 million bales, but trade needs for the balance of the season are estimated at nearly 7.5 million bales.

Exports showed some improvement during the week ended Feb. 5, totaling 39,000 bales, compared with 30,000 one week earlier. However, in the like week a year ago the total was 88,000.

For the season through Feb. 5, exports totaled 1,235,000 bales, compared with 2,666,000 at the same time a year earlier

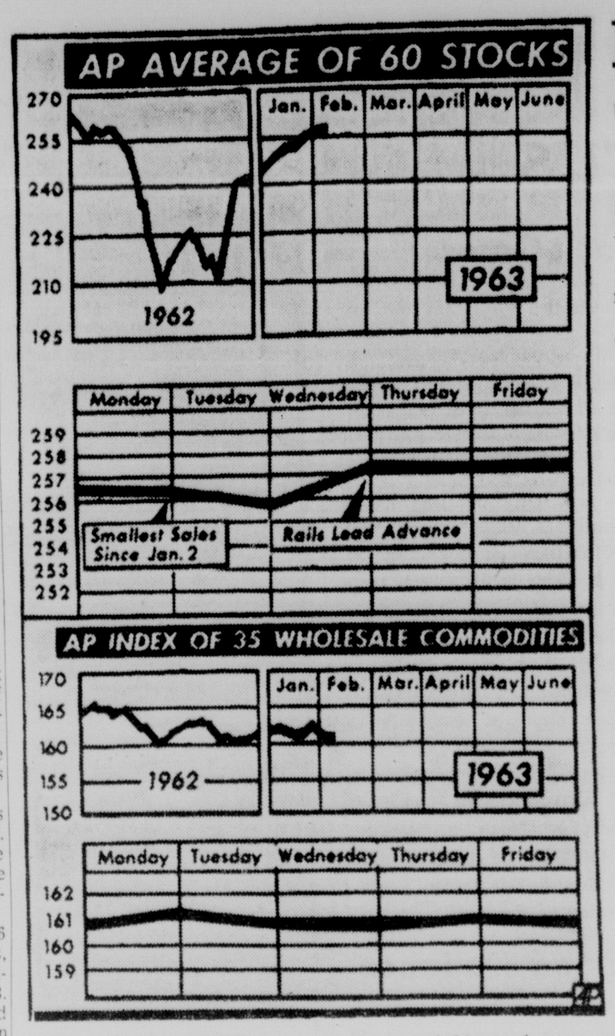

LP&L Plans More Service

Electric power projects, estimated to cost approximately $800,000, have been planned for the West Monroe - Monroe area and immediate vicinity in 1963, according to F. C. McConnell, district manager for Louisiana Power and Light Company in West Monroe.

McConnell said the Company budgets projects annually, planning ahead by calendar years insofar as possible.

"The projects planned for 1963 are generally the result of overall growth of the Ouachita area, building," McConnell said. "We are always proud to be able to report construction needs of this sort — because they help not only us, but the area we serve as well."

The district manager pointed out that these budget items do not include many smaller construction and maintenance jobs which will be routinely performed by LP&L in the local area during the year.

THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks moved higher for the eighth week in a row when it closed at 257.2, up from 256.5 in the previous period. The commodity index, which experienced evenly divided gains and losses, closed unchanged at 169.9, the same as a week ago. (AP Wirephoto)

Market Comment

BLUE CHIP STOCKS GAIN

A resilient market bounced back from profit taking reactions twice this week and notched a small net gain. The DJIA swung in a range between 675 and 685 closing at 680 up 2 points for the week. Volume of trading was slightly reduced averaging around 4 million shares daily.

The news highlight which sparked a general recovery on Tuesday was the indication of very sizeable business for McDonnell and several of the subcontracting firms ran up on the news but reacted to profit realizing on Wednesday. Oils and coppers moved ahead steadily during the week while rails, airlines and steels were leaders in late strength. Steady demand for blue chips again centered on American Telephone and Standard of New Jersey. General Motors declared the regular dividend on Monday and absorbed some selling but rebounded to an all-time high. Chrysler announced a two for one stock split which promptly touched off a surge of demand for the stock. Low priced fringe issues also continued to gain, led by N.Y. Central and Pennsylvania Railroad.

An attitude of caution was still being observed by the public. Selling balance persisted in the odd lots and short sellers responded to weakness. Among individual issues, stock splits boosted Sterling Drug and Iowa Power. Other standouts were Gulf Oil, Cerro De Pasco, National Airlines, Warner Lambers and White Motors.

Phillips Petroleum

With important interests in liquified petroleum gas and petrochemicals in addition to integrated oil and natural gas operations, Phillips Petroleum represents an unusually diversified investment for longer term capital appreciation. Estimated net income for 1962 was $107 million or $3.11 per share vs $113.8 million or $3.31 per share in 1961. The company estimated four quarter 1962 net income at a record $35.1 million of $1.02 per share, compared to $33.4 million or $0.97 per share in the like period of 1961. Product volume increased substantially in 1962, but lower prices for most products held earnings down below previous years levels. Management has stated that they expect net earnings for 1963 to exceed the record results of 1961.

Proctor & Gamble

A highly successful program of diversification, new product development, and aggressive merchandising has resulted in record breaking results for this industry leader. Earnings have been in an uninterrupted uptrend since 1952 and dividends have been increased each year since 1956. Future growth should be bolstered by expansion overseas and a continuing flow of new products. Shares have retraced about 40 per cent their 1961-62 decline but still offer good value for longer range growth. For the first half of fiscal 1963, consolidated net earnings amounted to $1.49 per share, up from $1.42 per share in the previous years comparable period.

Texas Instruments

Though current earnings continue to be hampered by semiconductor price pressures, the combination of Texas Instruments strong trade position, aggressive management and highly regarded research efforts should ensure full participation in the projected growth of the electronics industry. With earnings expected to resume a better trend, the common stock is regarded as an attractive long-term commitment. Full year 1962 results should approximate $2.10-$2.15 a share as compared with $2.36 in 1961. First quarter 1963 earnings vs a year ago will be affected by the company's efforts in the military electronic equipment area, which will go heavily into work in progress rather than into billable equipment, and by the cancellation of the skybolt missile program. However, appreciable improvement in the apparatus division, continuing excellent results from the materials and controls and science service divisions and steady improvement in the components division should result in considerably improved full year sales and earnings results.

White Motors

Demand for heavy trucks is continuing at a high level. We believe that truck sales for White in 1962 exceeded 26,000 vs 19,093 in 1961 and that dollar sales approximated $440 million compared to $335 million in the previous year. We estimate that 1962 earnings, to be reported in the latter part of February were modestly above the $4 per share level. Earnings in 1961 were $3.04 per share. Assuming continued good business conditions, we believe that profits in the current year could show sharp improvement over the 1962 results. Both sales and earnings are expected to show a sharp rise in the first quarter over the $96 million and 71 cents per share of the year ago quarter, and net may be well in excess of $1. Selling at about 11-12 times estimated 1962 earnings the common stock seems reasonably evaluated and has speculative appeal for medium to longer term appreciation and income.

Market Holds To Tradition Of February

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market last week remained true to the tradition that February is a month of irregularity. It was a mixed week, as generally expected.

The uneven performance followed seven straight weeks of advance, and there is an old Wall Street saying that "no tree grows to the sky."

Brokers were pleased, however, that the list gave ground only in spots, and very reluctantly. They observed that there has been a lot of "idle money" around Wall Street, waiting to snap up stock when prices weaken enough to be attractive.

Even when it was obvious that some long-term profits were being taken in an assortment of top-grade blue chips, declines were kept within moderate bounds and, as some quality issues fell, others rose.

Statistically, it was a losing market because, of the 1,475 issues traded, declines outnumbered advances by 732 to 598.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks, however, made a modest gain of .7 as it closed the week at 257.2.

This was accounted for by the fact that some heavily weighted key stocks in the AP average more than matched the losers.

The reverse held true for the Dow Jones industrial average, which took a net loss of 3.27 as it ended the week at 679.92.

Volume slipped to 20,210,540 million shares from 21,363,612 the previous week.

Actually, there was only one clear-cut day of advance during the five days of trading. This was Wednesday, when late strength on Tuesday followed through into the succeeding session. This was credited to a huge new Air Force order for 1,000 jet planes from McDonnell Aircraft, the eventual cost estimated to be about $1.7 billion stretched over five years.

The McDonnell contract caused a sympathetic rise among other aerospace issues and this became contagious, stocks in other groups sharing the buoyant feeling. Many manufacturers will get subcontracts from McDonnell.

Much of the drab feeling early in the week was accounted for by the fact that neither General Motors nor Lockheed raised dividends, as many investors had hoped.

On Thursday, however, Chrysler came through with a 2-for-1 stock split proposal, the split to be accompanied by a doubled dividend. This triggered a vigorous rise among motors.

The automotive stocks dominated the week's trading, the Big Three and American Motors preempting the top four places among the volume leaders. American Motors fed the bullish feeling with a forecast that the first quarter of 1963 would be a mighty good one for the firm.

Sentiment was further buttressed by a recovery in steel production and news that auto sales in January set a record for the month.

On the bond market, U.S. government issues halted a three-week slide but failed to make up any of the lost ground. Corporates also showed only small changes.

BEATING TAX REFORM

Oil Industry May Have Bad Time

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The oil industry may have difficulty organizing a united front against the oil tax reforms suggested by President Kennedy.

The situation is similar to the oil imports dispute that has had various segments of the domestic industry at odds for years.

President Kennedy's Jan. 24 tax message did not call for a direct reduction of the oil industry's 27½ per cent depletion tax allowance but it included four suggestions for correcting "unintended defects."

One suggestion asked Congress to prevent American oil firms from using excess foreign tax credit to offset U.S. tax liability on income obtained from the foreign operations.

One trade association that has battled for stricter oil imports controls hinted rather broadly it would not mind seeing Congress tighten the tax provisions which apply to such foreign operations.

The hint was made as the 6,500-member Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners association (TIPRO) announced it is undertaking an evaluation survey of practical effects of the Kennedy proposals.

"It seems entirely possible government revenues can best be increased by tax changes which would have the effect of diverting American investment away from further unneeded foreign production and into increased drilling of exploratory wells in the United States," said Johnny Mitchell, Tipro president from Houston.

Tipro's depletion allowance resolutions traditionally have sought retention of the 27½ per cent allowance "for the production of oil and gas within the United States."

Mitchell said last July 31 Tipro takes no position with respect to the level of percentage depletion for American companies operating abroad.

"The appropriate per cent in these instances is a matter which others are best qualified to answer," he said. "We have taken the position there are abuses of foreign tax credit allowances by some American oil companies operating abroad."

Most other trade groups normally have taken a position in the past that any attack on depletion as applied to foreign operations could trigger a full scale attack on domestic operations.

These groups include the 7,000-member Independent Petroleum Association of America (IPAA) which has been fighting oil imports since it was founded in 1932.

The IPAA executive committee is to meet in Washington on Monday and Tuesday to study the Kennedy proposals and develop courses of action.

Mitchell said the proposed tax changes have been made at a time when domestic exploration and drilling is seriously depressed.

"There is a demonstrated need for a significant increase in exploratory drilling in order to maintain a safe relationship between reserves and demand," he said.

"Any adverse change in the incentive resulting from the expensing of intangible costs would be particularly damaging and is certain to hit hardest at the very thing for which the mandatory oil import program was established."

He said the Tipro survey is expected to provide a basis for determining what percentage of domestic producers would be forced to curtail projected future drilling programs.

"It seems entirely possible the proposal could result in less government revenue and at the same time do irreparable damage to the home producing industry," he said.

Pan American Completes Unit In Collins Field

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Pan American Petroleum Co. has completed its Collins unit No. 4, sec. 25-8n-15w, in the Collins field of Covington County.

The well tested at the rate of 336 barrels of 40 gravity oil per day on a quarter inch choked with tubing pressure of 500 pounds.

Completion was from a perforated interval in the Rhodesia sand at 13,777-82 feet.

The field currently lists one other producer which is the discovery well. Two other wells have been temporarily abandoned.

Sun Oil has location staked for its Wingo No. 1, sec. 35-3n-9e, in the one well Conerly field of Pike County. The start is a southeast offset to the discovery well. Contract depth is 10,800 feet to test the lower Tuscaloosa sand productive in the discovery well.

In the expanding Summerland field of Jones and Covington counties, four new tests are scheduled. Triad Oil and Gas Co. has location staked for its Laird-Gambrell No. 3, sec 3-9n-1w. Wilbur Knight and Southdown, Inc., have location staked for three tests, the Dees No. 1, sec. 2-9n-14w, Dees No. 2, sec 2-9n-14w, and the Dees No. 3, sec. 35-10n-14w. The Summerland field currently lists 18 producing wells.

In Smith County, LaRue-Smith Producing Co. has abandoned its wildcat, the Duncan No. 1, sec. 5-10n-14w, at total depth of 13,015 feet. Also in Smith County, Placid Oil Co. is below 12,850 feet, and nearing contract depth in its wildcat, the Austin, No. 1, sec. 3-10n-16w.

American Petrofina Co. of Texas drilled below 8,100 feet in its Knight No. 1, sec. 18-5n-5e, confirmation well in the recently found Pelahatchie field of Rankin County. Contract depth is 11,600 feet.

Cities Service Petroleum Co. is in the process of officially completing its Green County wildcat discovery, the Robinson Land Co. No. 1, sec. 15-4n-8w, as a dual producer. The new discovery was drilled to 13,057 feet with seven-inch casing set to 12,711 feet. Perforating and testing has been underway for several weeks with commercial production established in four different zones.

Tribe's Walker Second In 500 Dash

ARNOLD PALMER chips out from behind a large palm tree which blocked his approach to the 9th hole Saturday in the $35,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament. Palmer then sank a 15-foot putt for a par 3 on the 197-yard hole. He went on to record a 68, giving him a one-stroke lead over Gary Player and Jack Nichlaus going into today's final 18 holes of the 72-hole tournament. Palmer, defending champion, had a 203. Goldsmith, Relay Team Place 4th

FORT WORTH (Special) — Northeast State's Randall Walker, paying little regard to the highly publicized stars he ran against, put on a strong finish to capture second place in the 500-yard dash at the third annual Will Rogers game here Saturday.

As a capacity crowd of 7,200 looked on, young Ted Nelson of Texas A&M kicked past tiring Ralph Alsbaugh in the final lap and held off the closing rush of Walker to clock a winning time of 58.0 — a new Texas indoor record.

Northeast, the little Louisiana school which repeatedly comes up with a big track reputation, also came away with two fourth place awards to its credit.

Speedster Jay Goldsmith finished fourth in the 60-yard dash with a time of 6.4

The Monroe Louisiana school's other fourth place finish came from the 3:26.9 time registered by the mile relay team. The team is composed of Walker, junior John Baker, and two freshmen, Cline Averett and Mike Wilson.

Northeast State's John Pennel was also scheduled to enter the pole vault but could not compete because of a sprained ankle.

Coach Bob Groseclose had words of praise for all of his men shortly after the meet.

"I was very pleased with all of our boys," Coach Groseclose said, "and especially proud of the two freshmen (Wilson and Averett) who ran so well.

"We were somewhat disappointed that Randy didn't win, but he ran a great race. He was running against some of the top men in the nation and a second place is definitely nothing to be ashamed of."

The former Texas schoolboy mentor continued saying, "Randy got boxed in early and had to hang back a little too long. He really pressed Nelson near the finish and was a close second. He just left Southern and Cushman behind."

About Goldsmith's fourth place Groseclose said, "Jay ran a fine race too. He got off to a terrible start or would have finished higher. He was tremendous in the last half of the race."

Robinson had a time of 4:22.0. Dennis Moore of ACC won the event with 4:21.6 and Howard Payne's Tommy Sikes was second with 4:21.7.

Perhaps the biggest disappointment of the meet came in the pole vault. The classy field never got an opportunity for a breakthrough on the 16 - foot barrier.

Three of them — Baylus Bennett, Fred Hansen and Warren Brattloff — all scaled 15 feet, but faultered at 15-6. Bennett, who completed his eligibility at Texas last year, was declared the winner because of fewer misses at lower height.

Still the faithful track fans who hung on for the pole vault finish some minutes after the concluding running event gave the vaulting trio a rousing applause.

The magical barriers also stood up in the high jump and shot put.

Defending champion Jackie Upton of TCU and towering Colin Ridgeway of Lamar Tech, the seven foot clan member, both cleared 6-6 but faultered at 6-8. Upton took the championship like Bennett on a basis of fewer misses.

Arnold Palmer Eagles 18th To Capture Lead

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—Arnold Palmer blasted a powerful 243-three-wood seven feet from the pin on the final hole Saturday then calmly sank the eagle putt to grab a one - stroke lead over arch - rivals Gary Player and Jack Nicklaus in the third round of the $35,000 Phoenix Open Golf tournament.

Palmer already winner of the Los Angeles Open this year, might have pulled further ahead of the pack except for an incident on the 13th hole. Just as he prepared to putt, and there was complete silence in the gallery of about 3,000, a girl giggled.

Arnie then three-putted the hole for a bogey and followed that with another bogey on the 14th when his approach went over the green.

But he made up for everything on the 18th. He blasted a 280-yard tee shot on the par-five, 523-yard hole. Then he pulled out his three-wood and rapped the ball the remaining 240 yards straight down the middle to the green. The ball landed on the front edge and rolled up about seven feet to the right of the pin exactly hole high. While the gallery, then swelled to about 6,000, stood in hushed silence he rolled in the putt that gave him the one-shot lead.

Palmer had four birdies in addition to his eagle, getting down a 25-footer on the 12th hole.

Nicklaus was out in 33, back in 34, for a fine 67. And Player had 34-34—68. The National Open champ had about a 30-foot putt for an eagle on the 18th but the ball was slightly off line.

Dickinson, playing with Palmer, pulled into contention by chipping into the cup from 80 feet on the 18th hole for an eagle that gave him a 68.

January was out in 31 Saturday with five birdies on the front nine. His longest putt was from 12 feet.

Hebert, who led the field by one stroke going into the third round, got off to a fast start by birdieing three of the first four holes. But he followed that with three consecutive bogeys and wound up with an even par 72.

The final round of the 72-hole event is slated for Sunday.

Porkers Walk Over Baylor 5 In League Game

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Arkansas snagged the tip, took a two-point lead, and walked away from Baylor, 75-65 in a Southwest Conference Basketball game Saturday.

Tommy Boyer hit 31 points to pace the Razorbacks, picking up 19 of them in the first half.

Baylor had four men in double figures. Ronnie Phelps led the Bears with 15 points, Ed Horne had 13 and Roy Wolfe and Winston Moore each contributed 13.

Baylor hit only 25 per cent from the field in the first half, six of 24 attempts.

Neither team was hot from the field, but Arkansas gained a slight advantage off the boards, 22 in rebounds to 19 for Baylor.

Boyer hit seven of 10 from the field in the first half and coupled it with five of five free throws for his 19 points. He brought his free-throw percentage to .905, adding 11 of 12 to his 75 of 83 (.904) going into the game. Boyer is second in the nation in free throw accuracy.

The game left Arkansas with a 4-3 conference record and 9-8 season card. Baylor is now 2-5 in loop play and 5-12 for the season.

FROM DALLAS TO KC

Lamar Hunt Convinced Move Should Be Made

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Lamar Hunt, wealthy owner of the Dallas Texans, said Saturday he had become convinced that two pro football clubs could not operate successfully here and that as a matter of business he was moving his franchise to Kansas City if certain conditions were met.

Hunt, whose operation in Dallas has been hampered by huge losses over three years, even dropping about $200,000 this past season although Dallas won the American Football League championship, told the press and radio at a conference that he was virtually certain that Kansas City would be the Texans' home in 1963.

If the Texans leave, it will open the field to the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League.

Kansas City has agreed to enlarge its stadium to 45,000 and offered free rental the first two years, then put on a season ticket selling campaign aimed at 25,000. Hunt said if the 25,000 tickets were sold he would move his club to Kansas City.

He explained, however, that this didn't mean he would ask that the exact figure be reached. "We would not be obligated to move if it were not," he declared, "but we could."

LAMAR HUNT

Hunt said that when he brought a pro football team to Dallas he had not anticipated having competition but that the Cowboys were moved in by the NFL.

"Even then, I thought that I could win the attendance war if I had a winning team," he said. "I was wrong. Two clubs cannot operate successfully here, especially with the territory being saturated with television. If we could black out TV two clubs might be successful but that cannot be done."

He said Kansas City would have 90 days—by its own choice—to sell the 25,000 tickets.

"They are taking 60 days to organize the campaign and will start it April 15," he explained. "They have set 30 days as the limit for putting over the sale. I am confident it will be done."

Hunt said there was a possibility that moving the Texans to Kansas City might bring a merger between the AFL and NFL.

"Dallas is the sorest spot," he said. "It is the only one having two clubs where the potential is not large enough to indicate that either can be successful in the competition. If we move to Kansas City it probably will relieve the tension between the two leagues."

Hunt said there were several factors involved in the removal plan, the most important being that the club apparently would continue to lose money—that ticket sales for next season had shown no indications of a profitable increase.

JACKETS LOSE AGAIN

Bengals Top Tech In SEC Contest

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Louisiana State came up with a furious second-half rally to trim sixth-ranked Georgia Tech 56-54 in a Southeastern Conference basketball game Saturday night.

The foul shooting of Sam Chase gave LSU a 54-52 lead, for the first time in the game, in the final three minutes. Chase sank two more free throws and took advantage of some Tech floor mistakes to ice LSU's 11th victory of the season.

Howard Keene led LSU scoring with 14 points and picked off seven rebounds. Maury Drummond and Chase each scored 12 for the Tigers.

Drummond came up with two key rebounds and one pass interception as the game went down to the wire.

R. D. Craddock and Ron Scharf each scored 11 for Tech.

Louisiana State made 23 of 60 field goals for a 38.3 percentage, and Tech made 22 of 52 for a 42.3 mark. Tech made 14 of 28 field goals in the first half.

At the foul line, Tech sank 10 of 11 for a 90.9 mark and LSU had 10 of 17 for a 58.8 percentage.

Tech was upset by Tulane last night 77-69.

Tech is now 17-3 for the season and 6-3 in the SEC. LSU is 11-7 over-all and 4-4 in the SEC.

Kentucky Takes SEC Win Over Ole Miss, 75-69

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Kentucky fought off a hot second half attack by Mel Edmonds and Donnie Kessinger Saturday night to beat Mississippi 75-69 in a Southeastern Conference basketball game.

Edmonds and Kessinger combined for 42 points after intermission, but Kentucky was never behind. The Wildcats had a 35-21 lead at the half.

Edmonds, a 6-footer who has scored in double figures every game this season, was the top scorer with 30 points. Kessinger had 26.

Cotton Nash was high for Kentucky with 22 points.

After trailing most of the first half by more than 10 points, the Rebels closed in to 61-64 with a little more than 2 minutes left in the game. But that was as close as the Rebels came.

Kentucky now is 14-6 for the season and Mississippi is 5-13.

It was Kentucky's 25th victory over the Rebels who have not beaten the Wildcats in basketball for 34 years. Ole Miss won two games from Kentucky in the 1920s.

Knudson Takes Over 1st Place At Panama Open

PANAMA (AP)—George Knudson of Canada, playing "one of the craziest rounds in years," shot into sole possession of first place Saturday in the third round of the Panama Open Golf Tournament.

The 25-year-old Canadian, two-time winner on last year's Caribbean circuit but disqualified in this event because of an incorrect score, took a four-stroke lead into Sunday's final round with his 54-hole total of 207. He fired a 3-under-par 69 Saturday.

Jim Ferree of Crystal River, Fla., co-leader with Knudson at the halfway mark, blew to a 79 and fell into a tie for sixth place with five others at 217.

Grambling Gets Sweet Revenge

GRAMBLING, La. (AP)—Grambling, the nation's fourth-ranked small college team, ran up its widest victory margin of the season—52 points—Saturday night in whipping Prairie View 111-59.

Grambling led 46-28 at the half and outscored the Texans 65-31 in the second half.

Grambling now is 8-1 in the Southwestern Conference and 19-2 for the season. Prairie View is 6-2 in the loop and 16-4 overall.

Epps Wins

PIONEER (Special) — Louie Cleveland scored 21 points and Don Raley 20 to pace Epps past Pioneer 73-63 in the district 4-B finals here Saturday. Harry Bain had 17 for the losers.

Forest's girls won their championship, clipping Epps 5-46. Miller scored 28 points for the winners and Sims 30 for the losers.

Buckeyes Stage Big Last Half To Get Victory

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State staged a 58-point last-half rampage Saturday to swamp Wisconsin 94-70, running the Buckeye Big Ten basketball record to 5-2 as they chalked up their 45th consecutive victory on the home boards.

Dick Reasbeck, Martins Ferry senior, poured in 31 points to lead the scoring as a concentrated defense held 6-foot-8 Gary Bradds, the conference's No. 1 pointmaker, to 25. Bradds is averaging 26.9.

The Bucks held a 36-28 edge at the half, but pulled steadily away in the closing session to avenge the only regular season loss of last season. A year ago the Badgers triumphed 87-68 over Ohio State at Madison.

Bearcats Get Win To Stay Unbeaten

CINCINNATI (AP) — The University of Cincinnati rolled to its 37th straight basketball victory—19 this year—Saturday night, a narrow down-to-the-wire 65-61 decision over Bradley in a Missouri Valley Conference game.

The game was a toss-up until Tony Yates went to the foul line for the two-time NCAA champions, with 58 seconds left and Cincinnati leading, 60-59. Yates, who had missed his last six free throws, hit with two and clinched it for the Bearcats.

Bradley, the last team to beat Cincinnati, had a 31-30 lead at halftime and led several times after the intermission.

The switch to man-to-man defense worked. Cincinnati scored only one field goal in the next 8 minutes while the Braves crept up. Mack Herndon tied it, 30-all, with a long jump shot 2:16 before the gun sounded.

As the gun sounded, Joe Strawder, Bradley's newly returned 6-foot-9 center, was fouled. The officials ruled the foul was committed in game time and Strawder hit with the first try to put Bradley ahead.

Maroons Defeat Tennessee Five By 63-59 Count

STATE COLLEGE, Miss. (AP) —Mississippi State fought uphill to defeat scrappy Tennessee 63-59 Saturday night and tighten its lead in the Southeastern Conference basketball race.

The fancy footwork and ball handling of Tennessee's Danny Schultz kept the pressure on eighth - ranked Mississippi State for most of the game.

Two free throws by State's Aubrey Nichols put the Maroons ahead 52-51 with 4½ minutes left, and State managed to keep a slim lead as Tennessee tired.

The Maroons had to come from behind to tie the Vols 28-28 at intermission. But the Vols jumped in front after the rest period and the 6-foot Schultz kept Tennessee in front until the waning minutes of the second half.

Roth Racks Up Third Tourney Title Of Season

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Nancy Roth racked up her third tournament championship of the Florida winter season Saturday and she did it the hard way, with a 2 and 1 victory over the national women's amateur champion, JoAnne Gunderson.

The upset, in the Palm Beach Women's championship ranked as only a mild one, in view of the hot pace Miss Roth has been setting. She won the big Doherty women's amateur at Fort Lauderdale and teamed with Marlene Michaelis to take the international four-ball at Hollywood.

The 23-year-old blonde dropped an easy birdie putt, after her 3-yard second shot had left her only 2 feet from the cup, to close out Saturday's match at the 19th. It was the first time the pair had met.

Tribe's Walker Second In 500 Dash

ARNOLD PALMER chips out from behind a large palm tree which blocked his approach to the 9th hole Saturday in the $35,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament. Palmer then sank a 15-foot putt for a par 3 on the 197-yard hole. He went on to record a 68, giving him a one-stroke lead over Gary Player and Jack Nichlaus going into today's final 18 holes of the 72-hole tournament. Palmer, defending champion, had a 203. Goldsmith, Relay Team Place 4th

FORT WORTH (Special) — Northeast State's Randall Walker, paying little regard to the highly publicized stars he ran against, put on a strong finish to capture second place in the 500-yard dash at the third annual Will Rogers game here Saturday.

As a capacity crowd of 7,200 looked on, young Ted Nelson of Texas A&M kicked past tiring Ralph Alsbaugh in the final lap and held off the closing rush of Walker to clock a winning time of 58.0 — a new Texas indoor record.

Northeast, the little Louisiana school which repeatedly comes up with a big track reputation, also came away with two fourth place awards to its credit.

Speedster Jay Goldsmith finished fourth in the 60-yard dash with a time of 6.4

The Monroe Louisiana school's other fourth place finish came from the 3:26.9 time registered by the mile relay team. The team is composed of Walker, junior John Baker, and two freshmen, Cline Averett and Mike Wilson.

Northeast State's John Pennel was also scheduled to enter the pole vault but could not compete because of a sprained ankle.

Coach Bob Groseclose had words of praise for all of his men shortly after the meet.

"I was very pleased with all of our boys," Coach Groseclose said, "and especially proud of the two freshmen (Wilson and Averett) who ran so well.

"We were somewhat disappointed that Randy didn't win, but he ran a great race. He was running against some of the top men in the nation and a second place is definitely nothing to be ashamed of."

The former Texas schoolboy mentor continued saying, "Randy got boxed in early and had to hang back a little too long. He really pressed Nelson near the finish and was a close second. He just left Southern and Cushman behind."

About Goldsmith's fourth place Groseclose said, "Jay ran a fine race too. He got off to a terrible start or would have finished higher. He was tremendous in the last half of the race."

Robinson had a time of 4:22.0. Dennis Moore of ACC won the event with 4:21.6 and Howard Payne's Tommy Sikes was second with 4:21.7.

Perhaps the biggest disappointment of the meet came in the pole vault. The classy field never got an opportunity for a breakthrough on the 16 - foot barrier.

Three of them — Baylus Bennett, Fred Hansen and Warren Brattloff — all scaled 15 feet, but faultered at 15-6. Bennett, who completed his eligibility at Texas last year, was declared the winner because of fewer misses at lower height.

Still the faithful track fans who hung on for the pole vault finish some minutes after the concluding running event gave the vaulting trio a rousing applause.

The magical barriers also stood up in the high jump and shot put.

Defending champion Jackie Upton of TCU and towering Colin Ridgeway of Lamar Tech, the seven foot clan member, both cleared 6-6 but faultered at 6-8. Upton took the championship like Bennett on a basis of fewer misses.

IN PHOENIX OPEN

Arnold Palmer Eagles 18th To Capture Lead

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—Arnold Palmer blasted a powerful 243-three-wood seven feet from the pin on the final hole Saturday then calmly sank the eagle putt to grab a one - stroke lead over arch - rivals Gary Player and Jack Nicklaus in the third round of the $35,000 Phoenix Open Golf tournament.

Palmer already winner of the Los Angeles Open this year, might have pulled further ahead of the pack except for an incident on the 13th hole. Just as he prepared to putt, and there was complete silence in the gallery of about 3,000, a girl giggled.

Arnie then three-putted the hole for a bogey and followed that with another bogey on the 14th when his approach went over the green.

But he made up for everything on the 18th. He blasted a 280-yard tee shot on the par-five, 523-yard hole. Then he pulled out his three-wood and rapped the ball the remaining 240 yards straight down the middle to the green. The ball landed on the front edge and rolled up about seven feet to the right of the pin exactly hole high. While the gallery, then swelled to about 6,000, stood in hushed silence he rolled in the putt that gave him the one-shot lead.

Palmer had four birdies in addition to his eagle, getting down a 25-footer on the 12th hole.

Nicklaus was out in 33, back in 34, for a fine 67. And Player had 34-34—68. The National Open champ had about a 30-foot putt for an eagle on the 18th but the ball was slightly off line.

Dickinson, playing with Palmer, pulled into contention by chipping into the cup from 80 feet on the 18th hole for an eagle that gave him a 68.

January was out in 31 Saturday with five birdies on the front nine. His longest putt was from 12 feet.

Hebert, who led the field by one stroke going into the third round, got off to a fast start by birdieing three of the first four holes. But he followed that with three consecutive bogeys and wound up with an even par 72.

The final round of the 72-hole event is slated for Sunday.

FROM DALLAS TO KC

Lamar Hunt Convinced Move Should Be Made

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Lamar Hunt, wealthy owner of the Dallas Texans, said Saturday he had become convinced that two pro football clubs could not operate successfully here and that as a matter of business he was moving his franchise to Kansas City if certain conditions were met.

Hunt, whose operation in Dallas has been hampered by huge losses over three years, even dropping about $200,000 this past season although Dallas won the American Football League championship, told the press and radio at a conference that he was virtually certain that Kansas City would be the Texans' home in 1963.

If the Texans leave, it will open the field to the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League.

Kansas City has agreed to enlarge its stadium to 45,000 and offered free rental the first two years, then put on a season ticket selling campaign aimed at 25,000. Hunt said if the 25,000 tickets were sold he would move his club to Kansas City.

He explained, however, that this didn't mean he would ask that the exact figure be reached. "We would not be obligated to move if it were not," he declared, "but we could."

LAMAR HUNT

Hunt said that when he brought a pro football team to Dallas he had not anticipated having competition but that the Cowboys were moved in by the NFL.

"Even then, I thought that I could win the attendance war if I had a winning team," he said. "I was wrong. Two clubs cannot operate successfully here, especially with the territory being saturated with television. If we could black out TV two clubs might be successful but that cannot be done."

He said Kansas City would have 90 days—by its own choice—to sell the 25,000 tickets.

"They are taking 60 days to organize the campaign and will start it April 15," he explained. "They have set 30 days as the limit for putting over the sale. I am confident it will be done."

Hunt said there was a possibility that moving the Texans to Kansas City might bring a merger between the AFL and NFL.

"Dallas is the sorest spot," he said. "It is the only one having two clubs where the potential is not large enough to indicate that either can be successful in the competition. If we move to Kansas City it probably will relieve the tension between the two leagues.'

Hunt said there were several factors involved in the removal plan, the most important being that the club apparently would continue to lose money—that ticket sales for next season had shown no indications of a profitable increase.

JACKETS LOSE AGAIN

Bengals Top Tech In SEC Contest

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Louisiana State came up with a furious second-half rally to trim sixth-ranked Georgia Tech 56-54 in a Southeastern Conference basketball game Saturday night.

The foul shooting of Sam Chase gave LSU a 54-52 lead, for the first time in the game, in the final three minutes. Chase sank two more free throws and took advantage of some Tech floor mistakes to ice LSU's 11th victory of the season.

Howard Keene led LSU scoring with 14 points and picked off seven rebounds. Maury Drummond and Chase each scored 12 for the Tigers.

Drummond came up with two key rebounds and one pass interception as the game went down to the wire.

R. D. Craddock and Ron Scharf each scored 11 for Tech.

Louisiana State made 23 of 60 field goals for a 38.3 percentage, and Tech made 22 of 52 for a 42.3 mark. Tech made 14 of 28 field goals in the first half.

At the foul line, Tech sank 10 of 11 for a 90.9 mark and LSU had 10 of 17 for a 58.8 percentage.

Tech was upset by Tulane last night 77-69.

Tech is now 17-3 for the season and 6-3 in the SEC. LSU is 11-7 over-all and 4-4 in the SEC.

Kentucky Takes SEC Win Over Ole Miss, 75-69

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Kentucky fought off a hot second half attack by Mel Edmonds and Donnie Kessinger Saturday night to beat Mississippi 75-69 in a Southeastern Conference basketball game.

Edmonds and Kessinger combined for 42 points after intermission, but Kentucky was never behind. The Wildcats had a 35-21 lead at the half.

Edmonds, a 6-footer who has scored in double figures every game this season, was the top scorer with 30 points. Kessinger had 26.

Cotton Nash was high for Kentucky with 22 points.

After trailing most of the first half by more than 10 points, the Rebels closed in to 61-64 with a little more than 2 minutes left in the game. But that was as close as the Rebels came.

Kentucky now is 14-6 for the season and Mississippi is 5-13.

It was Kentucky's 25th victory over the Rebels who have not beaten the Wildcats in basketball for 34 years. Ole Miss won two games from Kentucky in the 1920s.

Knudson Takes Over 1st Place At Panama Open

PANAMA (AP)—George Knudson of Canada, playing "one of the craziest rounds in years," shot into sole possession of first place Saturday in the third round of the Panama Open Golf Tournament.

The 25-year-old Canadian, two-time winner on last year's Caribbean circuit but disqualified in this event because of an incorrect score, took a four-stroke lead into Sunday's final round with his 54-hole total of 207. He fired a 3-under-par 69 Saturday.

Jim Ferree of Crystal River, Fla., co-leader with Knudson at the halfway mark, blew to a 79 and fell into a tie for sixth place with five others at 217.

Porkers Walk Over Baylor 5 In League Game

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Arkansas snagged the tip, took a two-point lead, and walked away from Baylor, 75-65 in a Southwest Conference Basketball game Saturday.

Tommy Boyer hit 31 points to pace the Razorbacks, picking up 19 of them in the first half.

Baylor had four men in double figures. Ronnie Phelps led the Bears with 15 points, Ed Horne had 13 and Roy Wolfe and Winston Moore each contributed 13.

Baylor hit only 25 per cent from the field in the first half, six of 24 attempts.

Neither team was hot from the field, but Arkansas gained a slight advantage off the boards, 22 in rebounds to 19 for Baylor.

Boyer hit seven of 10 from the field in the first half and coupled it with five of five free throws for his 19 points. He brought his free-throw percentage to .905, adding 11 of 12 to his 75 of 83 (.904) going into the game. Boyer is second in the nation in free throw accuracy.

The game left Arkansas with a 4-3 conference record and 9-8 season card. Baylor is now 2-5 in loop play and 5-12 for the season.

Bearcats Get Win To Stay Unbeaten

CINCINNATI (AP) — The University of Cincinnati rolled to its 37th straight basketball victory—19 this year—Saturday night, a narrow down-to-the-wire 65-61 decision over Bradley in a Missouri Valley Conference game.

The game was a toss-up until Tony Yates went to the foul line for the two-time NCAA champions, with 58 seconds left and Cincinnati leading, 60-59. Yates, who had missed his last six free throws, hit with two and clinched it for the Bearcats.

Bradley, the last team to beat Cincinnati, had a 31-30 lead at halftime and led several times after the intermission.

The Braves abandoned an early experiment with zone defense when Cincinnati ran up a 25-16 lead halfway through the first period.

The switch to man-to-man defense worked. Cincinnati scored only one field goal in the next 8 minutes while the Braves crept up. Mack Herndon tied it, 30-all, with a long jump shot 2:16 before the gun sounded.

As the gun sounded, Joe Strawder, Bradley's newly returned 6-foot-9 center, was fouled. The officials ruled the foul was committed in game time and Strawder hit with the first try to put Bradley ahead.

FERRIDAY (Special) — Monterey's boys defeated Block 76-69 in the finals of the Tri - Parish tourney here Saturday.

Buckeyes Stage Big Last Half To Get Victory

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State staged a 58-point last-half rampage Saturday to swamp Wisconsin 94-70, running the Buckeye Big Ten basketball record to 5-2 as they chalked up their 45th consecutive victory on the home boards.

Dick Reasbeck, Martins Ferry senior, poured in 31 points to lead the scoring as a concentrated defense held 6-foot-8 Gary Bradds, the conference's No. 1 point-maker, to 25. Bradds is averaging 26.9.

The Bucks held a 36-28 edge at the half, but pulled steadily away in the closing session to avenge the only regular season loss of last season. A year ago the Badgers triumphed 87-68 over Ohio State at Madison.

Maroons Defeat Tennessee Five By 63-59 Count

STATE COLLEGE, Miss. (AP)—Mississippi State fought uphill to defeat scrappy Tennessee 63-59 Saturday night and tighten its lead in the Southeastern Conference basketball race.

The fancy footwork and ball handling of Tennessee's Danny Schultz kept the pressure on eighth - ranked Mississippi State for most of the game.

Two free throws by State's Aubrey Nichols put the Maroons ahead 52-51 with 4½ minutes left, and State managed to keep a slim lead as Tennessee tired.

The Maroons had to come from behind to tie the Vols 28-28 at intermission. But the Vols jumped in front after the rest period and the 6-foot Schultz kept Tennessee in front until the waning minutes of the second half.

Roth Racks Up Third Tourney Title Of Season

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Nancy Roth racked up her third tournament championship of the Florida winter season Saturday and she did it the hard way—with a 2 and 1 victory over the national women's amateur champion, JoAnne Gunderson.

The upset, in the Palm Beach Women's championship ranked as only a mild one, in view of the hot pace Miss Roth has been setting. She won the big Doherty women's amateur at Fort Lauderdale and teamed with Margo Michaelis to take the international four-ball at Hollywood.

The 23-year-old blonde dropped an easy birdie putt, after her 120-yard second shot had left her only 2 feet from the cup, to close out Saturday's match at the 17th.

It was the first time the two had met.

Club Teaches Gun Safety

With Sam Hanna

Need For Youngsters

This subject of hunter safety may sound like a broken record, but before you close your ear just remember that a youngster close to you, or an adult for that matter, could be killed on a hunting trip.

In fact, the sportsmen of Louisiana, in our opinion, and the officials of Louisiana, in our opinion, and the officials of Louisiana are not taking hunter safety seriously enough, simply because we're not taking any steps to teach our youngsters about guns.

Of course the primary responsibility is in the home where the fathers should see to it that their sons are taught the proper methods of handling a firearm.

But other states have gone a step further with safety courses, in some cases handled by the game departments and in other cases by organizations.

This should be done in Louisiana where youngsters have lost their lives with guns.

While organized sportsmen and wildlife officials in the most part have neglected this need here so far, there have been efforts by groups toward gun safety among youngsters.

A good example of this is the creation of a Rod & Gun Club at West Monroe Junior High School where three men faculty members serve as instructors for seventh and eighth grade boys.

Gene Hardin, the school principal, assembled his three instructors for an interview this week. We were impressed and you would have been too.

Because the three instructors — Danny Sullivan, assistant principal, Donald Stewart, history teacher, and Hoyt Lee, science teacher — are sponsoring an extracurricular activity that is certainly worthwhile.

They divided the club into three sections so that each instructor can pay more attention to the individual youngster. Monthly meetings are held and there gun safety measures are taught.

Just before the duck season Donald Stewart took a group of his boys to Wham Brake where to practice boat safety — on their own time.

And here is the vital point. With an enrollment of about 500 boys in the school, almost 300 applied for membership in the Rod & Gun Club, but because there were only three sponsors available the membership was held to 92.

Danny Sullivan said he uses an unloaded gun for demonstrations and once Hoyt Lee had a policeman over to teach the dangers of guns, especially pistols.

They estimated that the fathers of about 75 per cent of the club members spend time with their youngsters hunting or fishing.

But principal Gene Hardin quickly points out that the need for safety instruction is much greater than the school can meet.

It's a great need, but the Rod & Gun Club of West Monroe Junior High is at least doing its part — initiated by the school without direction from elsewhere.

How long are we going to ignore the fact that youngsters must be taught how to handle a gun properly.

Wildlife Federal Money

Louisiana is getting an additional $176,217 in federal money to be spent on projects like game management areas, which, is handled properly, are eligible for federal assistance.

This is not federal aid in that the money is allocated on the basis of revenue collected off taxes on the sale of hunting equipment. Hunters who buy equipment, in theory, benefit from a portion of the money refunded to the states.

According to Secretary of the Interior Stewart A. Udall, state game and fish departments are receiving $6 million in federal money over and above their usual apportionments. Of this more than $2 million will be distributed to the 12 southeastern states, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands in Region 4 of the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife.

But the states must watch these funds from sources other than current operating funds. The states must obligate their respective apportionments by April 1, 1963.

Arkansas Deer Kill

Louisiana's official deer kill has not been released yet, but the Arkansas department reports that the Razorback State set a record this past season.

The deer harvest in Arkansas is certain to exceed 25,000 and may run close to 30,000.

Last count the Game and Fish Commission had a total of 22,434 kills, but this did not include the last hunting period when "any deer" were legal in 25 northern counties and several islands in the southeast portion.

According to the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission, the official November 12-17 total was 19,122, of which 5,111 were does. The statewide second period, December 10-15, incomplete totals stand at 3,312.

In Louisiana, if you haven't mailed your deer card from the past season, do so.

About Sea Lions

Sea lions and seals are different.

You may be interested to know this in case you pay the Monroe zoo a visit, because the zoo has three sea lions.

Director Kit Beecher explains that sea lions live in large herds along the western coast of the United States. And they can be found by the thousands at their breeding grounds at various times of the year.

Kit says the easiest way to tell the sea lion from a seal is by the habits of the sea lion, which can get about on the ground better than a seal. And you can see the ears of a seal lion whereas you can't see those of a seal.

At the Monroe zoo, the sea lions are fed twice daily — at about 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., consuming about 30 pounds of fish per day. Each sea lion gets a special vitamin pill hidden in a fish at the morning feeding.

Intelligent, active and easily trained, sea lions are seen at the circus and on television. And Kit says the city hopes to have a sea lion act at the zoo someday.

Little Man's Corner

It was spring and then winter, but as the seasons changed the little men made news afield.

Bird hunters and rabbit hunters were closing out the seasons with just a few days left while the fishermen began crowding into the picture.

James Clement of Lake Providence and a partner found four coveys and each hunter got the limit. Billy Shirey and his son Billy found three coveys. They bagged seven, then got five on another day.

Word is that a lot of Lake Providence fishermen are going to Grand Lake in nearby Arkansas where the white perch are biting. Limit getters include Claude Rinicker, J. C. Hannah, Hall Taylor, Arkie Bearden and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Cooper.

And the rabbit hunters around Lake Providence, on the cold days, have been getting some good hunts in around the Possum Point area. They include Howard Brown, John Henry Burton, Bill Hall, George Hopkins, Charley Zimmer and his son.

In Monroe, Ed Johnson is interested in organizing a gun club to affiliate with the National Rifle Association. Persons interested are asked to contact Ed at 325-0747.

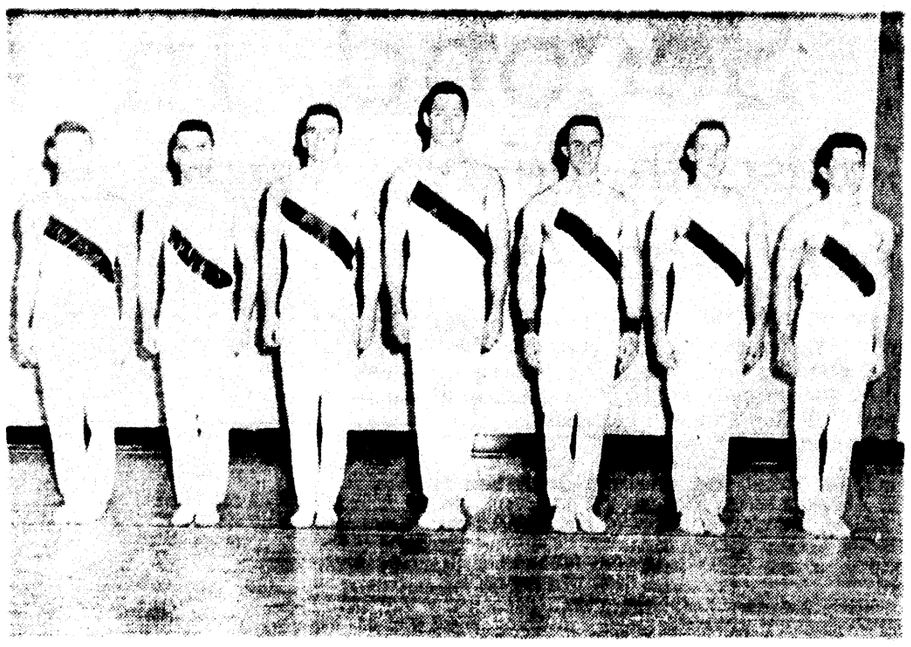

And from Winnfield, O. O. (Red) House landed a nice string of 16 bass, weighing from a pound to four pounds in Saline Lake. He was fishing with a Blue Doll.

But Red got them the hard way. The temperature was near freezing.

And from West Monroe, where last week we reported that Sonny Sers, although complaining bitterly about the duck season, treated his friends to a duck supper, comes a reply from Sonny, who guessed right that our source of information was Bert Hatten.

Sonny says, "It was really guinea we had. You can tell a delegate like Bert most anything and they'll believe it. Let me know when you want to make a guinea shoot. I know where several roosts are and the season runs til April 17th."

And that's a pretty good reply, but somebody should tell Sonny Sers that it'll be illegal to shoot a guinea off the roost.

THESE NORTHEAST STATE gymnasts will be hosts for the first Louisiana State Collegiate Gymnastics Friday night in Brown Hall Gym. They are (left to right) David Adams, Wynn Jefferson, Marvin Jordan, Jim Walker, Sam Walker, Tommy Frazier and Gene Huffty. LSU and Northwestern have already entered teams in the Friday night meet and other state colleges and universities are expected to enter this week. Advance tickets are on sale now in the Northeast Book Store and in Brown Hall 104 and 109.

FROM LINEMAN TO SINGER

Crowd Is Enthusiastic As Rosy Makes Debut

NEW YORK (AP)— Roosevelt Grier, a second tenor, made his Carnegie Hall debut Saturday, before an enthusiastic crowd of about 3,500 music lovers.

Mr. Grieg sang two songs, both warmly applauded by the capacity house.

His first number was in the lively manner of the noted folk singer Elvis Presley, called "Love, Set Me Free," and his second was the touching ballad, "Danny Boy."

In the latter, he sounded a lot like a 300-pound version of Eddie Fisher—the singer, not the Chicago White Sox pitcher.

Which is not bad for the defensive tackie of the New York Giants of the National Football League. That job is the one Grier has been working at for the last eight years, and it led indirectly to the concert stage.

"I used to get the boys up about six in the morning, at training camp, and sing for them," Grier said, as he waited in the wings for his turn to sing in a big show arranged by local radio station.

"I used to try out my new songs and arrangements on them. They didn't like it too much, but I figured they had to get up at seven anyway. Finally, they told me to go out and get a job singing, so I did."

Grier has been working in a night club, where many of his teammates have come to hear him at a more civilized hour.

"I sing baliads, and folk songs like John Henry, and songs I wrote myself," he said. "I wrote 'Let The Cool Wind Blow,' and 'The Mail Must Go Through,' and a thing called 'Strutting and Twisting.'

"I'm sort of a second tenor, about half-way between a baritone and a tenor. I've made some records, but I haven't had a big seller yet. I make my own arrangements, although I can't write music. I sing them and an arranger writes them out."

Grier said he was a little nervous singing in Carnegie Hall before a packed house, but the audience seemed to like him.

He did some finger-snapping and toe-tapping, and some squirming—and there is a lot of him to squirm, even though he's on a diet and is down to 300 pounds. He's 6-feet-5.

"I played at about 310 last year," he said. I want to get into the '90's next year," meaning the 290's. "I think as you get a little older you should lose weight."

Grier said he has always loved to sing. "I was one of a family of 11 in Cuthbert, Ga.," he said. "We sang gospels and spirituals at home. I studied some music at Penn State, and I hope to make singing and song-writing my career when I'm through playing football."

He said he hoped to play "three more years, or at least two, if I can."

Grier, who is 30, admitted that the Giant defensive line has been described as "too old" for several seasons.

"But we feel that as long as we get the job done, we're not too old," he said.

"Also, the Green Bay Packers are getting older, too. If we can hang on long enough, maybe they'll be older than we are.

"If we can't beat them any other way, we can beat them with old age."

2ND TIME AROUND

Physician Winner Of Another Upset

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Physician, who scored an upset victory in the 1962 Santa Anita Handicap and nothing much since, registered another Saturday when he caught Crimson Satan in the stretch and won the $58,000 San Antonio Handicap at Santa Anita Park.

Rushing up the middle of the sloppy race track through rain and gloom, Lynn A. Boice's 6-year-old California-bred beat out the solid favorite, Crimson Satan from the Crimson King Farm of Kentucky, and won by about a length to collect $35,500.

Leaving the well-regarded Crozier to run fourth and the second choice, Olden Times, to run out of the money, Llangollen Farm's Game got in third.

The time for the 1⅛ miles was 1 minute 51 seconds.

More than 40,000 hardy souls braved the rainy, drizzly weather in this 25th running of the San Antonio, the last major stakes before the big horses go into the $100,000-added Santa Anita Handicap two weeks away.

The field was trimmed to six when the El Peco Stable's Decidedly, winner of the 1962 Kentucky Derby, and Howard B. Keck's 15-1 shot, Pirate Cove, were declared out of the race because of the off going.

Physician, given an excellent ride by Don Pierce, returned $17.20, $5.40 and $3.60. Crimson Satan, thwarted in his bid for his third straight stakes victory, paid $3.40 and $2.80, and Game, with Rudy Campas up, paid $4.80.

Crimson Satan, ridden by Jockey Herberto Hinojosa, went into the sloppy struggle rated as a good mudder, while Physician bore no such stamp.

Both Crozier and Olden Times were regarded as dangerous in off going, too. In fact, Rex Ellsworth's Olden Times won this stakes in the mud last year.

Game got away from the gate on top of the small field but Harpie soon took the lead and Crimson Satan, carrying high weight of 127 pounds, had no one whipped going into the club house turn.

Game took the lead in the early run down the backstretch but suddenly Crimson Satan cut loose with his expected charge on the outside.

The devil-named 4-year-old had the front end by a length as he hit the head of the home stretch and appeared to have the victory tucked away.

He drew out—but suddenly Physician came on and they battled to the wire.

Marion Teams Get District 7-C Championships

MARION (Special) — Marion's powerful boys team and fine sextet proved to be too much for opponents Saturday night and captured the 7-C district championship in both divisions.

Marion's boys of Coach Glenn Post, who now have a fine 31-6 mark, got by Start, 55-42, for its crown.

Bennett Taylor fired in 19 points, Elton Pardue collected 16 and Bobby Reagan added 14 for the winners. Jerry Smith hit 14 and Leroy Counts 12 for the losers.

Marion's girls raised their record to 31-8 with a 56-33 victory over Central of Delhi.

In the boys contest Reagan and Pardue topped Marion rebounders with 14 and 12 respectively.

Big 6-5 Tommy Parker pulled down 10 for Start and Buddy Hardwick kept the Owls in contention with his fine floor game.

Both Marion teams will advance to the regional tournament which is slated for next weekend in Monroe. A meeting is slated for Monroe Monday night at 6:30, with details for the meet to be worked out then.

Sikes Victorious Over Eros Five In 6-C Contest

JONESBORO (Special) — Sikes' Eagles raced by Eros, 52-43, here Saturday night in a game which decided who will face Weston for the 6-C crown.

Sikes will meet Weston Tuesday night in the first of a two of three game series for the title.

Weston, who is in the other half of the district, earned the right to play for the championship by whipping Atlanta.

The twin - terrors of Sikes, Ronnie and Connie Rolen, paced the victory Saturday night. Ronnie bombed in 23 points and Connie added 13.

Bobby Harper scored 16 to lead Eros and Dan Jarrell had eight.

The game was close all the way, with neither team leading by more than 10 points at any time. The score was tied 22-22 at halftime.

Smith Hangs On To Tourney Lead In Golfing Meet

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) —Par 71 golf preserved Marilynn Smith's lead Saturday through the third round of the St. Petersburg Women's Open, despite a strong 69 by Mickey Wright.

Miss Smith, of Tequesta, Fla., wound up with a 215 card for 54 holes, two strokes better than Miss Wright of Dallas, Tex., going into Sunday's final round of the $15,500 tournament on Sunset Golf and Country Club's links.

The Tequesta pro, formerly of Wichita, Kan., picked up a birdie on the sixth hole but lost the advantage when she three-putted No. 8. On the 10th, she hit a 5-iron shot to within 3 feet of the pin for a birdie 3. A 12-inch putt on No. 12 rolled wrong and she finished even with regulation figures.

Miss Wright birdied Nos. 1, 6, 7, and 9 in shooting a 3-under-par 33 outbound. Coming back she took a bogey 5 in blasting out of a drainage ditch at No. 14 and three-putted the 17th hole.

25 LETTERMEN RETURN

Northeast State Starts Spring Drills Monday

Approximately 50 Northeast State football players — including lettermen at every position—begin spring grid drills here at 3:30 Monday afternoon.

The workouts are scheduled to end March 15 with the annual Maroon-Gold intra - squad game.

Coach Jack Rowan has 25 lettermen back from his 1962 squad, plus another gridder who earned an "N" in 1961 before sitting out the past season. Also slated to be present are four junior college transfers, one freshman, 10 members of Northeast's best group of redshirts in years, and several non - shcolarship players trying out for the squad.

There are at least two monogram - winners at every position except the guard spots. Rowan lost heavily at these posts with Billy Foster and Larry Rambin completing their eligibility and O. J. Louviere becoming a scholastic casualty. Rambin was a first team all - Gulf States Conference choice and Foster made the Williamson mid - bracket all-America third unit.

All told, 11 1962 lettermen are missing. Foster, Rambin, Ross Nolan, twice an all - GSC tackle, quarterback Pete Vincent and halfbacks Gordon Salsman and Joe Thrailkill have completed their eligibility. Louviere, tackle Jim LaCoste and the conference punting leader, John Kelly, are gone for academic reasons, halfback-fullback Ken Thornhill has given up football to devote more time to his studies and halfback Dean Mann was forced to give up the game because of calcium deposits in a leg.

Despite the heavy losses at halfback, the Indians are still loaded with flashy runners. All - GSC Ken Newton and rookie sensation Robert Payne, who was the league's leading rusher in conference games, head the list of returning lettermen, which also includes defensive specialists Morris Douglas and R. F. Wilson.

The four veterans are expected to get some stiff competition from a pair of highly - rated redshirts, Ray Pommier of Crowley and Alton Thomas, former Byrd High all - stater. Pommier is a tough little scooter (5-6, 165) with great moves while Thomas is a quick 160 - pounder runner who is hard to bring down. Backfield Coach Jim Coats is very high on both of them.

Junior Ronnie Myrick, the team's total offense leader for the past two years, is back at quarterback. He is the squad's fastest man and the top passer last year. Also on hand is letterman Mike Cooper, a good passer and field general.

A promising junior college transfer, Bookie Shillcutt of Shreveport, and redshirts Warren LaSalle and Dee Faircloth complete the lineup at quarterback. Shillcut is rated a sure bet for heavy duty.

The entire 1962 cast returns at fullback — seniors Willie Ragan and Devone Payne and sophomore Ronnie Graham, plus redshirts Sonny Bondurant and David Elkins. The Northeast staff is hoping for a return to form by Ragan and Payne, both all - star material in 1961 but just so - so in 1962.

All of the lettermen ends are back — second team all - conference Wendell Drost (202), Jim Love (198), Tommy Latham (190), Carlyle Williams (203), speedy Sherrel Smith (190) and Gary Jones (200). Drost is the top defenseman and blocker of the group and Smith, a 1962 freshman, the best pass receiver.

Steve Regan, a J. C. transfer with impressive credentials, is also present along with a promising redshirt, Stanley Willson (190). Regan (6-3 and 190) caught 33 passes and was named Mississippi's top junior college lineman at Pearl River last year.

Four capable tackles are present who lettered last year. They are senior Joe Alewine (220) and three excellent sophs, Alden Fontenot (245), Wayne Clement (230) and Preston Hollier (220). Alewine was a starter last year while the other three were rated among the most promising freshmen linemen to play at Northeast in several years.

Kirby DesOrmeaux (215), a 1961 letterman, is back in camp while J. C. transfer Bill Johnston (215) completes the current lineup at this position.

Senior Don King (215), junior Joe McClain (205) and sophomore Billy Ross Graves (215) are lettermen guards on hand. King and McClain were on the Tribe's second unit last year and Graves on the third. Redshirts Jewel McBroom, now up to 195 pounds, James Kirkendall (218) and Dwian Jacobs (205) are rated good prospects while J. C. transfer Jack Weaver and freshman Fred Morris of Holly Ridge are also available.

All three lettermen center, Tommy Beaube (210), Stanley Starr (207) and Johnny Nolan (195), return. Starr started most of the early - season games with Beaube moving up into the regular job late in the campaign. Nolan is a defensive specialist.

TECH SOPHOMORE

Penny Becoming Fine Front Man

Tech Coach Cecil Crowley make no bones about it. "I expect Ray to become one of Tech's all-time greats before he finishes his career," Crowley said.

Penny got his career high of 21 points and 14 rebounds against Northeast State last Friday. He has been Tech's most consistent performer all season.

The Coushatta product has become Tech's most effective offensive rebounder and has been doing an excellent job on the defensive boards as well.

"It may be overlooked by some but Penny is one of the best defensive men in the GSC. He always draws the assignment of guarding the opposing team's top front line man," Crowley said.

Penny has been improving every game, but perhaps his best improvement has been his shooting ability. Penny was somewhat erratic last year as a frosh, but through 18 games he has hit 69 of 144 field shots for a .478 percentage.

"Ray has learned to wait for good shots and gets most of his close in. That is the big reason for his improved shooting ability," Crowley said.

Penny is averaging 10.5 points per game and has pulled down an average of 6.9 rebounds per tilt. "He is far better than the average sophomore in the GSC," Crowley said.

Penny, as well as all his Tech teammates, will return next year. That is one reason Crowley, the players, and Bulldog fans are already looking forward to the next campaign.

Club Teaches Gun Safety

With Sam Hanna

Need For Youngsters

This subject of hunter safety may sound like a broken record, but before you close your ear just remember that a youngster close to you, or an adult for that matter, could be killed on a hunting trip.

In fact, the sportsmen of Louisiana, in our opinion, and the officials of Louisiana, in our opinion, and the officials of Louisiana are not taking hunter safety seriously enough, simply because we're not taking any steps to teach our youngsters about guns.

Of course the primary responsibility is in the home where the fathers should see to it that their sons are taught the proper methods of handling a firearm.

But other states have gone a step further with safety courses, in some cases handled by the game departments and in other cases by organizations.

This should be done in Louisiana where youngsters have lost their lives with guns.

While organized sportsmen and wildlife officials in the most part have neglected this need here so far, there have been efforts by groups toward gun safety among youngsters.

A good example of this is the creation of a Rod & Gun Club at West Monroe Junior High School where three men faculty members serve as instructors for seventh and eighth grade boys.

Gene Hardin, the school principal, assembled his three instructors for an interview this week. We were impressed and you would have been too.

Because the three instructors — Danny Sullivan, assistant principal, Donald Stewart, history teacher, and Hoyt Lee, science teacher — are sponsoring an extracurricular activity that is certainly worthwhile.

They divided the club into three sections so that each instructor can pay more attention to the individual youngster. Monthly meetings are held and there gun safety measures are taught.

Just before the duck season Donald Stewart took a group of his boys to Wham Brake where to practice boat safety — on their own time.

And here is the vital point. With an enrollment of about 500 boys in the school, almost 300 applied for membership in the Rod & Gun Club, but because there were only three sponsors available the membership was held to 92.

Danny Sullivan said he uses an unloaded gun for demonstrations and once Hoyt Lee had a policeman over to teach the dangers of guns, especially pistols.

They estimated that the fathers of about 75 per cent of the club members spend time with their youngsters hunting or fishing.

But principal Gene Hardin quickly points out that the need for safety instruction is much greater than the school can meet.

It's a great need, but the Rod & Gun Club of West Monroe Junior High is at least doing its part — initiated by the school without direction from elsewhere.

How long are we going to ignore the fact that youngsters must be taught how to handle a gun properly?

Wildlife Federal Money

Louisiana is getting an additional $176,217 in federal money to be spent on projects like game management areas, which, is handled properly, are eligible for federal assistance.

This is not federal aid in that the money is allocated on the basis of revenue collected off taxes on the sale of hunting equipment. Hunters who buy equipment, in theory, benefit from a portion of the money refunded to the states.

According to Secretary of the Interior Stewart A. Udall, state game and fish departments are receiving $6 million in federal money over and above their usual apportionments. Of this more than $2 million will be distributed to the 12 southeastern states, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands in Region 4 of the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife.

But the states must watch these funds from sources other than current operating funds. The states must obligate their respective apportionments by April 1, 1963.

Arkansas Deer Kill

Louisiana's official deer kill has not been released yet, but the Arkansas department reports that the Razorback State set a record this past season.

The deer harvest in Arkansas is certain to exceed 25,000 and may run close to 30,000.

Last count the Game and Fish Commission had a total of 22,434 kills, but this did not include the last hunting period when "any deer" were legal in 25 northern counties and several islands in the southeast portion.

According to the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission, the official November 12-17 total was 19,122, of which 5,111 were does. The statewide second period, December 10-15, incomplete totals stand at 3,312.

In Louisiana, if you haven't mailed your deer card from the past season, do so.

About Sea Lions

Sea lions and seals are different.

You may be interested to know this in case you pay the Monroe zoo a visit, because the zoo has three sea lions.

Director Kit Beecher explains that sea lions live in large herds along the western coast of the United States. And they can be found by the thousands at their breeding grounds at various times of the year.

Kit says the easiest way to tell the sea lion from a seal is by the habits of the sea lion, which can get about on the ground better than a seal. And you can see the ears of a seal lion whereas you can't see those of a seal.

At the Monroe zoo, the sea lions are fed twice daily — at about 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., consuming about 30 pounds of fish per day. Each sea lion gets a special vitamin pill hidden in a fish at the morning feeding.

Intelligent, active and easily trained, sea lions are seen at the circus and on television. And Kit says the city hopes to have a sea lion act at the zoo someday.

Little Man's Corner

It was spring and then winter, but as the seasons changed the little men made news afield.

Bird hunters and rabbit hunters were closing out the seasons with just a few days left while the fishermen began crowding into the picture.

James Clement of Lake Providence and a partner found four coveys and each hunter got the limit. Billy Shirey and his son Billy found three coveys. They bagged seven, then got five on another day.

Word is that a lot of Lake Providence fishermen are going to Grand Lake in nearby Arkansas where the white perch are biting. Limit getters include Claude Rinicker, J. C. Hannah, Hall Taylor, Arkie Bearden and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Cooper.

And the rabbit hunters around Lake Providence, on the cold days, have been getting some good hunts in around the Possum Point area. They include Howard Brown, John Henry Burton, Bill Hall, George Hopkins, Charley Zimmer and his son.

In Monroe, Ed Johnson is interested in organizing a gun club to affiliate with the National Rifle Association. Persons interested are asked to contact Ed at 325-0747.

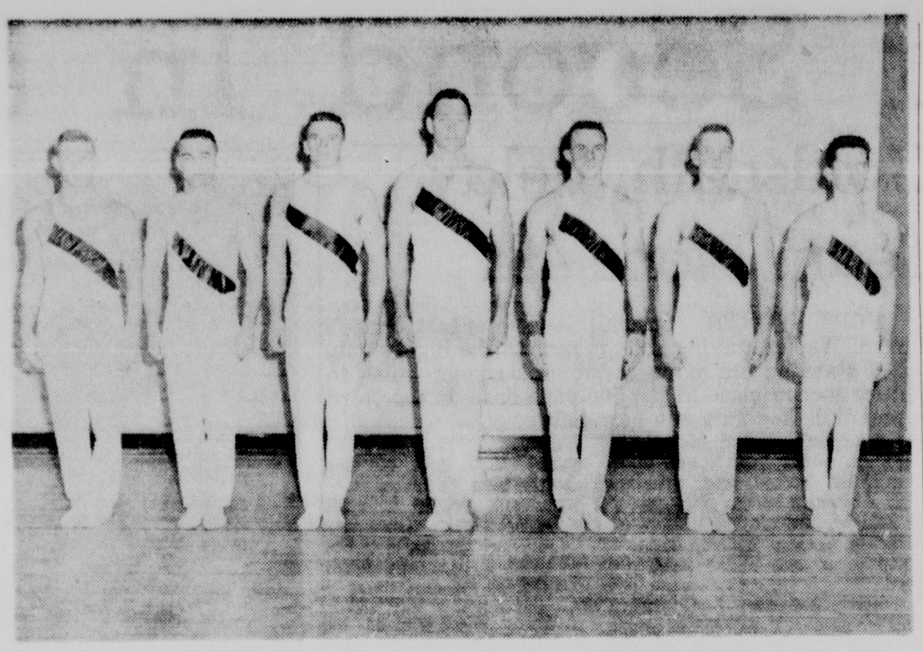

And from Winnfield, O. O. (Red) House landed a nice string of 16 bass, weighing from a pound to four pounds in Saline Lake. He was fishing with a Blue Doll.

And from West Monroe, where last week we reported that Sonny Sers, although complaining bitterly about the duck season, treated his friends to a duck supper, comes a reply from Sonny, who guessed right that our source of information was Bert Hatten.

Sonny says, "It was really guinea we had. You can tell a delegate like Bert most anything and they'll believe it. Let me know when you want to make a guinea shoot. I know where several roosts are and the season runs til April 17th."

And that's a pretty good reply, but somebody should tell Sonny Sers that it'll be illegal to shoot a guinea off the roost.

THESE NORTHEAST STATE gymnasts will be hosts for the first Louisiana State Collegiate Gymnastics Friday night in Brown Hall Gym. They are (left to right) David Adams, Wynn Jefferson, Marvin Jordan, Jim Walker, Sam Walker, Tommy Frazier and Gene Huffty. LSU and Northwestern have already entered teams in the Friday night meet and other state colleges and universities are expected to enter this week. Advance tickets are on sale now in the Northeast Book Store and in Brown Hall 104 and 109.

FROM LINEMAN TO SINGER

Crowd Is Enthusiastic As Rosy Makes Debut

NEW YORK (AP)— Roosevelt Grier, a second tenor, made his Carnegie Hall debut Saturday, before an enthusiastic crowd of about 3,500 music lovers.

Mr. Grieg sang two songs, both warmly applauded by the capacity house.

His first number was in the lively manner of the noted folk singer Elvis Presley, called: "Love, Set Me Free," and his second was the touching ballad, "Danny Boy."

In the latter, he sounded a lot like a 300-pound version of Eddie Fisher—the singer, not the Chicago White Sox pitcher.

Which is not bad for the defensive tackie of the New York Giants of the National Football League. That job is the one Grier has been working at for the last eight years, and it led indirectly to the concert stage.

"I used to get the boys up about six in the morning, at training camp, and sing for them," Grier said, as he waited in the wings for his turn to sing in a big show arranged by local radio station.

"I used to try out my new songs and arrangements on them. They didn't like it too much, but I figured they had to get up at seven anyway. Finally, they told me to go out and get a job singing, so I did."

Grier has been working in a night club, where many of his teammates have come to hear him at a more civilized hour.

"I sing baliads, and folk songs like John Henry, and songs I wrote myself," he said. "I wrote 'Let The Cool Wind Blow,' and 'The Mail Must Go Through,' and a thing called 'Strutting and Twisting.'

"I'm sort of a second tenor, about half-way between a baritone and a tenor. I've made some records, but I haven't had a big seller yet. I make my own arrangements, although I can't write music. I sing them and an arranger writes them out."

Grier said he was a little nervous singing in Carnegie Hall before a packed house, but the audience seemed to like him.

He did some finger-snapping and toe-tapping, and some squirming—and there is a lot of him to squirm, even though he's on a diet and is down to 300 pounds. He's 6-feet-5.

"I played at about 310 last year," he said. I want to get into he '90's next year," meaning the 290's. "I think as you get a little older you should lose weight."

Grier said he has always loved to sing. "I was one of a family of 11 in Cuthbert, Ga.," he said. "We sang gospels and spirituals at home. I studied some music at Penn State, and I hope to make singing and song-writing my career when I'm through playing football."

He said he hoped to play "three more years, or at least two, if I can."

Grier, who is 30, admitted that the Giant defensive line has been described as "too old" for several seasons.

"But we feel that as long as we get the job done, we're not too old," he said.

"Also, the Green Bay Packers are getting older, too. If we can hang on long enough, maybe they'll be older than we are.

"If we can't beat them any other way, we can beat them with old age."

2ND TIME AROUND

Physician Winner Of Another Upset

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Physician, who scored an upset victory in the 1962 Santa Anita Handicap and nothing much since, registered another Saturday when he caught Crimson Satan in the stretch and won the $58,000 San Antonio Handicap at Santa Anita Park.

Rushing up the middle of the sloppy race track through rain and gloom, Lynn A. Boice's 6-year-old California-bred beat out the solid favorite, Crimson Satan from the Crimson King Farm of Kentucky, and won by about a length to collect $35,500.

Leaving the well-regarded Crozier to run fourth and the second choice, Olden Times, to run out of the money, Llangollen Farm's Game got in third.

The time for the 1⅛ miles was 1 minute 51 seconds.

More than 40,000 hardy souls braved the rainy, drizzly weather in this 25th running of the San Antonio, the last major stakes before the big horses go into the $100,000-added Santa Anita Handicap two weeks away.

The field was trimmed to six when the El Peco Stable's Decidedly, winner of the 1962 Kentucky Derby, and Howard B. Keck's 15-1 shot, Pirate Cove, were declared out of the race because of the off going.

Physician, given an excellent ride by Don Pierce, returned $17.20, $5.40 and $3.60. Crimson Satan, thwarted in his bid for his third straight stakes victory, paid $3.40 and $2.80, and Game, with Rudy Campas up, paid $4.80.

Crimson Satan, ridden by Jockey Herberto Hinojosa, went into the sloppy struggle rated as a good mudder, while Physician bore no such stamp.

Both Crozier and Olden Times were regarded as dangerous in off going, too. In fact, Rex Ellsworth's Olden Times won this stakes in the mud last year.

Game got away from the gate on top of the small field but Harpie soon took the lead and Crimson Satan, carrying high weight of 127 pounds, had no one whipped going into the club house turn.

Game took the lead in the early run down the backstretch but suddenly Crimson Satan cut loose with his expected charge on the outside.

The devil-named 4-year-old had the front end by a length as he hit the head of the home stretch and appeared to have the victory tucked away.

He drew out—but suddenly Physician came on and they battled to the wire.

Marion Teams Get District 7-C Championships

MARION (Special) — Marion's powerful boys team and fine sextet proved to be too much for opponents Saturday night and captured the 7-C district championship in both divisions.

Marion's boys of Coach Glenn Post, who now have a fine 31-6 mark, got by Start, 55-42, for its crown.

Bennett Taylor fired in 19 points, Elton Pardue collected 16 and Bobby Reagan added 14 for the winners. Jerry Smith hit 14 and Leroy Counts 12 for the losers.

Marion's girls raised their record to 31-8 with a 56-33 victory over Central of Delhi.

In the boys contest Reagan and Pardue topped Marion rebounders with 14 and 12 respectively.

Big 6-5 Tommy Parker pulled down 10 for Start and Buddy Hardwick kept the Owls in contention with his fine floor game.

Both Marion teams will advance to the regional tournament which is slated for next weekend in Monroe. A meeting is slated for Monroe Monday night at 6:30, with details for the meet to be worked out then.

Sikes Victorious Over Eros Five In 6-C Contest

JONESBORO (Special) — Sikes' Eagles raced by Eros, 52-43, here Saturday night in a game which decided who will face Weston for the 6-C crown

Sikes will meet Weston Tuesday night in the first of a two of three game series for the title.

Weston, who is in the other half of the district, earned the right to play for the championship by whipping Atlanta.

The twin - terrors of Sikes, Ronnie and Connie Rolen, paced the victory Saturday night. Ronnie bombed in 23 points and Connie added 13.

Bobby Harper scored 16 to lead Eros and Dan Jarrell had eight.

The game was close all the way, with neither team leading by more than 10 points at any time. The score was tied 22-22 at halftime.

Smith Hangs On To Tourney Lead In Golfing Meet

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Par 71 golf preserved Marilynn Smith's lead Saturday through the third round of the St. Petersburg Women's Open, despite a strong 69 by Mickey Wright.

Miss Smith, of Tequesta, Fla., wound up with a 215 card for 54 holes, two strokes better than Miss Wright of Dallas, Tex., going into Sunday's final round of the $15,500 tournament on Sunset Golf and Country Club's links.

The Teuqesta pro, formerly of Wichita, Kan., picked up a birdie on the sixth hole but lost the advantage when she three-putted No. 8. On the 10th, she hit a 5-iron shot to within 3 feet of the pin for a birdie 3. A 12-inch putt on No. 12 rolled wrong and she finished even with regulation figures.

Miss Wright birdied Nos. 1, 6, 7, and 9 in shooting a 3-under-par 33 outbound. Coming back she took a bogey 5 in blasting out of a drainage ditch at No. 14 and three-putted the 17th hole.

25 LETTERMEN RETURN

Northeast State Starts Spring Drills Monday

Approximately 50 Northeast State football players — including lettermen at every position—begin spring grid drills here at 3:30 Monday afternoon.

The workouts are scheduled to end March 15 with the annual Maroon-Gold intra - squad game.

Coach Jack Rowan has 25 lettermen back from his 1962 squad, plus another gridder who earned an "N" in 1961 before sitting out the past season. Also slated to be present are four junior college transfers, one freshman, 10 members of Northeast's best group of redshirts in years, and several non - shcolarship players trying out for the squad.

There are at least two monogram - winners at every position except the guard spots. Rowan lost heavily at these posts with Billy Foster and Larry Rambin completing their eligibility and O. J. Louviere becoming a scholastic casuality. Rambin was a first team all - Gulf States Conference choice and Foster made the Williamson mid - bracket all-America third unit.

All told, 11 1962 lettermen are missing. Foster, Rambin, Ross Nolan, twice an all - GSC tackle, quarterback Pete Vincent and halfbacks Gordon Salsman and Joe Thrailkill have completed their eligibility. Louviere, tackle Jim LaCoste and the conference punting leader, John Kelly, are gone for academic reasons, halfback-fullback Ken Thornhill has given up football to devote more time to his studies and halfback Dean Mann was forced to give up the game because of calcium deposits in a leg.

Despite the heavy losses at halfback, the Indians are still loaded with flashy runners. All - GSC Ken Newton and rookie sensation Robert Payne, who was the league's leading rusher in conference games, head the list of returning lettermen, which also includes defensive specialists Morris Douglas and R. F. Wilson.

The four veterans are expected to get some stiff competition from a pair of highly - rated redshirts, Ray Pommier of Crowley and Alton Thomas, former Byrd High all - stater. Pommier is a tough little scooter (5-6, 165) with great moves while Thomas is a quick 160 - pounder runner who is hard to bring down. Backfield Coach Jim Coats is very high on both of them.

Junior Ronnie Myrick, the team's total offense leader for the past two years, is back at quarterback. He is the squad's fastest man and the top passer last year. Also on hand is letterman Mike Cooper, a good passer and field general.

A promising junior college transfer, Bookie Shillcutt of Shreveport, and redshirts Warren LaSalle and Dee Faircloth complete the lineup at quarterback. Shillcut is rated a sure bet for heavy duty.

The entire 1962 cast returns at fullback — seniors Willie Ragan and Devone Payne and sophomore Ronnie Graham, plus redshirts Sonny Bondurant and David Elkins. The Northeast staff is hoping for a return to form by Ragan and Payne, both all - star material in 1961 but just so - so in 1962.

All of the lettermen ends are back — second team all - conference Wendell Drost (202), Jim Love (198), Tommy Latham (190), Carlyle Williams (203), speedy Sherrel Smith (190) and Gary Jones (200). Drost is the top defenseman and blocker of the group and Smith, a 1962 freshman, the best pass receiver.

Steve Regan, a J. C. transfer with impressive credentials, is also present along with a promising redshirt, Stanley Willson (190). Regan (6-3 and 190) caught 33 passes and was named Mississippi's top junior college lineman at Pearl River last year.

Four capable tackles are present who lettered last year. They are senior Joe Alewine (220) and three excellent sophs, Alden Fontenot (245), Wayne Clement (230) and Preston Hollier (220). Alewine was a starter last year while the other three were rated among the most promising freshmen linemen to play at Northeast in several years.

Kirby DesOrmeaux (215), a 1961 letterman, is back in camp while J. C. transfer Bill Johnston (215) completes the current lineup at this position.

Senior Don King (215), junior Joe McClain (205) and sophomore Billy Ross Graves (215) are lettermen guards on hand. King and McClain were on the Tribe's second unit last year and Graves on the third. Redshirts Jewel McBroom, now up to 195 pounds, James Kirkendall (218) and Dwian Jacobs (205) are rated good prospects while J. C. transfer Jack Weaver and freshman Fred Morris of Holly Ridge are also available.

All three lettermen center, Tommy Beaube (210), Stanley Starr (207) and Johnny Nolan (195), return. Starr started most of the early - season games with Beaube moving up into the regular job late in the campaign. Nolan is a defensive specialist.

Bastrop And Swartz Win At St. Paschal's

Linda Smith of Swartz was chosen most valuable girl and Jim Higginbotham of Bastrop most valuable boy.

West Monroe's girls topped Swartz 15-6 for consolation honors and Ouachita defeated St. Matthew's 35-21 for boys consolation honors.

Named to the all - tourney boys team were Jimmy Miller, Ouachita; O. A. Windham and Eddie Smith of Logtown; plus Jimmy Clark and Wayne Riley of Bastrop.

All - tourney girls were Melba Roach and Karen Arches of Swartz; Judy Moncrief and Marcia Michaud of Bastrop, Linda Coates of St. Paschals and Glenda McCormick of West Monroe.

Quitman Takes Playoff Victory Over Dubach 5

QUITMAN (Special) — Quitman earned the right to play for the district 3-B championship by downing Dubach, 61-38, Saturday night.

Quitman must now await the outcome of Tuesday night's battle between Sterlington and Calhoun to see who its opponent will be.

Quitman had won the top spot in the southern half of district 3-B to get a shot at Dubach who copped second place in the northern division.

Sterlington is the first place winner in the northern half while Calhoun finished second, behind Quitman, in the other zone.

In Quitman's victory over Dubach, Carl Atkins paved the way with 18 points. He was assisted by Eugene Norred's 15 tallies and Lowell Lynde's 12.

The district championship game this week is slated for Friday night.

Penny Becoming Fine Front Man

Tech Coach Cecil Crowley make no bones about it. "I expect Ray to become one of Tech's all-time greats before he finishes his career," Crowley said.

Penny got his career high of 21 points and 14 rebounds against Northeast State last Friday. He has been Tech's most consistent performer all season.

The Coushatta product has become Tech's most effective offensive rebounder and has been doing an excellent job on the defensive boards as well.

"It may be overlooked by some but Penny is one of the best defensive men in the GSC. He always draws the assignment of guarding the opposing team's top front line man," Crowley said.

Penny has been improving every game, but perhaps his best improvement has been his shooting ability. Penny was somewhat erratic last year as a frosh, but through 18 games he has hit 69 of 144 field shots for a .478 percentage.

"Ray has learned to wait for good shots and gets most of his close in. That is the big reason for his improved shooting ability," Crowley said.

Penny is averaging 10.5 points per game and has pulled down an average of 6.9 rebounds per tilt.

"He is far better than the average sophomore in the GSC," Crowley said.

Penny, as well as all his Tech teammates, will return next year. That is one reason Crowley, the players, and Bulldog fans are already looking forward to the next campaign.

TO BE CHAMPION

Dick Tiger Says 'It's Real Nice'

By DICK TIGER
World Middleweight Champion
Written for The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP)—It is nice to be the champion of the world, even if they do not recognize me in Massachusetts. Maybe some day, if I'm lucky to be champion after Feb. 23, when I fight Gene Fullmer again in Las Vegas, Paul Pender and I will settle this matter.

But I like being the champion, second one in Nigeria's history. Hogan Kid Bassey, my friend, was the first, and it was he who helped me to become champion, too. He, and my good friends in America, Jersey Jones, my American representative, and Jimmy August, my trainer. Everybody helped to make me a big man in Nigeria and I will fight all the harder to stay that way.

I fly to Las Vegas Sunday for the last two weeks of training for the return fight with Fullmer. They tell me that I will win easy, that Fullmer is finished. To use an American saying, I do not kid myself. This is not an easy fight no more than the last one was easy.

Gene Fullmer is a tough fighter. He hits you and he hurts you. He hurt me in San Francisco last October. He is always in condition and he wants to get the title back. I was lucky to get an early start last time. And I was lucky that he got cut in the ninth round and couldn't see too good. Maybe this time he doesn't cut. I know he will be stronger, too.

This is not an easy fight. There are no easy fights. In the last fight, he came back pretty strong in last four rounds. If I didn't have a big fourteenth, maybe I don't even win. The people who watch, the referee and the judges, they only look. The fighters feel, and believe me when I say that he is the toughest man I ever fought. He is smart, too, and maybe this time he change a little.

He is not the kind of fighter you knock out. He's proud and stubborn. He lost only four fights. Only one man, Ray Robinson, knocked him out He comes back to beat Rboinson after that.

I look for 15 rounds of hard fighting and that's the way I train. I always train hard. I will be in the best condition of my life and this time will have no trouble making weight because now I've been training for a month. I do my big eating after the fight.

Anything can happen in fight. I am not superstitious but I will bring the checkered tie that Jersey gave me because it is lucky. When I went to Canada to fight Wilfie Greaves for British Empire title, I forgot the tie. I lose. This time I will bring tie. I also will bring the best I can give because I feel that I will need my best to win.

I do not listen to people who tell me how good I am. In the ring you have to prove it. Against Fullmer, you have to fight three minutes every round. He don't let you rest. I will be ready. I hope to win.

TWO PLAYERS who will see lots of action when Calhoun travels to Sterlington for a class 3-B playoff Tuesday night are Paul Thompson (left) and James Futrell. Thompson, a 6-4½ center, is strong off the backboards and has the best moves of any Calhoun player in years according to Coach Jerry Lovette. Futrell, who was all district as a freshman, is also an excellent rebounder. Both men are averaging nearly 22 points per game.

START MONDAY NIGHT

Zone playoffs and semi - finals are slated this week, in both boys and girls divisions, with the finals to decide districts champions set for the following week, Feb. 18-23.

This week's schedule gets off to a fast start with three games slated for Monday night

Two southern half zone games will be played in Olla Monday night, at the LaSalle gym, and the same night a girls northern zone tilt is set for Winnsboro.

At Olla, LaSalle's girls host Ferriday at 7:00 in a game which will decide second place. Following at 8:15 in the LaSalle gymnasium, St. Matthew's and Ferriday battle to settle the second place spot in boys play for the southern zone.

In Winnsboro Monday, the Wild-cat sextet, which won first place in the southern zone, plays Oak Grove's girls. The Tiger team copped second place in the northern zone. This game is scheduled for 7:00 p.m., as are all semi - final games.

On Tuesday night LaSalle's host Tallulah in the first of a best two out of three series. Tallulah was second in the other half of the district while Oak Grove was the winner of the northern half, and the winner between St. Matthew's - Ferriday squares off with the first place winner of the southern half.

In boys play on Thursday night, the playing sites will be switched as the games will be held at the home of the second place winner of each zone.

In girls action Wednesday, Lake Providence stays at home to meet the winner of the second place game in the southern half between LaSalle and Ferriday.

Also that night, the winner of the Monday night game between Winnsboro and Oak Grove will play the loser between LaSalle and Ferriday.

The winner will be district champion and both teams will enter the state playoffs.

Boys action Saturday night will have the third game, if necessary, of all semi - final games. Next week, winners in the boys semi - finals will play a best two out of three series for the league crown. Both the first and second place winner of the district will advance into the state playoffs.

The Arizona State relay quartet has established a National Collegiate record outdoors of 3 minutes 5.7 seconds, just one-tenth off the world record. Running with Williams will be Henry Carr, Ron Freeman and Mike Barrick.

Clark, who set an American citizen's record of 8 minutes, 46 seconds for the 2-mile in the Millrose Games, will run against a field including Danny Murphy. Clark formerly starred for San Jose State, where Murphy currently competes.

The dash fields include Roscoe Cook and Herb Carper, two co-holders of the world 60-yard record, and Dennis Johnson, who ran a 9.3 hundred while at San Jose.

O'Brien, Silvester and Dave Davis, all who have put the shot 60 feet or more, are entered in that competition along with Jerry Winters, who holds the Stanford record at 59-11¾ and Dave Maggard, University of California record holder at 59-8¾.

Elected were the late Dink Templeton, former Stanford coach; Dutch Warmerdam, who long held the world pole vault record; Tom Moore, former record holder in the hurdles and director of the California Relays; Bob Mathias, two-time Olympic decathlon champion, and Brutus Hamilton, Olympic athlete and coach who has been directing track and field activities at the University of California 30 years.

'CAUSE LISTON ARRIVES ALSO

Stir Of Excitement Hits Town When Cocky Cassius Arrives

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Herald says Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston came close to tangling physically Saturday in an exchange of gymnasium jibes.

Liston roared "what have I got to spy on you for? You're no fighter", and offered Clay $100 a round to be his sparmate.

The fighters couldn't be reached for comment.

From this and other fight firecracker works popping around Miami Beach, a tourist might be pardoned for thinking Liston was there to battle Clay rather than Patterson, the man he dethroned last September.

The heavyweight champion arrived Friday afternoon to start training and the town was quiet until Cassius the Great came in Friday night by plane, to move into a new Miami Beach home.

TO BE CHAMPION

Dick Tiger Says 'It's Real Nice'

By DICK TIGER
World Middleweight Champion
Written for The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP)—It is nice to be the champion of the world, even if they do not recognize me in Massachusetts. Maybe some day, if I'm lucky to be champion after Feb. 23, when I fight Gene Fullmer again in Las Vegas, Paul Pender and I will settle this matter.

But I like being the champion, second one in Nigeria's history. Hogan Kid Bassey, my friend, was the first, and it was he who helped me to become champion, too. He, and my good friends in America, Jersey Jones, my American representative, and Jimmy August, my trainer. Everybody helped to make me a big man in Nigeria and I will fight all the harder to stay that way.

I fly to Las Vegas Sunday for the last two weeks of training for the return fight with Fullmer. They tell me that I will win easy, that Fullmer is finished. To use an American saying, I do not kid myself. This is not an easy fight no more than the last one was easy.

Gene Fullmer is a tough fighter. He hits you and he hurts you. He hurt me in San Francisco last October. He is always in condition and he wants to get the title back. I was lucky to get an early start last time. And I was lucky that he got cut in the ninth round and couldn't see too good. Maybe this time he doesn't cut. I know he will be stronger, too.

This is not an easy fight. There are no easy fights. In the last fight, he came back pretty strong in last four rounds. If I didn't have a big fourteenth, maybe I don't even win. The people who watch, the referee and the judges, they only look. The fighters feel, and believe me when I say that he is the toughest man I ever fought. He is smart, too, and maybe this time he change a little.

He is not the kind of fighter you knock out. He's proud and stubborn. He lost only four fights. Only one man, Ray Robinson, knocked him out He comes back to beat Rboinson after that.

I look for 15 rounds of hard fighting and that's the way I train. I always train hard. I will be in the best condition of my life and this time will have no trouble making weight because now I've been training for a month. I do my big eating after the fight.

Anything can happen in fight. I am not superstitious but I will bring the checkered tie that Jersey gave me because it is lucky. When I went to Canada to fight Wilfie Greaves for British Empire title, I forgot the tie. I lose. This time I will bring tie. I also will bring the best I can give because I feel that I will need my best to win.

I do not listen to poeple who tell me how good I am. In the ring you have to prove it. Against Fullmer, you have to fight three minutes every round. He don't let you rest. I will be ready. I hope to win.

TWO PLAYERS who will see lots of action when Calhoun travels to Sterlington for a class 3-B playoff Tuesday night are Paul Thompson (left) and James Futrell. Thompson, a 6-4½ center, is strong off the backboards and has the best moves of any Calhoun player in years according to Coach Jerry Lovette. Futrell, who was all district as a freshman, is also an excellent rebounder. Both men are averaging nearly 22 points per game.

Stir Of Excitement Hits Town When Cocky Cassius Arrives

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Herald says Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston came close to tangling physically Saturday in an exchange of gymnasium jibes.

Herald sports writer Pat Putnam reported that heavyweight champion Liston, here to defend his title April 4 against ex-titlist Floyd Patterson, dropped into a Miami Beach gym to watch a workout by Clay, loquacious Kentuckian who may be a future Liston opponent.

Putnam said Clay yelled "get him out of here, that bum is spying on me."

Liston roared "what have I got to spy on you for? You're no fighter", and offered Clay $100 a round to be his sparmate.

"You get in that ring and we'll fight for free right now," Putnam quoted Clay as saying, but others present averted that.

The fighters couldn't be reached for comment.

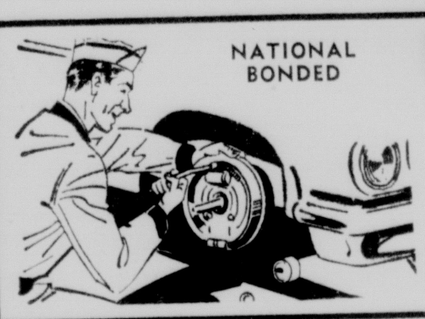

From this and other fight fireworks popping around Miami Beach, a tourist might be pardoned for thinking Liston was there to battle Clay rather than Patterson, the man he dethroned last September.

The heavyweight champion arrived Friday afternoon to start training and the town was quiet until Cassius the Great came in Friday night by plane, to move into a new Miami Beach home.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN EARL THERIOT

Theriot-Hervey Wedding Held In St. Matthew's

Arrangements of gladioli and stock in gold vases decorated the altar of St. Matthew's Catholic Church for the wedding of Miss Veronica Ann Hervey and John Earl Theriot of Church Point. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Muffoletto Hervey and the late J. D. Hervey of Monroe and Mr. Theriot is the son of Mrs. Clovis Theriot and the late Mr. Theriot of Opelousas.

Father Warren Larroque performed the double ring ceremony at 11 a.m. Saturday, February 2. Mrs. Della Williamson, organist, accompanied Mrs. Jo Marie Etier as she sang "Ava Maria," "On This Day," and "Panis Angelicus."

Miss Anita Moore and Miss Charlene Shanas served as bridesmaids and wore frocks of red crystaline peau de soie featuring belled skirts and scoop necklines. Their hats were red satin pillboxes and completing their costumes were red satin slippers, white gloves and earrings. They carried heart shaped bouquets of red and white carnations.

Serving as best man was Fred Theriot and groomsman was Albert Roy Theriot. Henry Theriot was usher.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Knights of Columbus Home on Oliver Road. The bride's table was centered with the tiered wedding cake, flanked by the bridesmaids' bouquets and the refreshment table held a central arrangement of red carnations with crystal punch bowls at either end.

Mrs. Arnold Worster registered guests. Mrs. Paul Goldman and Mrs. Annette Moore served cake and pouring punch were Mrs. Theo Herr and Mrs. Bob Ellington. Others assisting were Mrs. Louis Elias and Miss Adeline Elias.

For a wedding trip to Baton Rouge the bride changed into a two-piece costume of gray wool with matching accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. The couple will establish a home in Church Point. Mrs. Theriot is a graduate of St. Matthew's high school and attended Northeast Louisiana State College. Mr. Theriot graduated from Crowley high school.

Before their departure to make heir home in Hammond, Indiana, INDY and BENTON WAKEIELD are being entertained at round of gala parties. Last Satrday night, JEAN and SAUL IINTZ and PEGGY and JIM REENBAUM were hosts at a ocktail buffet in the Mintz home. ellow flowers were used throughut the house. In the living room ere yellow and pale gold jonuils, with yellow tulips and acia arranged with yellow tapers n the dining table. The buffet ncluded marinated roast, cheese ould, creamed shrimp and crab patty shells, fried chicken bits.

New Orleans coffee and miniature chocolate and lemon pies were served in the den. Here the table was decorated with a small moving van and a truck overflowing with yellow pompons. A ribbon streamer bore the words "To the Banks of the Wabash".

Wednesday evening, HUGH and URT TOUCHSTONE entertaind at an evening reception honring the Wakefields. An asymetrical arrangement of green rapes, ranunculas, yellow carnaions, and yellow gladioli was aced in the foyer. Pine boughs ccented with pale gold chrysanhemums decorated the living room. The refreshment table on the living porch was centered with a pyramid of greenery with bananas, lemons, and small oranges. Over a hundred guests called between seven and nine in the evening.

Clever invitations consisting of an original poem printed on brown paper bid guests to the G. L. MORGAN home for a party Friday night honoring the Wakefields. Co-hosts with the Morgans were the IVY JORDANS. Cindy wore for this affair a dress of shocking pink wool.

The new home of the MORGANS on Pargoud boulevard is one of the more unusual and interesting houses to be built in Monroe in recent months. Construction is of crab orchard stone. Double front doors center the street facade, with gratacula placed over windows at each side.

Crab orchard stone continues into the house to form two walls of the entrance. One faces the burlap-covered wall adjoining the living room, which also uses burlap. To the left is the hall to the bedroom wing, with a passage to kitchen and utility areas to the right.

Straight ahead from the entrance, and two steps down, is the living room, a magnificient room, roughly octagonal in shape, and highlighted with a circular domed ceiling. Walls are covered with burlap or are made of crab orchard stone. Carpeting is in a pale olive green shade. Furnishings divide the room into conversational areas in such a way that it can handle two persons as well as a crowd. Facing the open fireplace with its raised hearth, is a custom built king size green and beige sofa, curving to encircle the coffee table which conceals the stereo player. Three sides of the octagon are ceiling high glass panels overlooking the bayou. In one end of this area is a cozy corner for two while opposite, six green leather easy chairs encircle a low round table.

Another side of the octagon consists of folding panels which open into the dining room, two steps up from the living room. These panels are covered with burlap on one side and antique gold foil, matching the dining room wall, on the other. The olive green carpet of the living room is used in this room also, with a walnut table surrounded by high-back contemporary chairs upholstered in green. A spray of dogwood accents gold foil on the wall behind the table.

Only room in the house which does not face the water is the den, which doubles as a guest room. Sofas, covered with quilted green, swing out to become twin beds. Chairs are green leather. Draperies and standing screen are of natural linen, printed with sprays of bamboo.

Shibui colors and a teakwood screen framed in ebony give an Oriental flavor to the master bedroom. Walls are covered in a muted green-gold silk, with the same color used for sheer, sheer glass curtains which pull across the wide panels overlooking the bayou. A brown quilted coverlet is used on the bed with its black headboard. In the dressing room, too, walls are covered with silk, this time printed with sprays of bamboo. "His" and "Hers" baths open from the dressing room.

Tomorrow being Lincoln's birthday, let us use today in lieu of a poem some lines from Lincoln:

"You cannot bring about prosperity by discouraging thrift.
You cannot strengthen the weak by weakening the strong.
You cannot help small men by tearing down big men.
You cannot lift the wage earner by pulling down the wage payer.
You cannot keep out of trouble by spending more than your income.
You cannot further the brotherhood of men by inciting class hatred.
You cannot establish sound security on borrowed money.
You cannot help men permanently by doing for them what they could and should do for themselves."

Shreveport Church Scene Of Hopson-Nesom Vows

White gladioli, palms and brass candelabra holding white tapers formed a setting in Broadmoor Baptist Church, Shreveport, for the ceremony Saturday, February 9, which united in marriage Miss Suzybelle Nesom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Aldon Nesom of Shreveport, and James Anding Hopson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Briggs Hopson Sr., of Delhi.

Dr. Scott L. Tatum performed the double ring ceremony at 2 p.m. following an organ prelude by Mrs. Winnie Peters, who also accompanied Miss Val Jean Banta as she sang "Because" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of ivory peau de soie and imported handmade French lace. The lace bodice featured bracelet sleeves and the voluminous skirt extended into an empire train. Her tiered veil of silk illusion cascaded from a jeweled crown of pearls and crystal drops. She wore a diamond pendant, a gift of the groom and carried a bouquet of white orchids, surrounded by stephanotis.

Miss Susie Watts Bradley, of Delhi, maid of honor, wore a gown of cerise peau de soie, styled with round neckline, elbow sleeves and circle skirt, marked at the back with a self-fabric rose. Her headdress was a matching cerise illusion veil, trimmed with peau de soie and she carried a bouquet of long-stemmed pink roses. Dressed identically to the honor attendant were the bridesmaids, Miss Judith Anne Wright, Shreveport; Miss Elizabeth Ann Whitfield, Delhi, cousin of the groom and junior bridesmaid, Miss Jan Alice Nesom, Shreveport, sister of the bride.

Dr. William Briggs Hopson Jr., Memphis, Tenn., attended his brother as best man and groomsmen were James Lambright Anding IV, and James Edwin Patterson Jr., both cousins of the bridegroom, and Roger G. Dishong.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a beige silk model with matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The bridegroom's mother chose a blue silk ensemble with bone accessories and a pink rose corsage.

MRS. ERVIN WILLIAM WATTS

Lou Ellen Overhultz Marries Illinois Man

Baskets of white gladioli and stock, alternated with branched candelabra holding white tapers formed a setting in First Baptist Church, Bastrop, for the wedding of Miss Lou Ellen Overhultz and Ervin William Watts, which was solemnized Sunday, February 3 at 2 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Overhultz of Bastrop and Mr. Watts is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin A. Watts of Rochelle, Illinois.

Rev. R. L. Rust performed the double ring ceremony following an organ prelude by Mrs. J. B. Spier, who also accompanied Miss Colleen Dickes of Baton Rouge as she sang "The Ring" by Schumann and "The Song of Ruth."

Escorted by her father who gave her in marriage the bride wore a traditional wedding gown of white silk peau de soie. The bateau neckline and three-quarter sleeves of the basque bodice were embellished with scallops of pearl-traced Alencon lace. Appliques of the lace were repeated on sides of the straight front skirt caught in folds at the back to form a full chapel train. A small rose and bow of peau de soie placed above the train suggested the Watteau line. Her headdress was a flat cabbage rose which held her bouffant veil of pure silk illusion and she carried a crescent bouquet of white rosebuds and early spring white flowers.

Mrs. Nicholas G. Koutroulis, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Martha Oden of Dallas, Texas and Miss Karen Watts, sister of the bridegroom. They wore identical sheath dresses of yonder blue satin, fashioned with scoop necklines, tiny sleeves and full back overskirts. Their headpieces were of matching yonder blue satin with gathered net backs and their bouquets were of multi-colored spring flowers.

Darrell Wolfe of Hammond, led attended Mr. Watts as best man. Groomsmen and ushers were Robert Hutchens of Shreveport; Nick Koutroulis of New Orleans and Rodney Hendrick of Baton Rouge.

For a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Ark., the bride changed into a light brown wool suit with which she wore a black straw cloche, accented in light brown, black accessories and a corsage of white rosebuds. The couple will establish a home in Valparaiso, Indiana.

Mrs. Watts was graduated from Bastrop high school and from Louisiana State University, with a major in music, and attended L.S.U. graduate school working on her masters degree in music. She is a member of Kappa Delta social sorority and Sigma Alpha Iota, honorary music fraternity. Mr. Watts graduated from Hammond high school, attended Indiana University and graduated from Louisiana State University. A member of Delta Theta Phi fraternity, he is presently enrolled at Valparaiso Law school.

The bride's parents entertained with a reception following the ceremony in the church reception hall. The bridesmaids' bouquets encircled a silver candelabra holding white tapers on the bride's table which was covered with a floor length cloth of white tulle over satin. Clusters of flowers and greenery surrounded the wedding cake and punch bowl. Mrs. Elgin McFadden had charge of the bride's book. Mrs. C. C. Hollis served the cake and presiding at the punch bowl was Mrs. Garland Roberts. Tea girls were Misses Kay McClendon, Jan Lane, Betty Lou Arnett and others assisting in courtesies were Mrs. Ruth Burlew, Mrs. W. J. Eubanks, Mrs. N. B. Pratt, Mrs. Mitchell Johnson and Mrs. Arlie Williamson.

Officiating clergymen for the double ring ceremony were Bishop John Vander Horst, Memphis, Tenn., and Bishop William E. Sanders of Knoxville, Tenn. Mrs. C. A. Rose, organist, presented a program of nuptial music and the traditional wedding marches.

Brass altar vases held arrangements of white gladioli, stock, caratons. Chrysanthemums combined with jade fern and huckleberry with two large baskets of the same white flowers at either side of the chancel. Seven - branched candelabra on pedestals flanked the altar.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father, who gave her in marriage. Her gown of white chiffon taffeta was designed with Alencon lace bodice with scalloped scoop neck and three-quarter sleeves. The semi - belled skirt was re - embroidered with Alencon lace motifs and extended into a chapel train from an obi sash at the waist. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a queen's crown of pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white phalaenopsis orchids, outlined with lace.

Miss Penny Howard, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Her full - skirted gown of white chiffon featured a low cut sleeveless bodice, embellished with medallions of aqua and white sequins. Her headdress was a ring of white satin with short circular veil and she carried a nosegay of white feathered chrysanthemums, edged with blue maline. Bridesmaid, Mrs. Richard Howard, Waco, Texas, sister-in-law of the bride, was dressed identically to the maid of honor. Junior bridesmaid, Miss Susan Howard, also a sister of the bride, wore a frock of white silk organza, styled with gathered off-shoulder yoke and circular waltz length skirt over net ruffles. Her headdress and bouquet were identical to the other attendants.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was decorated throughout with spring arrangements of Dutch iris and hyacinths. The bride's table, covered with an embroidered linen and lace cloth over white taffeta, was centered with a silver candelabra holding an arrangement of white flowers and blue candles. The rectangular bride's cake, with heart shaped cakes at each corner, was topped with purple throated orchids and blue doves. Mrs. W. T. Turner, Ruston, aunt of the bride, served the bride's cake and serving groom's cake from a table in the den were Miss Eunyce Howard, aunt of the bride of Lake Providence and Miss Margaret Crump, Knoxville, Tenn. Miss Carol Howard presided at the punch bowl and Miss Nancy Howard presented rice bags to the guests.

For a wedding trip to Natchez the bride changed into an aqua wool model with white hat and gloves and white alligator shoes. The couple will establish a home in Bristol, Tenn., where Mr. Senter is vicar of St. Columba's Church.

Centenary Choir To Appear In Colorful Attire

Visual appeal, as well as musical excellence, will be stressed when the Centenary College Choir of Shreveport, appears in concert at Neville Auditorium, Friday, February 15, at 8 p.m. under auspices of the First Methodist Church.

Dr. A. C. Voran, director of the 49-voice singing aggregation believes that audiences want to see a pretty picture while hearing good music. The $10,000 wardrobe which will be on display for residents of the Monroe area when the choir appears here is a way of implementing that belief.

The choir costumes suggest the Old South atmosphere of the Shreveport campus, where the finest traditions are cherished in a completely modern setting of up-to-date academic buildings and a scholastic program designed to meet the needs of a changing world.

Women members will model both their aqua silk chiffon gowns and their American beauty gowns of peau de soie at the forthcoming concert. The aqua gowns are fashioned with intricately draped bodices in a Grecian effect with rhinestone buckles clasping the shoulders and accenting the fitted bodices. The bouffant skirts, buoyed with crinoline, fall from crushed cumberbunds.

The second costume change is designed with a scooped neckline and sleeveless bodice. Hiplines are padded and hooped in a manner reminiscent of Elizabethan fashions, with the full skirts drawn into panels of closely spaced pleats at the back where flat looped bows top the panels.

In addition to these colorful gowns the feminine singers also boast delicate white nylon lace costumes, fashioned with scooped necklines, fitted bodices and flowing lace skirts over crisp taffeta petticoats. Costumes of nylon chiffon in a soft and flattering shade of Sky Rose complete the changes of attire for the women members of the choir. Accessories include elbow length white gloves and complementary jewelry.

Male singers will appear in costumes of coats in deep brown with trousers in a lighter shade, worn with white shirts and ties. They also have costumes featuring maroon coats and striped trousers. Black cutaways are worn by the men to provide contrast when the women wear their white gowns, and summer tuxedoes, consisting of white coats and black trousers.

Centenary Choir To Appear In Colorful Attire

Visual appeal, as well as musical excellence, will be stressed when the Centenary College Choir of Shreveport, appears in concert at Neville Auditorium, Friday, February 15, at 8 p.m. under auspices of the First Methodist Church.

Dr. A. C. Voran, director of the 49-voice singing aggregation believes that audiences want to see a pretty picture while hearing good music. The $10,000 wardrobe which will be on display for residents of the Monroe area when the choir appears here is a way of implementing that belief.

The choir costumes suggest the Old South atmosphere of the Shreveport campus, where the finest traditions are cherished in a completely modern setting of up-to-date academic buildings and a scholastic program designed to meet the needs of a changing world.

Women members will model both their aqua silk chiffon gowns and their American beauty gowns of peau de soie at the forthcoming concert. The aqua gowns are fashioned with intricately draped bodices in a Grecian effect with rhinestone buckles clasping the shoulders and accenting the fitted bodices. The bouffant skirts, buoyed with crinoline, fall from crushed cumberbunds.

The second costume change is designed with a scooped neckline and sleeveless bodice. Hiplines are padded and hooped in a manner reminiscent of Elizabethan fashions, with the full skirts drawn into panels of closely spaced pleats at the back where flat looped bows top the panels.

In addition to these colorful gowns the feminine singers also boast delicate white nylon lace costumes, fashioned with scooped necklines, fitted bodices and flowing lace skirts over crisp taffeta petticoats. Costumes of nylon chiffon in a soft and flattering shade of Sky Rose complete the changes of attire for the women members of the choir. Accessories include elbow length white gloves and complementary jewelry.

Male singers will appear in costumes of coats in deep brown with trousers in a lighter shade, worn with white shirts and ties. They also have costumes featuring maroon coats and striped trousers. Black cutaways are worn by the men to provide contrast when the women wear their white gowns, and summer tuxedoes, consisting of white coats and black trousers.

Northeast Students Are Wed

The wedding of Miss Sandra Marie Ferguson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Ferguson, 413 Beasley, Monroe, to Floyd Allan Borden, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Borden, Sterlington Road, was solemnized Friday, February 1 in the home of the bride's parents.

Rev. Charles B. Littleton, pastor of Central Baptist Church, performed the double ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m. An arch, entwined with stephanotis and greenery flanked by a pyramid of candelabra holding white tapers formed a setting for the exchange of vows. Pedestal baskets of white gladioli and chrysanthemums were on either side of the arch with a prie dieu in the center. Candles which formed a background for the improvised altar were lighted by Rodney Ferguson, brother of the bride and Johnny Borden, brother of the bridegroom.

Ronnie Brothers presented a program of piano nuptial music and accompanied Mrs. Charles Littleton as she sang "Because" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a two-piece ensemble of white brocade satin with matching peau de soie slippers. Her white satin pillbox hat featured a brief nose veil and she carried a bouquet of stephanotis and streamers encircling a purple throated white orchid, atop a white Bible, a gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. R. L. Panzico was matron of honor for her sister. She wore a bouffant dress of pink silk shantung with small veil headdress attached to pink roses, and a corsage of pink carnations. Nona Lee Ferguson, ring bearer, was dressed identically to the matron of honor. Both wore white pearls. Milan Keith Borden attended his brother as best man.

Mrs. Ferguson wore for her daughter's wedding a beige sheath of nubbed boucle with matching accessories. Mrs. Borden, mother of the groom, selected an emerald green wool sheath with brown accessories. Both mothers were corsages of pink carnations.

A reception followed in the home where the tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Milan Keith Borden from a table covered with a white linen cutwork cloth over pink. Presiding at the punch bowl opposite was Miss Phyllis Borden, sister of the bridegroom. Miss Pam Rainwater, cousin of the bride, presided at the table which held the bride's book, with a miniature bride figurine.

After a short wedding trip to Jackson, Miss., the couple will reside in Monroe, where both will continue their studies at Northeast Louisiana State College. Both are also graduates of Ouachita Parish high school and Mr. Borden served three years with the army before resuming his studies at Northeast.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Alford of Osyka, Miss., Mrs. Quentin Stewart and Mrs. Milton Prescott, of Magnolia, Miss., Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Tillman, Pam, Bobby and Candy of Shreveport; Mrs. Elmer Borden and Mrs. Lamar Borden of Sterlington, and Mr. and Mrs. James Gulledge and Janice, Monroe.

Miss Linda Johnson, maid of honor, wore a light blue linen dress with matching hat, shoes and gloves and a corsage of white carnations, accented with blue ribbon.

MR. AND MRS. FLOYD ALLAN BORDEN

Northeast Students Are Wed

The wedding of Miss Sandra Marie Ferguson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Ferguson, 413 Beasley, Monroe, to Floyd Allan Borden, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Borden, Sterlington Road, was solemnized Friday, February 1 in the home of the bride's parents.

Rev. Charles B. Littleton, pastor of Central Baptist Church, performed the double ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m. An arch, entwined with stephanotis and greenery flanked by a pyramid of candelabra holding white tapers formed a setting for the exchange of vows. Pedestal baskets of white gladioli and chrysanthemums were on either side of the arch with a prie dieu in the center. Candles which formed a background for the improvised altar were lighted by Rodney Ferguson, brother of the bride and Johnny Borden, brother of the bridegroom.

Ronnie Brothers presented a program of piano nuptial music and accompanied Mrs. Charles Littleton as she sang "Because" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a two - piece ensemble of white brocade satin with matching peau de soie slippers. Her white satin pillbox hat featured a brief nose veil and she carried a bouquet of stephanotis and streamers encircling a purple throated white orchid, atop a white Bible, a gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. R. L. Panzico was matron of honor for her sister. She wore a bouffant dress of pink silk shantung with small veil headdress attached to pink roses, and a corsage of pink carnations. Nona Lee Ferguson, ring bearer, was dressed identically to the matron of honor. Both wore white pearls. Milan Keith Borden attended his brother as best man.

Mrs. Ferguson wore for her daughter's wedding a beige sheath of nubbed boucle with matching accessories. Mrs. Borden, mother of the groom, selected an emerald green wool sheath with brown accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of pink carnations.

A reception followed in the home where the tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Milan Keith Borden from a table covered with a white linen cutwork cloth over pink. Presiding at the punch bowl opposite was Miss Phyllis Borden, sister of the bridegroom. Miss Pam Rainwater, cousin of the bride, presided at the table which held the bride's book, with a miniature bride figurine.

After a short wedding trip to Jackson, Miss., the couple will reside in Monroe, where both will continue their studies at Northeast Louisiana State College. Both are also graduates of Ouachita Parish high school and Mr. Borden served three years with the army before resuming his studies at Northeast.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Alford of Osyka, Miss., Mrs. Quentin Stewart and Mrs. Milton Prescott, of Magnolia, Miss., Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Tillman, Pam, Bobby and Candy of Shreveport; Mrs. Elmer Borden and Mrs. Lamar Borden of Sterlington, and Mr. and Mrs. James Gulledge and Janice, Monroe.

Serving as best man was Dick Abraham and Eddie Baird was usher.

A reception followed in the church dining room. Mrs. R. Z. Johnson and Mrs. Harmond Baird served the wedding cake and Mrs. Benton Cruse presided at the punch bowl with Mrs. Woody Posey at the guest book.

For a short wedding trip the bride changed into a pink wool jersey model with black accessories and an orchid corsage. The couple has established a home in Monroe. Use Varieties Best Suited

By AUDREY DAWSON

If you are planning to add camellias to your landscape, before buying be sure you know which varieties are adapted to your area. If you want a list of varieties adapted to your area, write to U. S. National Arboretum, USDA, Washington 25, D. C. Your nurserymen also can tell you which varieties are available in this area.

It is best to buy container grown or balled and burlapped plants if you can. They are easier to establish successfully than barerooted plants. Buy plants that are at least two years old. Plants of this age are 18 to 24 inches tall. Inspect plants for wounds or scars near the base of the main stem. Wounded areas may become cankerous and cause the plant to die. However if a plant has been grafted it may have a swollen area near the base of the main stem. This is not a sign of poor health.

When you select a plant from a group, select one that is well branched from the ground up. Choose one with a good shape and green foliage. A vigorous plant growing in a gallon can is better than a poor plant in a five gallon can. The vigorous plant will probably outgrow the poor one in a single season.

FURNITURE SCRATCHES

Often you can remove light scratches with oil from a Brazil nut or black walnut. Break the nut meat in two and rub it well into the scratches. Or you may want to rub scratch with a clean cloth dipped in kerosene, boiled linseed oil, lemon oil or furniture polish.

Try removing deep scratches on dark brown woods by retouching with iodine of ordinary strength. Dip a small brush into the iodine and apply to the scratches. After the iodine has dried, polish with a little oil or any kind of furniture polish. For mahogany use potassium permanganate to one quart of water. Dry the wood, then polish it.

You can sometimes use colored crayons or shoe dye for deep scratches. Color the brown in the finish with a brown crayon or regular brown liquid shoe dye. The dye comes in various shades of brown and is especially good for scratches or other blemishes on walnut furniture.

NEW BULLETIN

Mrs. Young Homemaker, I believe we have a bulletin which will be most helpful to you in the area of nutrition. It is entitled, "Food for the Young Couples," and may be especially welcome if you, Mrs. Young Homemaker, are working because it contains the following information:

Food plans for a week, within a budget; menus for a week; uses of convenience foods; how to cut food costs; staples list; starting set of kitchen tools and utensils and a reference list for the young homemaker. If you would like to have a copy, call our office FA 3-2251 and ask for the bulletin, "Food for the Young Couple." There is no charge. This is one of the services of your Agricultural Extension Department.

CLOTHING

Development of new fabrics is expected in the outlook for 1963. Clothing expenditures declined from 13 per cent of income in 1929 to eight per cent in 1961. Reason may be increased income, increased competition of other goods and services, changing composition of population, greater ability of fibers and today's casual mode of dressing.

New products on the market this year may include stretch cottons, wools and blends and new man - made materials for women's shoes. Research will probably develop new man - made fibers and new uses for old fibers, as well as blends.

Retail prices of clothing may edge up somewhat in 1963. Wholesale prices of apparel and footwear are some higher than a year ago. Prices of broadwoven goods of man - made fibers, wool, cotton and silks are up.

Future increases have been announced in clothing for men and boys. Woman's shoes show a slight decrease in price.

The census of 1960 showed 45.1 million families living in the U. S. and 5,770 of them had children under 18 years of age living with them.

Two out of every five families have more than one wage earner. Statistics calculate that by 1970 half of all American families will have a double income. This is mainly due to the number of wives now working for money in the labor market.

A THOUGHT

We see things not as they are, but as we are.

Stamp News

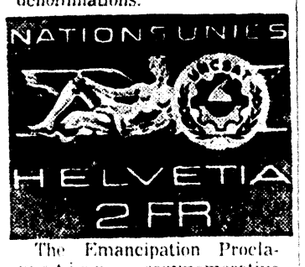

Switzerland has issued two sets of stamps in its regular postal series, according to word received by the Swiss Philatelic Agency in America. One set, designed to meet the new parcel post rates, consists of four stamps. Its subjects were taken from the "Architecfural Monuments" definitive series of 1960. The 36 cents, 70 cents and 2 ft. values of that series will no longer be produced. The new 36 cents, 70 cents and 2 fr. Woodcutters Guildhall, Biel; 1.70 fr. and 2.20 fr. — Abbey of Einsiedeln; the 2.80 fr.— Collegiate Church, Bellinzona.

The second set, issued for use by the United Nations European Office, consists of two service stamps for UNCSAT (United Nations Conference on the applications of Science and Technology for the benefit of less developed areas). Denominations are 50 cents and 2 fr. The design features the emblem of the UNCSAT stamps — a cogwheel and retort — symbolizing the aim and purpose of this international conference.

Haiti has overprinted its Seattle Fair stamps with a spacecraft to honor the "peaceful uses of outer space."

Finland, in connection with its new monetary system, has issued a new series of stamps. All the stamps issued previous to 1954 are now declared invalid for postage. All of the current stamps issued in the years 1954-1962 that do not bear the "MK" are still valid.

Bhutan has issued its first commemorative series of stamps to honor the membership of that country in the Colombo Plan. The new stamps depict the ancient warrior's iron helmet beneath which is a shield flanked by a long sword, ceremonial dagger and drinking horn. The first regular postage stamps of Bhutan were introduced last year in nine different denominations.

The Emancipation Proclamation commemorative stamp will be issued in February as part of the centennial observance of President Lincoln's act that freed the slaves in this country.

Home & Garden

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

He plans to desert the Kennedy family, the politicians under the Capitol dome, the brass in the Pentagon and assorted visiting premiers and prime ministers for an interesting short-term photo assignment for a Washington travel agency. He will lead a troupe of camera fans on a 23 - day photo tour of Europe leaving New York on June 28.

"The photo fans are not only going to see and record the traditional sights of Europe," Finnigan writes, "but they're going to understand the 'how' and 'why' of their hobby before they finish the tour. We've scheduled stops near many of the leading names in the photographic industry for backstage tours.

"For instance, we'll shoot the canals and bell tower of Bruges in Belgium. Then we'll stop in to see how they make sensitized paper at the Gevaert plant in nearby Brussels. In Cologne, Germany, the famous twin-spired Cathedral is a must. Near it they can see how they make film at Wetzlar and the precision grinding of lenses at Zeiss - Ikon in Stuttgart."

It'll be worth their while. A photo contest will be held on return and cash prizes will be awarded for the best trip pictures taken in both color and black and white. Editors of Popular Photography will Judge the contest and the winners will have the added satisfaction of seeing their pictures eventually published.

GADGET

And the mail brought an unusual gadget.

It looks like a miniature auto wheel, about three and a half inches in diameter and an inch and a quarter across. The "tire" portion of the wheel is made of an opaque gray plastic except for two sections. These sections are of transparent plastic; one is bluish and the other is whitish. The two sections are at opposite sides of the "tire."

"We discovered this unusual product in Germany last summer and had some changes made for American camera fans," wrote Kurt Luhn of Kling Photo Corporation. "See if you can guess what it does in photography before you read the instructions."

I didn't make a good guess, so I'll tell you.

It's a flash gun . . . a repeating flash gun . . . for FIVE flashbulbs! It's called the Balda Five Shooter Flash.

The plastic sections are windows which snap on and off. They reveal inside a tiny reflector for AG flashbulbs. There are five such reflectors inside the "tire" and they revolve like a water wheel.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Evergreens Are Scalded

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

In extremely cold winters, a vast amount of damage is always done to the foliage of broadleaf evergreens. Here in the Upper South where we frequently have low temperatures with no snow to cover up their leaves, camellias, ligustrums and even the very cold hardy hollies and magnolias may have their foliage burned.

When snow or ice covers up this foliage during a deep drop in temperature, the cells in the leaves are not subjected to the temperature outside. Without the snow cover, however, cells burst, and the leaves are destroyed. Then January sun and winds turn them brown and make them look as if they had been scalded.

WISE TO WAIT

Scalded evergreens will not necessarily die all the way back to green leaves. Sometimes, they will simple lose their dead leaves and come out from the buds beneath them. For this reason, it is wise to simply wait and see how far back the buds have been killed when spring comes.

Very few of the needle evergreens are ever really hurt by the cold. Many of them assume a bronzed or purple color, and some varieties like the Waukegan juniper are prized for their winter violet. With resin in their sap, these conifers are able to resist extremely low temperatures and can brave the bitter winds and cold of the far North. It is hard to believe that any trees or shrubs can survive 50 below zero, but spruces and firs experience this every winter with no harm done!

To experienced gardeners, it is a routine matter to go out and examine the trunks and stems of azaleas, camellias and other choice broadleaf evergreens after such bone chillers as we have had lately. Temperatures below 10 degrees Fahrenheit often split the juicy main stems and trunks of these plants. When this happens, trunks and stems must be taped back together to save them. While split stems will not usually survive more than a season or two, they will keep your plants alive until new wood is produced from the ground.

The plants most often split in the Upper South here are things like the tender big azaleas from the coastal areas. We know they will not survive extreme cold, but every gardener likes to see if he or she can prove the rule wrong. Gardening is a sport as well as an art. Some shrubs like laurustinus are so charming and beautiful that we plant them deliberately in sheltered places and in amongst protective shrub or underneath tall trees in order to have their flowers in warm winters and in early spring.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Club Themes Interpretive

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

These arrangements were judged before the show by Mrs. K. R. Young, one of the Fifth District accredited flower show judges. To the delight of the club and the members each design rated a blue ribbon score.

The first design was made by Mrs. Joy Eleanor Phelps whose theme was "Early American Spring." This was a vertical massed - line design formed by the use of Dutch iris for the primary line in a small crockery butter churn.

This was placed on a round wooden base. Yellow statice and huckleberry foliage was used as filler and background for a triangular placement of daffodils. One large iris formed the center of interest. The churn's dasher was used at the base of the churn as an accessory.

Mrs. J. K. Ezell used as her theme, "George Washington." White mums that had been sprayed with red paint formed the outer edge of a triangle design in a low, red ceramic bowl. Within this line she placed several mums that had been sprayed blue near the focal area. The profile silhouette of George Washington was made of black construction paper over white to form a white edge — then placed to the back - center of the design as the focal interest.

It was a wonderful conversational arrangement, suitable for the den or party buffet.

Mrs. Phelps made a second design for the show called a "Patriotic Arrangement." This design was a triangle made of white glads with the buds forming the primary line in a low white compote container. Bright red glads were used for contrast at the base of the design and coming up into the line of white. Iris foliage and croton leaves were used as filler. This design would be lovely for the Valentine party as well as for Washington's Birthday motif.

CHERRY TREE

The next arrangement was made by two of the club's members, Mrs. Lessie Simmons and Mrs. Lucille Harper. This composition was called, "The Cherry Tree." The "tree" was made of branches of pyracantha placed in a vertical position in a small needle cup holder. This was placed to the back - left side of a rectangular base (black). An oak log was placed at the base of the tree trunk forming or completing the triangle design. Real candied cherries were stuck onto the thorns of the pyracantha, giving the authentic appearance of the cherry tree. To complete the picture and form the focal interest a small red styrafoam hatchet tied with red, white and blue ribbons was placed across the log at the center of the triangle. It was an ideal motif for that party on Washington's Birthday at school or child's room.

Mrs. G. T. Brown made the last design, "Drum and Bugle Corps." A triangle design made of short leafed pine formed the background for lovely white and red carnations placed within the line. The container was a coffee can filled with oasis.

This was placed inside a small toy drum colored red and blue. The drum sticks were placed at the base. To the right of this was placed a small bugle (upright). The entire composition was tied together by being placed on a large black triangular base. It was a clever idea for a boy's room, or the family den for the National Holiday.

If you want to know how to grow decorative flowers, namely, the hybiscus, indoors you might ask Mrs. Helen Agnew, international president of the Quota Club. She brought a beautiful specimen to the show, a lovely deep rose color. She said that she grew it indoors in her office where the plant received plenty of light and an even temperature at all times. She also has a white and a red plant which has had over 50 blooms with equally that many buds yet to bloom. This should prove interesting to many who love this type flower.

This was a delightful show —all blue ribbons and full of grand ideas for right now — February. Hope you saw it.

This week — be watching for the Petite Maison Garden Club's show Mrs. W. C. Thompson is president.

Use Varieties Best Suited

By AUDREY DAWSON

If you are planning to add camellias to your landscape, before buying be sure you know which varieties are adapted to your area. If you want a list of varieties adapted to your area, write to U. S. National Arboretum, USDA, Washington 25, D. C. Your nurserymen also can tell you which varieties are available in this area.

It is best to buy container grown or balled and burlapped plants if you can. They are easier to establish successfully than barerooted plants. Buy plants that are at least two years old. Plants of this age are 18 to 24 inches tall. Inspect plants for wounds or scars near the base of the main stem. Wounded areas may become cankerous and cause the plant to die. However if a plant has been grafted it may have a swollen area near the base of the main stem. This is not a sign of poor health.

When you select a plant from a group, select one that is well branched from the ground up. Choose one with a good shape and green foliage. A vigorous plant growing in a gallon can is better than a poor plant in a five gallon can. The vigorous plant will probably outgrow the poor one in a single season.

FURNITURE SCRATCHES

Often you can remove light scratches with oil from a Brazil nut or black walnut. Break the nut meat in two and rub it well into the scratches. Or you may want to rub scratch with a clean cloth dipped in kerosene, boiled linseed oil, lemon oil or furniture polish.

Try removing deep scratches on dark brown woods by retouching with iodine of ordinary strength. Dip a small brush into the iodine and apply to the scratches. After the iodine has dried, polish with a little oil or any kind of furniture polish. For mahogany use potassium permanganate to one quart of water. Dry the wood, then polish it.

You can sometimes use colored crayons or shoe dye for deep scratches. Color the break in the finish with a brown crayon or regular brown liquid shoe dye. The dye comes in various shades of brown and is especially good for scratches or other blemishes on walnut furniture.

NEW BULLETIN

Mrs. Young Homemaker, I believe we have a bulletin which will be most helpful to you in the area of nutrition. It is entitled, "Food for the Young Couples," and may be especially welcome if you, Mrs. Young Homemaker, are working because it contains the following information:

Food plans for a week, within a budget; menus for a week; uses of convenience foods; how to cut food costs; staples list; starting set of kitchen tools and utensils and a reference list for the young homemaker. If you would like to have a copy, call our office FA 3-2251 and ask for the bulletin, "Food for the Young Couple." There is no charge. This is one of the services of your Agricultural Extension Department.

CLOTHING

Development of new fabrics is expected in the outlook for 1963. Clothing expenditures declined from 13 per cent of income in 1929 to eight per cent in 1961. Reason may be increased income, increased competition of other goods and services, changing composition of population, greater utility of fibers and today's casual mode of dressing.

New products on the market this year may include stretch cottons, wools and blends and new man - made materials for women's shoes. Research will probably develop new man - made fibers and new uses for old fibers, as well as blends.

Retail prices of clothing may edge up somewhat in 1963. Wholesale prices of apparel and footwear are some higher than a year ago. Prices of broadwoven goods of man - made fibers, wool, cotton and silks are up.

Future increases have been announced in clothing for men and boys. Woman's shoes show a slight decrease in price.

The census of 1960 showed 45.1 million families living in the U. S. and 5,770 of them had children under 18 years of age living with them.

Two out of every five families have more than one wage earner. Statistics calculate that by 1970 half of all American families will have a double income. This is mainly due to the number of wives now working for money in the labor market.

A THOUGHT

We see things not as they are, but as we are.

Stamp News

Switzerland has issued two sets of stamps in its regular postal series, according to word received by the Swiss Philatelic Agency in America. One set, designed to meet the new parcel post rates, consists of four stamps. Its subjects were taken from the "Architectural Monuments" definitive series of 1960. The 36 cents, 70 cents and 2 ft. values of that series will no longer be produced. The new 36 cents, 70 cents and 2 fr. Woodcutters Guildhall, Biel; 1.70 fr. and 2.20 fr. — Abbey of Einsiedeln; the 2.80 fr.— Collegiate Church, Bellinzona.

The second set, issued for use by the United Nations European Office, consists of two service stamps for UNCSAT (United Nations Conference on the applications of Science and Technology for the benefit of less developed areas). Denominations are 50 cents and 2 fr. The design features the emblem of the UNCSAT stamps — a cogwheel and retort — symbolizing the aim and purpose of this international conference.

Haiti has overprinted its Seattle Fair stamps with a spacecraft to honor the "peaceful uses of outer space."

Finland, in connection with its new monetary system, has issued a new series of stamps. All the stamps issued previous to 1954 are now declared invalid for postage. All of the current stamps issued in the years 1954-1962 that do not bear the "MK" are still valid.

Bhutan has issued its first commemorative series of stamps to honor the membership of that country in the Colombo Plan. The new stamps depict the ancient warrior's iron helmet beneath which is a shield flanked by a long sword, ceremonial dagger and drinking horn. The first regular postage stamps of Bhutan were introduced last year in nine different denominations.

The Emancipation Proclamation commemorative stamp will be issued in February as part of the centennial observance of President Lincoln's act that freed the slaves in this country.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

He plans to desert the Kennedy family, the politicians under the Capitol dome, the brass in the Pentagon and assorted visiting premiers and prime ministers for an interesting short-term photo assignment for a Washington travel agency. He will lead a troupe of camera fans on a 23 - day photo tour of Europe leaving New York on June 28.

"The photo fans are not only going to see and record the traditional sights of Europe," Finnigan writes, "but they're going to understand the 'how' and 'why' of their hobby before they finish the tour. We've scheduled stops near many of the leading names in the photographic industry for backstage tours.

"For instance, we'll shoot the canals and bell tower of Bruges in Belgium. Then we'll stop in to see how they make sensitized paper at the Gevaert plant in nearby Brussels. In Cologne, Germany, the famous twin-spired Cathedral is a must. Near it they can see how they make film at Wetzlar and the precision grinding of lenses at Zeiss - Ikon in Stuttgart."

It'll be worth their while. A photo contest will be held on return and cash prizes will be awarded for the best trip pictures taken in both color and black and white. Editors of Popular Photography will Judge the contest and the winners will have the added satisfaction of seeing their pictures eventually published.

GADGET

And the mail brought an unusual gadget.

It looks like a miniature auto wheel, about three and a half inches in diameter and an inch and a quarter across. The "tire" portion of the wheel is made of an opaque gray plastic except for two sections. These sections are of transparent plastic; one is bluish and the other is whitish. The two sections are at opposite sides of the "tire."

"We discovered this unusual product in Germany last summer and had some changes made for American camera fans," wrote Kurt Luhn of Kling Photo Corporation. "See if you can guess what it does in photography before you read the instructions."

I didn't make a good guess, so I'll tell you.

It's a flash gun . . . a repeating flash gun . . . for FIVE flashbulbs! It's called the Balda Five Shooter Flash.

The plastic sections are windows which snap on and off. They reveal inside a tiny reflector for AG flashbulbs. There are five such reflectors inside the "tire" and they revolve like a water wheel.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

In extremely cold winters, a vast amount of damage is always done to the foliage of broadleaf evergreens. Here in the Upper South where we frequently have low temperatures with no snow to cover up their leaves, camellias, ligustrums and even the very cold hardy hollies and magnolias may have their foliage burned.

When snow or ice covers up this foliage during a deep drop in temperature, the cells in the leaves are not subjected to the temperature outside. Without the snow cover, however, cells burst, and the leaves are destroyed. Then January sun and winds turn them brown and make them look as if they had been scalded.

WISE TO WAIT

Scalded evergreens will not necessarily die all the way back to green leaves. Sometimes, they will simple lose their dead leaves and come out from the buds beneath them. For this reason, it is wise to simply wait and see how far back the buds have been killed when spring comes.

Very few of the needle evergreens are ever really hurt by the cold. Many of them assume a bronzed or purple color, and some varieties like the Waukegan juniper are prized for their winter violet. With resin in their sap, these conifers are able to resist extremely low temperatures and can brave the bitter winds and cold of the far North. It is hard to believe that any trees or shrubs can survive 50 below zero, but spruces and firs experience this every winter with no harm done!

To experienced gardeners, it is a routine matter to go out and examine the trunks and stems of azaleas, camellias and other choice broadleaf evergreens after such bone chillers as we have had lately. Temperatures below 10 degrees Fahrenheit often split the juicy main stems and trunks of these plants. When this happens, trunks and stems must be taped back together to save them. While split stems will not usually survive more than a season or two, they will keep your plants alive until new wood is produced from the ground.

The plants most often split in the Upper South here are things like the tender big azaleas from the coastal areas. We know they will not survive extreme cold, but every gardener likes to see if he or she can prove the rule wrong. Gardening is a sport as well as an art. Some shrubs like laurustinus are so charming and beautiful that we plant them deliberately in sheltered places and in amongst protective shrub or underneath tall trees in order to have their flowers in warm winters and in early spring.

ROME (AP)—Firemen had to fight for three hours during the night before whipping a blaze in a local motion picture theater. The movie playing was entitled "Fiametta," which means little flame.

CUBAN EXPANSION

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Recent troubles over Cuba have not interrupted Assemblies of God mission work there, reports one of the denomination's missionaries still on the island, the Rev. Floyd Woodworth. The number of Assemblies churches there has more than doubled during the Castro regime, with 83 churches there now compared with 40 in 1960.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Mrs. D. W. Tillman is president of the Evergreen Garden Club.

These arrangements were judged before the show by Mrs. K. R. Young, one of the Fifth District accredited flower show judges. To the delight of the club and the members each design rated a blue ribbon score.

The first design was made by Mrs. Joy Eleanor Phelps whose theme was "Early American Spring." This was a vertical massed - line design formed by the use of Dutch iris for the primary line in a small crockery butter churn.

This was placed on a round wooden base. Yellow statice and huckleberry foliage was used as filler and background for a triangular placement of daffodils. One large iris formed the center of interest. The churn's dasher was used at the base of the churn as an accessory.

Mrs. J. K. Ezell used as her theme, "George Washington." White mums that had been sprayed with red paint formed the outer edge of a triangle design in a low, red ceramic bowl. Within this line she placed several mums that had been sprayed blue near the focal area. The profile silhouette of George Washington was made of black construction paper over white to form a white edge — then placed to the back - center of the design as the focal interest.

It was a wonderful conversational arrangement, suitable for the den or party buffet.

Mrs. Phelps made a second design for the show called a "Patriotic Arrangement." This design was a triangle made of white glads with the buds forming the primary line in a low white compote container. Bright red glads were used for contrast at the base of the design and coming up into the line of white. Iris foliage and croton leaves were used as filler. This design would be lovely for the Valentine party as well as for Washington's Birthday motif.

CHERRY TREE

The next arrangement was made by two of the club's members, Mrs. Lessie Simmons and Mrs. Lucille Harper. This composition was called, "The Cherry Tree." The "tree" was made of branches of pyracantha placed in a vertical position in a small needle cup holder. This was placed to the back - left side of a rectangular base (black). An oak log was placed at the base of the tree trunk forming or completing the triangle design. Real candied cherries were stuck onto the thorns of the pyracantha, giving the authentic appearance of the cherry tree. To complete the picture and form the focal interest a small red styrafoam hatchet tied with red, white and blue ribbons was placed across the log at the center of the triangle. It was an ideal motif for that party on Washington's Birthday at school or child's room.

Mrs. G. T. Brown made the last design, "Drum and Bugle Corps." A triangle design made of short leafed pine formed the background for lovely white and red carnations placed within the line. The container was a coffee can filled with oasis.

This was placed inside a small toy drum colored red and blue. The drum sticks were placed at the base. To the right of this was placed a small bugle (upright). The entire composition was tied together by being placed on a large black triangular base. It was a clever idea for a boy's room, or the family den for the National Holiday.

If you want to know how to grow decorative flowers, namely, the hybiscus, indoors you might ask Mrs. Helen Agnew, international president of the Quota Club. She brought a beautiful specimen to the show, a lovely deep rose color. She said that she grew it indoors in her office where the plant received plenty of light and an even temperature at all times. She also has a white and a red plant which has had over 50 blooms with equally that many buds yet to bloom. This should prove interesting to many who love this type flower.

This was a delightful show —all blue ribbons and full of grand ideas for right now — February. Hope you saw it.

This week — be watching for the Petite Maison Garden Club's show Mrs. W. C. Thompson is president.

COMING TO PARAMOUNT

'Diamond Head' Gigantic Show

Lush, spectacular modern Hawaii backgrounds "Diamond Head," the Jerry Bresler production opening Sunday, Feb. 17, at the Paramount Theatre, with Charlton Heston topping a cast that includes Yvette Mimieux, George Chakiris, France Nuyen as Mei Chen and James Darren.

In Panavision and Eastman Color, "Diamond Head" reportedly is a giant story of Americas newest state, a drama that involves both the people and the tempestuous history of the romantic island paradise.

Heston plays the ruthless young head of an agricultural island dynasty who tries to halt the marriage of his beautiful young sister to a full - blooded Hawaiian boy. Blind to his own hypocrisy, he also carries on a clandestine love affair with a lovely Chinese girl who is to bear him a son. These elements fuse into the violent drama and romance of the absorbing new film.

Chakiris, Academy Award winner for his work in "West Side Story," plays Darren's half-white brother, a young doctor who also loves the girl and who is able to match Heston's violence with triumphant understanding. Miss Nuyen plays Mei Chen, whom Heston recognizes as a girl and not, despite his own pride of family, as a Chinese girl.

When novelist Peter Gilmans book, "Diamond Head," was published by Coward - McCann in 1960, some of the older baronial families, holders of vast pineapple, sugar cane and cattle estates on Hawaii, winced at its merciless profile of a man named Howland, his power and his bigotry. The book was a best - seller, and Howland joined the gallery of fictional giants; Heston, according to filmdom, has made "Diamond Head' a screen giant.

CHARLTON HESTON and France Nuyen as Mei Chen have a clandestine love affair in Jerry Bresler's "Diamond Head," opening next Sunday at the Paramount Theatre. Also starring in the film are Yvette Mimieux, George Chakiris and James Darren.

Now, after two years of preparation, and four months of location filming under the direction of Guy Green, "Diamond Head" brings its disturbing, smoldering and exploding story of love and hate, death and defeat, to the screen. Aline MacMahon and Elizabeth Allan also co-star and Marguerite Roberts penned the screenplay.

Curtain Call

The box - office at Strauss Playhouse opens Wednesday, February 13, to take reservations for "Annie Get Your Gun" by telephone or in person. Members may call FAirfax 3-1235 or go by the theatre on Lamy Lane from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Thereafter, box office hours will be 1 p.m. to 8 p.m.

"Annie" will premiere on Saturday, February 16, and is scheduled to close on Saturday, February 23, with showings each night at 8:15 and a single matinee on Sunday, February 17, at 2:30 p.m. Non-members may apply at the box-office to join Little Theatre so as to see the musical, as well as the two remaining plays of the season.

COMMITTEE

Miss Lallage Feazel has assembled a committee to assist Mrs. R. M. Kettenring with reservations, a task that becomes more formidable all the time. Taking turns will be Mmes. Kent Anderson, Henry Bernstein Jr., Arthur S. Brueck, Duncan S. Cook, Stewart Doernberg, Ivy A. Faulk, W. G. Haynes Jr., Dewitt T. Milam, Craig Morgan, George T. Walker, R. C. White Jr. and Harold L. Woods Jr. They have been instructed in box office procedure by Mrs. Kettenring and vice president Mrs. L. A. Carter and we surely welcome their help.

This coming Tuesday at 1:45 a local television show will feature executive director Richard M. Clark, technical director Raymond Lucero and choreographer Bob Beard in a discussion of "Annie Get Your Gun," which ought to interest those planning to attend.

For awhile it was impossible to obtain recordings of "Annie," but a supply is now available at one or more Monroe record stores if cast members have not snapped them all up.

As we move into the critical phase of the rehearsal schedule, it will be necessary to close the theatre from now on to all except cast, crew, board members and others concerned with the show. Russ Kettenring's house and grounds committee is getting the orchestra pit ready for conductor and musical director Eloy Fominaya to hold his first joint rehearsal of orchestra and cast in the next few days.

ORCHESTRA MEMBERS

Remember the wonderful teenagers in "Bye Bye Birdie?" Eight of them are back for "Annie," including Jo Ann Bennett, Jan Evans, Sissy Kotz, Margaret Miles, Ronnie Smith, Kenneth Garrison, Dwight Housley and Buddy Smith. They and the other students in our cast were excused from rehearsals during the recent exam period, as we believe firmly that school must come first. And one of our prettiest chorines, Claudia Roberts, ended the term as a straight A honor student at WMHS.

When Strauss Playhouse opened less than two years ago, we had eight overhead lines in the fly-loft. Today we have 18, and every one is in use for "Annie." The upkeep and improvement of a modern plant like ours takes the talents and services of many volunteers, which reminds us to credit Tom Henry for lending a hand with the screen project for the air conditioning room.

Old-timers in the Little Theatre were especially distressed to read that Mrs. Laura Slator had been seriously injured by an automobile. Some 25 years ago, she and her husband alternated as treasurer over eight whole seasons and helped greatly to maintain our solvency.

If anyone could spare a "Bye Bye Birdie" program or two, please call Bob Evans at FA 5-3200.

'Diamond Head' Gigantic Show

Lush, spectacular modern Hawaii backgrounds "Diamond Head," the Jerry Bresler production opening Sunday, Feb. 17, at the Paramount Theatre, with Charlton Heston topping a cast that includes Yvette Mimieux, George Chakiris, France Nuyen as Mei Chen and James Darren.

In Panavision and Eastman Color, "Diamond Head" reportedly is a giant story of Americas newest state, a drama that involves both the people and the tempestuous history of the romantic island paradise.

Heston plays the ruthless young head of an agricultural island dynasty who tries to halt the marriage of his beautiful young sister to a full - blooded Hawaiian boy. Blind to his own hypocrisy, he also carries on a clandestine love affair with a lovely Chinese girl who is to bear him a son. These elements fuse into the violent drama and romance of the absorbing new film.

Chakiris, Academy Award winner for his work in "West Side Story," plays Darren's half-white brother, a young doctor who also loves the girl and who is able to match Heston's violence with triumphant understanding. Miss Nuyen plays Mei Chen, whom Heston recognizes as a girl and not, despite his own pride of family, as a Chinese girl.

When novelist Peter Gilmans book, "Diamond Head," was published by Coward - McCann in 1960, some of the older baronial families, holders of vast pineapple, sugar cane and cattle estates on Hawaii, winced at its merciless profile of a man named Howland, his power and his bigotry. The book was a best - seller, and Howland joined the gallery of fictional giants; Heston, according to filmdom, has made "Diamond Head' a screen giant.

CHARLTON HESTON and France Nuyen as Mei Chen have a clandestine love affair in Jerry Bresler's "Diamond Head," opening next Sunday at the Paramount Theatre. Also starring in the film are Yvette Mimieux, George Chakiris and James Darren.

Now, after two years of preparation, and four months of location filming under the direction of Guy Green. "Diamond Head" brings its disturbing, smoldering and exploding story of love and hate, death and defeat, to the screen. Aline MacMahon and Elizabeth Allan also co-star and Marguerite Roberts penned the screenplay.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

When the can of paste wax with which we shine our shoes has gotten down to near depletion, did you know that this could be left over the pilot light on a gas stove, and the paste will melt from the sides of the can and will form a new film on the bottom of the can?

I have found that two cans of wax can be poured together and melted down. The extra can takes up very little space in the shoe box. Leave it there until you get a couple of depleted cans.

C. B.

COOL IDEA

DEAR HELOISE:

I have found that instead of storing ice cubes in plastic bags and putting them in your refrigerator . . . that if the ice is crushed first and then stored in plastic bags that you can get more ice in your refrigerator per inch of space!

Now . . . this ice might be slightly stuck together upon removal, but so were the cubes I used to use!

This plastic bag may be struck against any hard surface, and immediately all the ice comes loose.

David Brownshoe

HOME HEAVY

DEAR HELOISE:

I do not happen to be fortunate enough to own a hair dryer, but I do have a makeshift one.

When I am in a rush to get my hair set and dried, I remove the bag from my vacuum cleaner, turn the hose around to "blow" and turn it on. Let it blow a second to remove any remaining dust.

Then I set my hair while the motor is getting warm. I then wrap my head in a heavy bath towel, stick the end of the hose in my bath-towel turban and settle down for about 20 minutes. It works wonders in an emergency.

L. R.

GREAT STEAK

DEAR HELOISE:

The next time you have steak, try marinating it briefly in French dressing . . . then broil as usual. I learned this from my husband, who is a professional cook. People are always asking him what he does to his steaks, and all they get is a big grin.

If you decide to pass this on, for heaven's sake, use only my initials . . . my husband would scalp me!

No Name

HEAVY MOVING

DEAR HELOISE:

About once a year I move or slide my heavy pieces of furniture (such as china closet, etc.) into the center of the room so that I can wax and clean behind and under them.

I have found that if I take a small, rubber-backed rug and turn it upside down (rubber back up) and put the leg of the piece of furniture on the back of the rug itself that, as little as I am (I weigh less than 100 pounds), the furniture slides easily across the floor without leaving a mark.

My son and I lift the furniture a bit to slide the rug under it, by using a board.

Wife

AIR BATH IDEA

Pick up perfumed bath crystals with your vacuum cleaner before embarking on that cleaning job, and your whole house will smell fresh and clean, even hours later.

Mrs. Kristof

CLOSETS

DEAR HELOISE:

I have learned how to keep my closets clean longer . . . I hang all my husband's clothes in one end of the closet, mine in the other! I leave a little room in the middle which I keep separated by empty coat-hangers.

It is easy to put the coat-hangers in the middle of the closet after removing the garments, and then I don't have to hunt for them when I get ready to iron.

I also divide the children's clothes the same way. Each child knows where his clothes are, and I don't have to say, "You can't wear that. It's not yours."

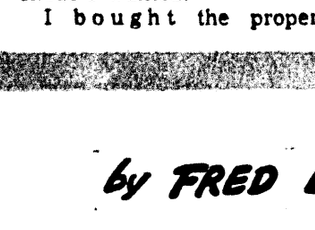

Reader

GUESTS

DEAR HELOISE:

My husband just loves to bring home guests for dinner and supper, and with a ten-minute notice!

After years and tears of being upset, I learned to always keep a canned ham in my icebox. I call this my insurance policy! Never is my icebox without a canned ham. Having a few cans of ready-cooked potatoes helps, too.

Your ham can be served hot with baking-powder biscuits or sliced cold. I just wish I had thought of this ten years earlier.

Rosemary Davie

TRY OILCLOTH

DEAR HELOISE:

I made my kitchen window shade out of table oilcloth. I have been doing this since 1942 when I couldn't find the exact shade I wanted.

I bought the proper length and color of oilcloth to match my kitchen decor, removed the old shade from the roller, and tacked the new oilcloth back on the same roller.

These shades can be washed when they get soiled, or can be wiped with a cloth. Everyone who comes into my kitchen is surprised to think I made the shade. Later I made a shade for the bathroom, and it's lovely, too.

Mrs. Anni Kinney

SANDWICHES SOGGY

DEAR HELOISE:

When making sandwiches for lunch boxes, wrap the lettuce and tomatoes in waxed paper, instead of putting them on the sandwich itself. At lunch time unwrap them and tuck them into the sandwich just before eating.

Separate wrappings prevent the lettuce from becoming limp and the tomatoes from making the bread soggy.
